Russ Orbital Bomb Branded Grave Danger To U.S. Cities

BITTER ELECTION—Defaced campaign posters of Richard G. Hatcher, Negro mayoral candidate in Gary, Ind., illustrate campaign rancor. Federal officials are investigating charges of Negro registration manipulating. (UPI Telephoto)

Pentagon View Hit By Tower

DALLAS (UPI) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said today Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had underestimated the threat of an orbital bombing system. He predicted it would turn out to be another McNamara "error in judgment."

Tower, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told a news conference that such a bomb could be a grave danger to U. S. cities.

He said the U. S. should take its plans for the military's proposed manned orbiting laboratory (MOL) off the shelf immediately, and stop letting the Russians have free reign on the military exploitation of space.

McNamara announced yesterday Russia was apparently perfecting a semi-orbiting nuclear weapon which could put bombs in low orbit and then drop them on targets. The defense secretary said the system, however, would be less accurate and the payloads would be smaller.

CALL FOR ACTION

But Tower said there were no assurances those limitations might not be overcome by the Russians in the future.

"The United States had better get into the defense business in space in a big way and immediately," Tower said. "And if we cannot count on the administration to realize the gravity of the situation, Congress must simply take matters into its own hands."

Tower disagreed with McNamara's statement that the fractional orbital bombardment system was not a danger to U.S. cities.

'BIGGER THE BANG'

"We must look toward future developments," he said. "The bigger the bang the less accurate it would have to be. This is not McNamara's first error in judgment. I think it is shocking the secretary says he's not concerned. The President should seek out advisors who are concerned if McNamara isn't."

Tower said, "In 1963 McNamara claimed the manned orbiting

Park To Await 'Springtime In The Rockies?'

Key Committee Member Wants Inspection Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key member of the House Interior Committee predicts it will be "springtime in the Rockies" before final congressional decision on the still controversial Redwood National Park.

The Senate passed a bill Wednesday to authorize a 64,000-acre two-unit park in Northern California and to permit exchange of national forest land with lumber companies to help pay its $100 million estimated cost.

Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., top-ranking Republican on the House Interior Committee, said that since the Senate action he has been besieged by telephone calls from partisans on both sides of the land-swap controversy.

'FROZEN FEARS'

"I tell them all to wait until it's springtime in the Rockies before anyone gets frozen into an inflexible position," Saylor said in an interview.

Both the Redwood Natonal Park and the North Cascades National Park in Washington State have been assigned priorities for consideration by the House Interior Committee next year. The North Cascades bill, providing for a 1.2-million-acre park, recreation area and wilderness complex, was passed by the Senate on Thursday.

CALL FOR TRIP

Saylor said the priority schedule does not mean coming to grips with the park controversies in January or February.

"There ought to be a field trip by a select group of committee members to see the redwood park region before we make decisions," he said. "There are certain features we've got to look at."

Saylor predicted that there

'I SPY' IN TERRA LINDA

Behind the binoculars and under the hard hat is San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner. With Associate Planner Charles J. Linthicum driving, Hotchner toured the city's Terra Linda section yesterday on top of the car the better to spot violations of San Rafael's amended zoning ordinance covering accessory structures in side yards. The study will also map house numbers and determine the use of each building, whether single family or other. They tried walking Thursday and thought this might be a more efficient method. Court Hits Guard Alert On Election

GARY, Ind. (UPI—An Indiana judge today issued an injunction which challenged the action of Gov. Roger Branigin's callout of the National Guard for the Gary elections.

In the elections, to be held Tuesday, a Negro Democrat opposes a white man for mayor. Gary normally votes Democratic.

Branigin Thursday called out National Guard units to assemble in the Gary area to be ready in case of disorder.

At Martinsville, about 150 miles southeast of Gary, Superior Court Judge Noble Littell issued an injunction against Branigin and Indiana Adj. Gen. John S. Anderson based on an 1895 law.

The 72-year-old Indiana law bars the mustering or parading of the National Guard within five days of an election "except in case of riot."

The judge said he could find no indication that any riot has occurred.

The injunction was granted on petition of Ralph Lett, Mooresville. One of the National Guard units ordered for duty in Gary Monday is from Martinsville.

Yesterday there were federal charges of voting irregularity in the Gary election.

The Justice Department announced support yesterday for Richard G. Hatcher, the Negro who heads the Democratic ticket, in his suit charging that Lake County voting rolls were manipulated to reduce Negro strength.

Hatcher, who beat out white Mayor A. Martin Katz in the primary and faces white Republican Joseph B. Radigan in the election, appealed to members of President Johnson's commission on civil disorders to "come immediately to Gary to study the present situation."

The Negro candidate is asking for an injunction to delay balloting on grounds the county election board removed the names of some 5,000 persons, mostly Negroes, from the voter registration list.

A three-judge federal panel has scheduled a hearing Monday on the charges of irregularity.

No Problems In Operation On Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI had his troublesome prostate gland removed today in the first surgery performed on a modern pontiff. There were no complications.

The 70-year-old Pope sustained it "very well" and awakened quickly from the operation.

A Vatican announcement said the gland, frequently a cause of urinary tract infections in older men, was noncancerous. The tests for cancer were routine.

The surgery known as a prostatectomy was designed to end fever and infection which first developed two months ago today and caused Pope Paul intermittent difficulty.

The team of seven physicians worked swiftly.

"The Holy Father sustained it very well, and he woke up quickly," said Msgr. Giovanni Benello of the Vatican secretariat of state.

Small crowds gathered in St. Peter's Square and kneeled in prayer as the surgery was performed.

No further medical bulletins were to be issued until late in the day, Benello said.

A three-room clinic had been set up for the operation and for the intensive care required immediately after it.

Osservatore Romano said the pontiff received Holy Communion at a Mass in his private chapel before being wheeled into the operating room with "complete serenity."

Troops Keep Winston Cool With Bullets

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI)—Officials expressed confidence today that they had broken the back of a wave of Negro rioting and Mayor M. C. Benton said he did not intend to reimpose a curfew unless absolutely necessary. A 1,200-man force of national guardsmen and police held the town in a tight grip last night and managed to keep violence at a minimum.

Thursday night about 500 young Negroes rampaged through the streets, looting, setting fires, and sniping at police and firemen.

Col. Charles S. Manooch, public affairs officer of the Adjutant General's Office, said that sniper fire broke about 10:30 p.m. at 14th and Liberty streets, a prime trouble spot, and "we returned the fire," with M1 rifles. Manooch said there were other isolated sniping incidents.

The curfew, which permitted traffic only on interstate highways and expressways running through the downtown area, was lifted early today.

Jackie Wanders Barefoot In Torch-Lit Asian Ruin

ANGKOR, Cambodia (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy wandered barefoot by torch and starlight through the ancient ruins of this God King's city last night.

Mrs. Kennedy started a tour of Angkor shortly after sundown while Cambodian security police lurked in the shadows of the temple to protect her.

The former first lady appeared relaxed after a hectic day in which more than 100 news reporters and cameramen followed her every move. She tiptoed lightly over rough stones and listened to guide Bernard Groslier recite the history of the ruins — in French.

Mrs. Kennedy seemed engrossed by the spectacular ruins. She ran her fingers wonderingly over stone friezes depicting mythical creatures and legendary battles between gods, men and monkeys.

Torches which had not been used since electricity came to Angkor more than a decade ago romantically lighted the approaches over the temple moat.

An official party, including British widower and family friend Lord Harlech—who had been at Mrs. Kennedy's side throughout the day, followed a few steps behind on the temple tour.

"If she is made happy by this or by that, we will be content," Prince Norodom Sihanouk said today, side-stepping any speculation of Mrs. Kennedy's possible romantic involvements.

"Whatever happens," he said, "I am sure she will remain faithful to the great spirit of President Kennedy."

Cambodia's chief of state was replying to a question at a news conference concerning reports of a romance between Mrs. Kennedy and Lord Harlech, the former British ambassador to Washington.

Both have repeatedly denied any plan to marry.

Sihanouk said he wished Mrs. Kennedy happiness in the future and added, jokingly, "Our policy is one of noninterference in the affairs of others."

Viet Cong Set To Free Three Captured GIs

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong says it plans to release three captured U.S. Army sergeants, but apparently not to American authorities. It said they would be turned over either to their families or "progressive American peoples organizations."

The Viet Cong announced the decision to release the soldiers Friday, but gave no indication of when they would be set free. U.S. authorities in Saigon and in Washington said they had not "been returned to U.S. control."

In a Liberation Radio broadcast, the Communists said the prisoners were being released "to answer the good will of progressive American people who are struggling against the U.S. imperialists' war of aggression in Vietnam."

From the Communist broadcast, the Pentagon said it believed the men involved were:

M.Sgt. Daniel L. Pitzer, captured in South Vietnam Oct. 29, 1963 when his outpost was overrun.

M.Sgt. Edward R. Johnson, captured July 21, 1964 while serving as an adviser with a South Vietnamese unit ambushed by the Viet Cong.

S.Sgt. James E. Jackson Jr. listed as missing since July 5, 1966.

The Pentagon said Pitzer was from Spring Lake, N.C., Johnson from Seaside, Calif. and Jackson from Talcott, W.Va.

New Red Attack Seen Despite Bloody Loss

SAIGON (UPI) — American and South Vietnamese forces have killed about 2,000 Communists at the battered bastion of Loc Ninh for one of the war's most lopsided Allied victories, the U.S. commander on the spot said today. But he predicted the Communists would come back for more.

"I look for a real good attack tonight," Maj. Gen. John Hay, U.S. Army 1st Infantry Division commander said.

He said that despite their fantastic losses on the barbed wire defense of Loc Ninh, the Communists have moved in two fresh North Vietnamese regiments—about 2,400 men—as reinforcements.

Four times since Sunday the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese charged with flamethrowers, rockets and bazookas out of surrounding rubber plantations and hurled themselves against the Allied defenders. Heavy artillery and machinegune fire plus air strikes cut them to pieces each time.

Allied forces have suffered fewer than 50 men killed in the Insurance Bill For Flood Loss Clears House

(Special to the I-J)

WASHINGTON — A bill to provide national flood insurance, proposed by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, has been passed by the House of Representatives.

The bill would provide flood insurance in high-risk areas, and would pay up to $17,500 for each house and $30,000 for commercial and multiple dwelling units. Also, up to $5,000 coverage would be provided for contents and personal property.

Rates would be based on the number of persons participating in the program, and and on the degree of local flood risk.

The House bill and a similar Senate bill will go to a conference committee to resolve differences. A separate appropriation measure would be necessary to fund the bill.

Communist Nations Divide Over Russ Attempt To Punish Peking

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's golden anniversary party today turned the Comunist family of nations into a house divided over the Kremlin's wish for a world party congress to denounce Red China.

It was clear from the speeches read today by visiting Communist leaders at the jubilee session of the Soviet parliament that Moscow was not getting the support it wanted for a world party summit.

Czechoslovakian party leader Antonin Novotny and Hungarian party chairman Janos Kadar kept silent on the China issue in their speeches and made only vague references to the need for Communist unity.

Yugoslav president Josip Broz Tito and Romanian party leader Nicolae Ceausescu also ignored the issue in their speeches today. Both Tito and Ceausescu have come out against the world party congress in the past but they apparently did not want to start open strife at the Kremlin's celebrations.

Soviet party chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev issued the call in a keynote address yesterday to the parliament session attended by 6,000 delegates for 95 nations. Communist Chinese diplomats walked out of the Kremlin in protest.

Yesterday, East German party leader Walter Ulbricht also avoided mentioning the China issue in his speech to the session.

Only Polish leader Wladyslaw Gomulka and Bulgarian party chairman Lodor Zhivkov gave formal backing today to the Soviet plan to condemn Mao Tse-tung. France gave its support to the Soviet call yesterday.

The silence appeared to be a disappointing result of a year of intensive diplomatic lobbying by Kremlin leaders for the party summit. Today's speeches have been expected to serve as a gauge of Soviet progress in selling the idea. After the first few speeches, the Soviet goal appeared far away as ever.

Brezhnev spoke for four hours yesterday and accused Peking and Mao Tse-tung of "undermining the world Communist movement." Brezhnev sent greetings to opponents of Mao in China.

Peking Radio broadcast its answer to Brezhnev's attacks today, calling the 50th anniversary celebrations "a most ridiculous comedy." Peking quoted Soviet founding father V.I. Lenin and said the Soviet Union of today had become what Lenin warned against, "a revisionist political party."

The Peking broadcast said all true Communists in the Soviet Union were "sent to insane asylums, if they are lucky."

Former Quentin Doctor Tells Killers' Breakdowns

LOS ANGELES (UPI)— A former San Quentin prison doctor says inmates awaiting execution on death row are reduced to "babbling" human beings who lose all sense of dinity.

Dr. William Graves made the comment yesterday at a Superior Court hearing to determine if capital punishment is constitutional or violates guarantees against cruel and unusual punishment.

The South Pasadena physician, who served at San Quentin from 1952-54, argued that the death penalty is unconstitutional. He described the reactions of three inmates who were put to death.

Dr. Graves said Henry McCracken, a convicted sex slayer, was reduced to "babbling and wallowing in his own excrement" prior to being executed.

Another convict, Billy Rupp, who was sentenced to death for killing an Orange County babysitter "crouched in the rear of his cell, always with the lights out and attempted to read comic books," the doctor said.

He recalled that Barbara Graham, who took part in the pistol-whipping of a woman robbery victim, later had "tears streaming down her face" when she entered Corona Women's penal facility.

"She was unable to speak for an hour and a half and her greatest stress was that she felt she would not be able to see her infant son," Dr. Graves said.

The hearing is being held in the case of condemned kidnaper, robber and sex pervert Emmett Thompson. American Civil Liberties Union lawyers are seeking to show that capital punishment violates the U.S. Constitution's Eighth Amendment.

Under cross-examination by Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Miller Leavy, Dr. Graves said he would not have favored a death sentence for Adolph Eichmann.

CYA Director Plans To Quit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Herman G. Stakr, director of the California Youth Authority and the senior state department head plans to resign at the end of January.

In announcing Stark's resignation Thursday, Gov. Ronald Reagan said the post will be filled by Allen F. Breed, 47, administrative superintendent of the Northern California Youth Center in Stockton.

Breed's appointment to the $23,500-a-year position will require Senate confirmation.

Reagan said he regrets Stark's plans to leave and praised the 64-year-old director for an "outstanding record of achievement and service to the people of California."

Kuchel Seeking Historical Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., has introduced a bill to establish a national historic site at the point of the discovery of San Francisco Bay.

Another bill introduced by Kuchel Thursday would establish a Skyline National Parkway in the Santa Cruz Mountains in San Mateo County.

The discovery site of 30 acres would be located five miles south of San Francisco on Sweeney Ridge at the point Don Gaspar de Portola was said to have seen San Francisco Bay in 1769.

The parkway along Skyline Boulevard would go from San Bruno Road to Saratoga Gap and include scenic overlooks.

Prince Criticizes Both U.S., Peking

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Chief of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk today accused Communist China of trying to "overthrow our regime" but denied Cambodia's warm welcome to Jacqueline Kennedy meant this neutral nation is swinging toward the West.

At a news conference the portly prince also apologized to American newsmen for a downtown Phnom Penh display of U.S. planes his forces have shot down.

He said he regretted the display particularly since Mrs. Kennedy is visting Cambodia. But Sihanouk said "we would like to shoot down more" because "we have lost 20 Cambodians for every American who died" in border incidents.

Sihanouk declared his recent troubles with Peking stemmed from the Red Chinese effort to destroy his government. At the same time he vigorously denied his invitation to Mrs. Kenney meant he thinks America is winning the war in Vietnam.

He held the conference for more than 100 Western newsmen permitted into Cambodia for the first time in years to cover the Kennedy visit.

Humphrey Praises Indonesia's Freedom

JAKARTA (UPI)—Vice president Hubert H. Humphrey today met the man who smashed Communist China's coup attempt two years ago and ousted President Sukarno. He said Washington found "great comfort in the new government of Indonesia."

"We find comfort because the people in Indonesia have a chance to live in freedom and independence and in self-respect," Humphrey said in a talk to Americans living in Jakarta.

Humphrey arrived in Jakarta earlier today on the final leg of his three-nation Southeast Asian trip. He is the highest ranking American ever to visit Indonesia.

His talks with acting president Suharto were aimed at strengthening America's new friendship with the nation where Communist China suffered its greatest setback in a decade.

Suharto and the entire Indonesian cabinet went to the airport to greet Humphrey while a dozen tanks and armored cars kept tight security.

A motorcade took Humphrey to Indonesia's Freedom Palace for talks with Suharto. The vice president had a two-hour working luncheon at U.S. Ambassador Marshal Green's residence, then spoke to the American community who gathered at the back of the embassy.

Aide Defends State Asylum

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A Danish government official's charge that conditions at Sonoma State Hospital are "shocking" was a description of only the very worst wards, says state Health and Welfare Administrator Spencer Williams.

Williams told newsmen yesterday facilities for the mentally retarded at the hospital are "the best that California has offered in its history."

"They are good. They are better than in most major states," he said.

Williams spoke up after Niels Erik Bank-Mikkelsen, director of the Danish National Service for the Mentally Retarded, had told of "naked people there" and conditions "worse than any institution I have seen in visits to a dozen countries."

Williams said the Dane saw a ward occupied by "physically sound female patients with an I.Q. of less than five." He said the women shed their clothing as soon as they are dressed.

Reagan Warned On Tax Increase

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh declared yesterday it would be a "betrayal" of the taxpayers for Gov. Ronald Reagan to ask for another tax raise next year, and Unruh said he would fight such a request.

"We will not let the administration panic us into another tax increase next year," Unruh declared in a speech prepared for delivery to the California Taxpayers Association.

"I certainly will not support an increase" in 1968, the speaker said.

Reagan has said nothing about seeking a tax increase, but some Democrats have speculated he might seek an additional tax hike next year.

Dr. King May Visit Russia, Aide Says

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)— Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. threatened last night to camp in front of the White House to pressure for congressional action on Negro problems. He also indicated he may visit the Soviet Union.

Addressing a rally of 300 Negroes after his release from the Birmingham jail, King said that until "the Negro's problem is solved, there will be no peace or tranquility in America."

He was to leave for his Atlanta home today.

King, who had served a five-day sentence with three aides for defying a 1963 court order against racial demonstrations, was given standing ovations by the crowd which shouted, "our leader, our leader."

"It is time to get on the highway of freedom to Washington," King said. "We must let it be known that we will stay until our problem is solved. We must put our tents in front of the White House."

The answer to Negro problems, King said, was not in riots, but in nonviolent protests. "My slogan is not 'burn, baby, burn,' but 'build, baby, build, to earn, baby, earn'," King said.

The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, a King aide, said the Nobel Peace prize winner was considering a visit to Moscow in the near future. He said an invitation had been extended King and passports were being prepared. King refused to say who invited him or when the trip might be made.

King earlier had said when he was released from jail that he planned to organize civil disobedience demonstrations all over the country, particularly in the North, in an attempt to get "a recalcitrant congress to move" on economic legislation for Negroes.

He said 200 persons in 10 major cities would be trained "in the discipline of nonviolence" to insure that demonstrations remained nonviolent.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

'Backdoor' Tax Boost Blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., says some of his colleagues who are reluctant to support the income tax surcharge sought by President Johnson are trying to achieve the same effect by boosting Social Security taxes more than necessary.

That's "backdoor" tactics, Hartke said yesterday. He said he will pull out all the stops when the Social Security bill now in the hands of the Senate Finance Committee, of which he is a member, reaches the Senate floor.

While the administration has recommended maintaining the 4.4 per cent payroll tax rate for the time being, the committee has voted to boost it to 5 per cent as of Jan. 1. At the same time, the committee proposes that the tax be levied against the first $8,800 of earnings instead of the first $7,800, as suggested by the administration. The taxable earnings base now is $6,600.

Algeria Keeps Tshombe Alive

ALGIERS (AP) — Ex-Congo Premier Moise Tshombe will not be extradited to the Congo to face a firing squad after all, it has been learned. But Algeria apparently feels it must keep him imprisoned, in a strange outgrowth of Mideastern tensions.

Tshombe had been convicted in absentia of plotting against the regime of Congo President Joseph D. Mobutu. On June 30 he was brought to Algiers in a plane hijacked over the Spanish Balearic Islands. Congolese authorities immediately requested his extradition.

When Mobutu would not accede to Algerian demands that he renounce his ties with the United States and Israel as the price for getting Tshombe, Algerian authorities decided against extradition.

Kerr Urges School Protection

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former University of California President Clark Kerr said last night public universities must be protected against what he called "political interference."

"We must provide public colleges and universities with the same protection from political interference that has marked the private institutions throughout America," he said at a fund-raising dinner for former Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson.

It was the first major public speech given by Kerr since he was fired last January. He had been criticized for his handling of the 1964 demonstrations at Berkeley.

Peace Corps Lags

BERKELEY (UPI) — Peace Corps recruiters at the University of California have reported fewer applications by half than last year, apparently because of the Vietnam war.

"We are considered part of the establishment," recruiter Paul Dorro said yesterday. "Students have told us they would not join the Peace Corps because they believe they would be supporting the Administration's policy in Vietnam."

NATO Aide Quits

BONN (UPI)—West German Lt. Gen. Albert Schenz last night asked that his appointment as NATO's commander-in-chief of European land forces be withdrawn. A government spokesman said it would grant Schnez' request and suggest another name. Informed sources said Schenez withdrew over Dutch objections to his World War II military activity.

Students Soothed

ALGIERS (UPI)—President Houari Boumedienne yesterday personally calmed an auditorium full of university students protesting that the government spent too little on education. He told the students 25 per cent of the national budget goes to education.

Wilson went to the British royal residence where Sunay is staying as a guest of Queen Elizabeth II. Sunay was traveling by train to Scotland today to visit the Clyde Port Authority and the new liner Queen Elizabeth II.

Majority Verdict

CHESTER, England (UPI)—A British jury convicted William John Clarke of murder yesterday by a vote of 10-2. The verdict was the first application of a 34-day-old law which allows juries to bring in a majority verdict provided no unanimous decision is reached after two hours of deliberation and the vote is at least 10-2.

Cosmic Egg Cracked

BURLINGAME (AP)— Police officers seized a window display extolling marijuana in a hippie shop called the Cosmic Egg.

Included were cigarette holders and a plastic bag containing what looked like marijuana leaves.

Richard Tielborg, 20, the shop operator, was booked to appear next Friday on a charge of possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

The grass the police grabbed was simply dried grass, and not the forbidden kind, declared Tielborg.

Survivors Heard

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Rescue crews reached the wreckage today of a Brazilian twin-engine passenger plane which crashed in a fog last night. They reported hearing cries of survivors inside, the governor's palace at Curitiba reported.

A spokesman said word relayed by radio from a mountain peak indicated there may have been six survivors among the 25 persons on board the plane.

Grad Student Draft Is Hit

STANFORD (AP) — Present draft laws threaten possible "catastrophic disruption" of graduate education in the United States, Stanford University's dean of graduate education says.

Dean Virgil Whitaker said Thursday in a statement sent to federal officials and Congress that most graduate students become eligible for the draft after the first year of graduate work, making it "impossible to make even minimal plans" for graduate study.

He said the present practice "may well lead to a catastrophic disruption not only of the individual student's education but of all American higher education."

Joe D. Allen of the building committee said soils tests of the 1.8-acre site at Marin Avenue and Tennessee Valley Road had found five feet of clay and 30 feet of mud above bedrock. About 6,000 cubic yards of fill will be necessary to raise the site to nine feet above high tide, he said.

Christmas Trees Sought Already

The first department store ads have not yet sounded the alert, but a few people have already tagged the Christmas trees they want at tree farms. The crop is good this year, although a little rain and cool weather would help them.

The Bolinas Bay ranch will have about 1,500 trees — Monterey pine, Bishop pine, Douglas fir and Scotch pine — for sale to people who like to cut their own. Frick said the trees grew rapidly, because of last winter's heavy rains.

Confidential Poll Favoring Johnson Leaked To Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private political surveys financed by a mysterious presidential benefactor are providing ammunition for a renewed White House war with national pollsters.

Results of four "confidential" polls, generally favorable to President Johnson, have been leaked to newsmen in recent weeks—the latest yesterday—by individuals with much at stake in Johnson's re-election.

Circulation of the polls, conducted this fall in California, New York, Pennsylvania and New Hampshire, appeared to be part of a planned campaign to offset national surveys casting doubt on Johnson's re-election chances.

Archibald M. Crossley, president of Political Surveys and Analyses Inc., Princeton, N.J., said his firm made the polls under a contract "with a private citizen" whom he declined to identify "because of the confidential relationship."

Crossley's freshly leaked California poll shows Johnson training New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller by one percentage point, 43 to 42, but leading former Vice President Richard M. Nixon 51 to 34, Michigan Gov. George Romney 47 to 31, California Gov. Ronald Reagan 53 to 30 and Illinois Sen. Charles H. Percy 48 to 29.

In contrast with the leaked polls, the latest nationwide Gallup poll showed Johnson lagging behind Rockefeller 54 per cent to 40 per cent, Nixon 49 to 45 and Romney 48 to 45.

State Aide Cites Drugs Culture Risk

(Special to the I-J)

SAN FRANCISCO — Marijuana does not produce a craving for heroin, but pot smokers may graduate to hard drugs through association with a drug culture, the chief of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement said yesterday.

It is "unrealistic" to say young people will not go on to hard drugs "when they live in a drug cluture, know drug users and associate with persons who use heroin," John Storer said in testimony before the Assembly Committee on Criminal Procedure.

Other witnesses said present marijuana attitudes were unrealistic because our culture is drug-saturated, but Storer demurred. "When we drink coffee or have a cocktail," he said, "we're not trying to hallucinate —we're enjoying a pleasant part of life."

Storer said his bureau "could seriously cut down on heroin use" if it didn't spend so much time on marijuana cases.

Tiburon Women On Salvage Shop Staff

New president of the Village Salvage Shop in Tiburon is Mrs. Lowell Airola.

Jean Airola is a graduate of the University of California with a degree in social welfare. She did graduate work in education at the university and has an elementary teacher's credential. She is married to an attorney who practices in San Francisco and they have lived in Tiburon for 15 years. Their children are David, 15, Danny, 13, Leslie, 12, and Jonathan, 10.

Elected to the board of directors of the salvage shop a year ago as a representative of Reed School District Parent-Teachers Club, Mrs. Airola calls the shop, "the main support of the women's groups of the member churches and the parent-teachers club."

Two representatives of each of the participating organizations form the governor's board. The women of Westminster Presbyterian Church, St. Stephens Episcopal Church, St. Hilary's Catholic Church and the Reed District P-TA staff the shop five days a week and their organizations share in the proceeds.

They have one big yearly event, a fall fashion show, held recently, where clothing contributed to the shop is modeled, as well as new clothing donated for the benefit, and boutique items are offered for sale.

Small dinners with good friends top the list of things Mrs. Airola enjoys. Family activities, sewing, swimming, tennis and reading are among her favorite interests.

Serving on the board are Mesdames Bernhardt Wiegant, secretary; Carlisle Becker, treasurer, and Joseph Ramblas, publicity chairman. Mesdames Marguerite Pruett and Walter Long are new directors.

Use A Double Thread When Making Durable Tailor Tack

By EUNICE FARMER

Please tell me how in the world to make a tailor tack that won't pull out when I separate the two layers of fabric?MRS. J. B.

DEAR MRS. J. B.:

Begin with a double thread, never knot the ends. Break a hole in the paper pattern with your needle, take a small stitch through both layers of fabric, leaving the ends of thread extend about 2 inches. Next, take a small stitch in the opposite direction, leaving a loop of thread about 1 inch long. Cut the end of the thread, again leaving 2 inches extending.

Carefully separate the two layers of fabric and cut the threads at the center of the tailor tack. Always remember one point. The loop of the tailor tack must be shorter than the two ends before clipping.

IN ANSWER TO the many of you who have written about having sad experiences using elastic in bathing suits this summer — it seems that when the garment got wet, the elasticity left completely with very frustrating results. From a professional source of information I can tell you this.

The elastic that is often sold over the counter is a rayon covered elastic which is not satisfactory for bathing suit use. The suggestion is to use either a nylon or mercerized cotton elastic. I hope some of you who live in the southern part of our country will write to me and let me know what your new experiences are when using this type of elastic.

DEAR EUNICE,

Have you any information available that will help keep a dress from wrinkling across the thighs when I sit down?MRS. D. S.

DEAR MRS. D. S.:

I think perhaps you are making the skirt too narrow at the hipline. You must have a minimum of at least 2 inches extra fabric for the ease necessary. The size of your legs can also make a difference. The heavier your thighs, the more room you will need to avoid these wrinkles.

I have always found that when you underline a dress, the dress fabric resists wrinkles more than a dress of just one layer of fabric.

Mrs. Ruth Erickson, Coral Gables, Fla. is this week's tailor trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"After many years of sewing, I have finally discovered a quick and easy way to convert my favorite dress or blouse pattern from sleeves to sleeveless. I took the bodice armhole facing pattern from a well fitting sleeveless armhole dress and made myself a permanent copy of this out of lightweight pressed interfacing fabric. Now all I have to do when I want to convert is to simply place my copy over the pattern, pin it in place ad cut. This same pattern can also be used as the facing."

Classes Set On Controlled Fat Diets

Marin homemakers may attend a "Food For Healthy Hearts" a two-session cooking class planned for families on controlled fat (low cholesterol) diets set for Tuesday and on Nov. 14 at the Pacific Gas and Electric Auditorium, Third and Brooks, San Rafael.

Sponsored as public service by the Marin County Heart Association, the sessions will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 each morning, and will be directed by Shirley Sichel, dietitian and Frances Dahl, nutritionist.

Cooking demonstrations and marketing suggestions will be given by the instructing team. There will be no fee. For the complete benefit of the program, both sessions should be attended. The service is designed to help homemakers plan and prepare meals that will reduce the saturated fat content of the family diet.

The series of instruction will also include shopping for low fat foods, lessons on meat selection, adjusting your favorite recipes to fit the diet, and cooking demonstrations (food to sample). To register for the two morning classes, telephone the Marin County Heart Association, San Rafael.

Any recipes offered in the low fat series will be the following:

Easy Hems

2 teaspoon salt
1 egg white
1 cup brown sugar, packed

ARTS FOR A CAUSE

Ross Hospital Gets Gift From Painter

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Philanthropists come in all shapes and sizes but for a combination artist-philanthropist, Louis Dessauer is quite unusual.

He isn't giving his work away because he can't sell it. To the contrary, his sales are frequent. It's just that he's never kept a penny from any of them. The proceeds have always gone to charity and his latest donation of 20 watercolors to the Ross Hospital is just another variation to his longtime theme.

LOANED TO PATIENTS

The entire group will be added to a program that is also unique, the Art a la Cart service operated by the Ross Hospital Volunteer Service. It's a system whereby patients may make a selection free of charge each week from a roving cart loaded with original paintings — a circulating library of art now fattened by donation of Dessauer's watercolors.

As an artist, Dessauer has worked at his craft a relatively short time. A native of San Francisco, he moved to Marin 30 years ago upon retiring from a stock brokerage buisness and though his interests were many, art didn't become an active one for 15 years.

Since then, he has studied all art forms beginning at the College of Marin and exhibiting with the Marin Society of Artists and the Society of Western Artists. He now works one day a week in a large and elaborately equipped studio in the garden of his Ross home from which come sculpture, ceramics (he has his own kiln) and paintings in several media.

He paints more often on location, bringing home around 20 watercolors each year from vacations in Hawaii plus more from vacations in Palm Springs. It is his watercolors, which he says are "99 per cent representational and 1 per cent experiments," which are most numerous and from which the Predominantly landscapes, they depict the sea, mountains and rolling hills in an inviting, yet quiet way. "We tried to select things that would be appropriate for a patient's room — colorful and serene subjects that would be easiest to look at and make the patient happiest."

The group, which may be seen complete through Nov. 10 in the hospital's main reception area-2 center, is in fact the second such group Dessauer has donated to the hospital. The first decorates the walls of the new heart unit and it was this group that gave Mrs. L. C. Carmichael the idea of asking Dessauer to give a few to the Art a la Cart program.

She wrote him a letter and was overwhelmed when he called the next day to tell her she could have all she wanted. Nineteen of their selections were matted and Mrs. Carmichael then arranged for Charles Pedrick of Fairfax to frame them, a feat he accomplished in only two weeks.

HE GIVES, TOO

Pedrick says, jokingly, "It's all I have to do besides fight with my wife. I'm retired." But the truth is, Pedrick is another philanthropist in his own way. A former Ross Hospital patient, he wanted to express appreciation for the care he received and has since framed, free of charge, some 80 paintings for the Art a la Cart program including the 40 donated by San Quentin inmates.

Dessauer also became interested in the hospital's art for very personal reasons. His wife had been hospitalized there several times. In gratitude, she herself donated quite a bit of the specialized equipment in the newly opened heart unit while her husband donated eight paintings to help make the rooms there more attractive.

There have already been many offers to buy these paintings to which Dressnauer is, typically, more than agreeable. He has promised to replace them, requesting that sales be added to the heart unit fund. And of all the reasons artists have to continue painting, it would seem that artist Dessauer has found one of the most satisfying.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Not For Burning' Is Demanding Of Actors

By KARL BARRON

Christopher Fry's witty and charming "The Lady's Not For Burning", written 20 years ago, has become a modern classic. Loaded with poetic allitration, brilliant imagery, and shrewd observation on the condition of man, it is a theatrical showpiece.

Because of its graceful complexity, the dialogue makes heavy demands upon the actors, and it is here that the production, which opened last night at the Festival Theater, fails.

A. J. Esta, who staged a highly successful production in San Francisco several years ago, has directed this one with careful attention to detail, and achieves a maximum of action in a play which easily can become static. He has done his best with the material at hand. But Festival's familiar corps of troupers does not live up to the challenge individually.

Thomas Mendip, the disillusioned, life-weary soldier who asks Mayor Hebble Tyson to hang him for a murder he supposedly has committed, is one of the modern theater's great roles. Dale Moffitt who plays it, is an actor with a tremendous amount of inner fire, but he keeps the flame inside, delivers lines with calculated and mannered pausings, and never allows the poetry to flow with the easy abandon it should have. He looks the part but does not speak it.

As Jennet Jourdayne, the girl condemned to burn as a witch, Carol Brumm is far beyond her depth, giving a juiceless reading which is correct, but seldom reaches more than a surface interpretation.

The most workmanlike job in the show cames from Douglas Saxby, whose cynical justice of the peace rings true to Fry's intention throughout. Robert Adler as the mayor does an excellent portrayal, although he was inaudible at times. Fry's verse is almost as difficult to articulate as Shakespeare's.

Frances Moitoza, a new face at Festival, does a creditable Alizon and Owen Orser's chaplain, wedded to his bass viol, is amusing. David Hunter is convincing as the mayor's clerk. Clifford Dean works too hard at scintillating, J. D. Nichols is dull, and Marjorie Casebier is still somewhere in a straw hat revue.

Donald Stubbs has designed an eye-appealing set, complete with a garden containing a fountain that runs forever. Jim Dickson's lighting is particularly good as day begins to break in the final scene.

It is a great play; it is a great choice by Festival Theater; but it points up that San Anselmo's resident company needs to use new blood now and then.

It will play Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 7:30 through December 9.

EDWARDIAN CHARM
The entry garden of this older home, with its trees and flowers that evoke an earlier era, casts a magic spell over the visitor, and like a time machine takes him back to the world of yesterday. Irene Castle might have taken tea on the spacious, enclosed porch, and then danced her way into the living-dining room with its wainscoating and painted brick fireplace. If you're nostalgic for a gentler time, yet want the conveniences of today, this 3 bedroom, 2 bath house is for you.

Hurricane Danger Season Not Over

By SCIENCE SERVICE

The next hurricane boiling out of the tropical seas may well strike in the Gulf of Mexico, already reeling from the blows of this summer's maelstroms.

Although the 1967 hurricane season is drawing to a close, watchful satellites, airplanes, ships, buoys and radars — all part of the network centered at the National Hurricane Center in Miami, Fla. — remain alert to detect the first signs of other killers brewing above the equator.

Hurricanes can spin out of the Atlantic or Caribbean as late as December, under right conditions of warmth and moisture — although storms in winter are rare. Most hurricanes occur from June through November, with peak rampage in August, September and October. Late storms, for some reason, tend to form in the Gulf of Mexico.

So far, 1967's hurricanes have been off-beat on at least two counts — they were tardy, and they ranged farther west than usual. Twice within 13 days, hurricanes slammed into the western shores of the Gulf, dropping tons of water over low-lying coastal areas of Texas and Mexico.

Hurricane Beulah, third largest in U.S. history, created Mexico's worst flood of the 20th century.

Why so late? And why the Gulf of Mexico instead of the Atlantic where most hurricanes rage? Both quirks can be blamed essentially on the permanent high pressure area called the Bermuda High. Unusually large and powerful early in the season, the High pushed the budding hurricanes so close to the equator they could not mature, or if they did, it shoved them west.

When the Bermuda High, which constantly hovers somewhere in the mid-Atlantic, is powerful, its outward-flowing winds force the low pressure areas of generating storms toward the south.

Close to the equator the Coriolis force — which arises from the rotation of the earth and spins air counter-clockwise in the Northern Hemisphere and clockwise in the Southern — is too weak to start a hurricane. When the Bermuda High is smaller and located northward, hurricanes can generate, hitting the Caribbean islands or the coastal areas of the United States, or sometimes sweeping out into the Atlantic without touching land.

This year, with the high so dominant, no storms rose to hurricane status until the High began shrinking. About a week later, toward the end of August, hurricane Arlene began brewing off the coast of Africa.

The second week in September, a series of hurricanes began forming. Devastating Beulah formed in the Gulf Sept. 7; Chloe, Doria and Edith rose to hurricane strength Sept. 8. Then Fern developed Oct. 2 in the Gulf, and although small, dumped a load of rain over the already soaked fields of Mexico.

All hurricanes in the world — called typhoons in the Pacific, cyclones in the Indian Ocean, and willy-willies in Australia — are spawned in warm sunny tropical seas, in two relatively narrow bands some 5 to 25 degrees north and south of the equator, in an area where the trade winds of the two hemispheres meet and converge.

They start innocently enough as mere "disturbances" of gently whirling winds and slightly lowering pressures. Given a spin from the rotating earth, young hurricanes travel leisurely at first, somewhat parallel to the equator.

Then, feeding on immense energy from warm moist air, the storm systems gain momentum, swinging in great curves northward toward the poles, then back to the east, and dying out as they lose energy in the colder northern regions or over land where there is little source for moisture.

Hurricanes are enormous storms — some of the largest and most destructive on earth. Rotating like giant tops around calm central eyes, they extend some 300 to 600 miles in diameter, tower thousands of feet high and generate winds speeding 75 miles an hour, often as high as 150.

Terrible disasters have been caused by these storms, especially in India and Pakistan where hundreds of thousands of people have been killed by floods and winds of a single storm. The worst hurricane disaster in the United States, in terms of human life, occurred in the Gulf Coast area on Sept. 8, 1900, when a violent hurricane crossed the coast into Galveston, Tex., pushing up high tides and storm waves and killing some 6,000 people in about 24 hours.

While their force has not diminished, greatly improved warning systems have cut the human toll.

Three Burglary Episodes Listed By Deputies

Three burglaries were reported yesterday by sheriff's officers.

Ernest H. Schulze, 336 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley, told deputies Wednesday someone pried a garage door, entering his home and stealing a phonograph, a camera, a ring, and clothing.

The house was ransacked, he said.

Reuben Carrillo, teacher at San Pedro School, 550 San Pedro Road, San Rafael, told officers Monday someone entered an unlocked door of the school, looting rooms of a tape recorder and two film projector lenses.

Chester Bravo, 450 School Lane, Novato, reported Monday that burglars found a hidden key, using it to enter his home and steal $550 in coins from a dining room table. The key was then improperly replaced, he said.

Marin City Job Needs On Agenda

Donald O. Stutsman, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, will discuss employment needs in Marin City at Monday's meeting of the Marin Human Rights Commission's employment committee.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in room 413 of the Civic Center.

Ilys K. Hernandez, secretary of the human rights commission, said the employment committee will also discuss the results of a questionnaire survey conducted to determine what vocational training and job opportunities are available in the county.

War Cuts Into Corps Recruits

BERKELEY (AP)—The Vietnam war is cutting into Peace Corps recruiting at the University of California at Berkeley, a government representative says.

Last fall, a week's recruiting on campus produced some 400 applicants, and as usual the Berkeley figure was twice that of any other American campus.

But this year the numbers have been cut in half and "the war has to be the basic creason," Jon Darrah said Thursday.

Yale Abolishes Grade Figures

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale University eliminated the traditional numerical grading system for undergraduates Thursday night.

More than 600 undergraduate professors decided, by a 10 to 1 margin, to put into immediate effect a "pass-fail" grade system for a five-year trial period.

The Yale Daily News, student newspaper, said four categories for grading were adopted—honors, high pass, pass and fail.

Also abolished, the News said, were class standings.

RED FETE LIGHTS UP MOSCOW

The 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution has brought Moscow to the most-decorated state it has seen in years, even after dark. Lights from a power plant at left and the Kremlin, center, twinkled in the Moscow River last night. Overhead flew a blimp, flashing a huge illuminated portrait of Lenin. (AP Cablephoto)

Will Romney Campaign Run Out Of Steam?

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Gov. George Romney gets in the Republican presidential nomination race Nov. 18, veteran politicians think he may risk wearing out his welcome with the voters in a too-lengthy campaign.

The Michigan governor has said he will disclose his presidential intentions at a state meeting on that date. Almost nobody involved in national politics doubts that he'll go for the prize.

That means that for nearly nine months Romney will have to keep his presidential bandwagon rolling at high speed, a feat his prospective opponents apparently don't care to tackle. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, for example, plans to delay any official entry until mid-January.

MORE TRAVELS

Romney heads for Minneapolis Monday for a GOP workshop before beginning a quick tour of Wisconsin—one of the early primary states—on Tuesday. By midweek he'll be back in Michigan and on Friday in Washington for a briefing on a European tour he expects to make.

An aide said no other out-of-state travel is planned before the Nov. 18 announcement.

The governor toured 10 states last month, including New Hampshire, where the nation's earliest presidential primary will be held March 12. It was a good trip and the reaction was "particularly good in New Hampshire," he said.

DIRKSEN VIEWS

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, not regarded as a Romney rooter, said in an interview he thinks the governor will find it hard to sustain a fast pace over a long pull. There is always the danger of overexposure and wearying the voters with what he has to say, Dirksen said.

Wallace Gets Cheers In Southland

LONG BEACH (AP)— Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace —buoyed by an enthusiastic Orange County response—winds up his six-day California tour tonight in his campaign to get on the state ballot as a third-party candidate.

At his appearance at the Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa last night, outlining the philosophy of his American Independence Party, he declared.

"The people of Alabama feel like you do in Orange County."

At one point about two dozen young persons in the audience of 3,600 sent up a howling yell and raised their hands in a "V for a victory" sign.

An unidentified man then rushed the youths and hit one. Wallace stopped speaking, cautioned his audience to be calm, and police hurried the man out.

Deputy registrars from Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino and Orange counties registered voters' names under Wallace's party. The Orange County table did the briskest business.

In Los Angeles, meanwhile, Eugene L. Wyman, California Democratic national committeeman, asserted that Wallace represented "a backlash symbol" who appealed to emotions rather than reason.

"With the John Birch Society, the Minutemen and other right-wing organizations flourishing in California, we do not need Mr. Wallace and his Alabama storm troopers," Wyman declared.

U.S. Revamps Timetable For Its Apollo Launches

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— The U.S. space agency today revised its Project Apollo launch timetable for the rest of the decade and announced that two manned flights will be attempted next year and five in 1969.

The agency also inserted extra unmanned test flights of the Saturn 5 moon rocket and the Apollo moon landing lunar module into next year's schedule, boosting the unmanned Apollo tests for 1968 to four.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said it was still possible that the initial manned flight to the moon could come with the last Saturn 5 launch scheduled in 1969. But NASA also said that long-awaited moon shot may be delayed to one of the six manned Saturn 5 launches set for after the turn of the decade.

The schedule revision came as launch crews prepared the first of the 363-foot moon rockets for a crucial unmanned flight test Thursday.

As of a few months ago, NASA had hoped to get off three manned Apollo launchings next year and up to six in 1969. But the insertion of a third unmanned Saturn 5 test flight into the schedule and delays in preparing the first manned Apollo for launch erased those plans.

The initial manned flight of the Apollo, an earth orbital mission to be made with a Saturn 1 rocket, remains scheduled for next July or August. Astronauts Walter Schirra, Donn Eisele and Walter Cunningham will make the 10-day flight.

The revised 1968 launch schedule:

First unmanned test flight of the lunar module in earth orbit.

Second unmanned flight test of the Saturn 5 rocket with an Apollo command and service module combination.

Third unmanned test of the Saturn 5 with an Apollo spacecraft.

Second unmanned test light of the lunar module in earth orbit.

First manned Apollo earth orbital flight, a 10-day mission set for next July or August.

First manned Apollo flight with a Saturn 5 rocket. The mission will be a high earth orbital flight and will provide the first manned test of the entire Apollo spacecraft together in a rehearsal for moon flight operations.

Builder Defends F-111 Against Its Critics

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The supersonic F111 is neither hopelessly overweight nor performing unsatisfactorily, the president of General Dynamics says.

The sleek swing-wing warplane is meeting its primary objectives, it is not behind schedule and it is not caught up in a price increase, he added. Frank W. Davis gave yesterday his first public defense of the controversial aircraft since General Dynamics was selected over Boeing in 1962 to produce the plane — first called the TFX.

To hear the company's side of the story, General Dynamics invited a number of aviation writers from the East to attend what was described as a "background session."

Davis told the writers that critics of the F111 "are for the most part too smart to be inaccurate" in their charges, but "I would say the impression they are giving is inaccurate."

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the permanent Senate investigating subcommittee, has called the F111 program a multibillion dollar blunder.

Using charts and film, Davis attempted to disprove this statement, based at least in part on the claim that the Navy version, the F111B, is too overweight to land on carriers.

"The F111B can operate from all carriers it was intended to and no modifications to the carriers are necessary to handle its weight," he said.

Much of the weight problem is being offset with an increase in the plane's maximum lift capability, he said.

Davis said the F111 overshadows the F105 and the F4 which it is designed to replace and indicated that it is also superior to new Soviet jet fighters.

The second "production" model of the F111A, the Air Force version, was flown Thursday to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., where the 4480th Tactical Fighter Wing is being formed.

By mid-1968, Davis said, eight of the aircraft will be rolling off the assembly lines monthly. The plane is charted for action in Southeast Asia but the target date is classified.

Space Rocks Risk Found To Be Higher

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plans for multi-month space missions may need revision because the solar system contains more rocky debris than had been thought, some scientists reported yesterday.

They said that experiments conducted at the Ames Research Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in Mountain View (Santa Clara County) indicates the chances of a spacecraft being punctured in flight is six times greater than previously supposed.

Since the forthcoming trips to the moon by Apollo astronauts will take only about eight days each, the new findings may not affect the timetable for the lunar landings.

But they would have a bearing on protection of spacecraft and men in the much longer planetary voyages — lasting more than a year—which have been imagined for some time in future decades.

The calculations indicating that meteoroids are more prevalent in space than previously thought were made by scientists using wind tunnels to study the nature of the rocky particles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bowel Can Take Punishments Of Jolts, Harsh Food, Bacteria

VAN DELLEN

The bowel is a bear for punishment. Harsh foods, strong digestive ferments, bacteria, and parasites irritate it from within. It is jolted from without by the nervous system, particularly when the individual is upset emotionally.

Many of our troubles "settle in the stomach" because anything that aggravates the nervous system usually affects digestion and the muscles of the intestine. This explains why upsets with mother-in-law, the boss, or financial difficulties induce "butterflies" in various parts of the abdomen.

OVERWORKED individuals who get too little sleep or are besieged with nervous stress are equally susceptible. The bowel clamps down on itself in a fit of spasm. Occasionally pain is so severe the sufferer doubles up to obtain relief. These attacks can be transient or may last for days or weeks.

Spasm is not provoked by eating bland foods or by exercise and usually subsides with rest and relaxation.

When X-rays and other studies are negative the physician may call the disorder "nerves" or by its more technical name, spastic or issitable colon. This does not imply that the victim is imagining his symptoms.

WHEN EVERYTHING is organically sound and the medico is unable to find anything wrong, he means that the patient's distress is not due to cancer, tumor, gallstones, obstruction, or inflammation.

The organs are healthy but are not working properly because they are irritated. The intestine is as sensitive to bombardments from the brain as the skin of some people is hypersensitive to the rays of the sun.

ANTISPASMODIC drugs (belladonna of atropine), or compounds such as Pro-Banthine, Antrenyl, Prantal, or Elorine sulfate deaden the nerves going to the intestine. Tranquilizing agents are also beneficial.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

OLD FIBROID

Mrs. R.N. writes: I've had a fibroid tumor in the uterus for 25 years but it has never bothered me. Does this call for any treatment? I'm in the menopause?

REPLY

No. Fibroids of the uterus tend to shrink after the menopause. Surgical removal usually is not advised unless the tumors are large and bleeding or when the diagnosis is uncertain and there is a possibility of malignancy. Fibroids do not become cancerous. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on these tumors.

DROWSINESS

M.C.L. writes: I get 10 hours sleep every night yet I can lie down and sleep any time of the day. Can you tell why?

REPLY

No, but your physician may be able to find the answer. There are several abnormalities that could be responsible.

CATARACT

M.P. writes: How long are symptoms of cataract present before operation is done?

REPLY

Surgery usually is recommended when practical vision is lost.

PAINLESS CANCER

Mrs. V. writes: Is stomach cancer painless?

REPLY

Yes, and it may escape detection until in a far-advanced stage.

COOL ROOM

F.J. writes: Is it safe for an arthritic person to sleep in an air conditioned room?

REPLY

Yes, if the cold air does not increase aching or stiffness.

SMOKING

Mrs. R.E.B. writes: My husband stopped smoking five years ago after his doctor diagnosed Buerger's disease. He also takes pills, but he still suffers from leg pains every few weeks. Did it do any good for him to give up cigarettes?

REPLY

Yes — giving up tobacco usually retards the progress of the malady. He may lose his feet if he starts to smoke again.

GAS FUMES

A.S. writes: Whenever I take my son to the sports car races, the smell of gas fumes remains in my nose for a week. How can this problem be overcome?

REPLY

Take him to a football or a baseball game instead.

HOUSEBOUND SCIATICA

Mrs. E.K. writes: I feel lonesome and nervous when I'm in the house alone. Could sciatica be responsible?

REPLY

I doubt it. The opposite is more likely; when we are lonely and feeling sorry for ourselves, pain seems more acute.

TRUE VERTIGO

Mrs. A. writes: Can anything be done about Meniere's disease?

REPLY

Symptoms such as ear noises, dizziness, and nausea often are difficult to relieve but several treatments are available. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on Meniere's syndrome.

Today's Health Hint — The person with nosebleed should remain quiet.

Milwaukee Offers Lessons For Marin

MILWAUKEE — The city that bases its claim to fame on its beer is self-conscious and embarrassed about last summer's race riots.

And it is still smarting from the loss of its big league baseball team, the Braves, now of Atlanta.

When Wisconsin Press Association president A. L. Peterman welcomed National Newspaper Association convention delegates last week, this self-consciousness was evident.

When Wisconsin Gov. Warren P. Knowles addressed the visiting newspapermen, his apparent embarrassment was even more painfully evident.

Milwaukee and the whole state of Wisconsin had a long history of dedication to the brotherhood of man concept and almost as long a history of extending public assistance to those in need of it. The race riots came as a painful surprise.

"WE MUST DEAL WITH the causes . . .

"We must all get involved . . ."

That was the heart of the governor's comments on the subject.

Unfortunately, he had nothing to say on the specifics of the causes or the specifics of "getting involved," in solving the dilemma of the city.

The managing editor of the Milwaukee Journal, Richard H. Leonard, outlined some facts of the situation.

Milwaukee and all of Wisconsin are undergoing the same changes that all of the U.S.A. is experiencing. Our nation is becoming urbanized at an ever-increasing rate as metropolitan areas grow at the expense of rural areas. At the same time, the flight to the suburbs from the inner city continues. The federal Census Bureau says that the major central cities of the nation now comprise less than 60 million population. Combined suburban population around these same cities has risen to more than 65 million.

NOT ONLY DO the affluent leave the poor behind in the flight from inner city to suburb, but the unskilled, poorly educated Negro flocks to northern cities to complicate the situation.

Milwaukee's Negro population in the 1940 census was approximately 9,000. Today it is 90,000. Many of the 9,000 of 1940 were well-established, long-time residents with education and labor skill.

Half of the ten-fold growth since then has brought unskilled, poorly educated Negroes from Deep South agricultural areas. They are largely unemployable in northern industry.

Milwaukee has 10,000 Negro children in its public schools who know no father.

The root of the so-called ghetto problem is in reality the problem of the displaced person, in vast numbers.

WHEN MILWAUKEE MAYOR Henry W. Maier spoke to United Press International editors and publishers in San Francisco last month, he was most pessimistic about the cities' ability to deal with their problems at all. They just don't have the tax base to provide the necessary money, he indicated.

In Milwaukee last week, editor Leonard called for "cooperation between the cities, towns and villages in our metropolitan areas."

Suburbs cannot prosper unless the central city is healthy, he noted.

When he finished hammering at this point, it seemed he really meant to say "support from" instead of "coperation between" suburbs and inner city.

There is a message here for all of us here in Marin.

We are going to become increasingly affected by what goes on in San Francisco. It will become increasingly evident that San Francisco cannot solve its inner problems without help from the suburbs.

The inevitability of a city income tax on commuters becomes clearly evident.

THERE IS MORE TO IT than simply money shortage. The war on poverty effort of the federal government has indicated plainly that money alone will not solve the problem.

"The suburbs must recognize that the city's crisis involves everyone everywhere," said editor Leonard. No one anywhere can any longer say honestly that "it doesn't concern me."

The solution starts with getting whites to understand the plight of the minorities, "why they cannot live and behave like everyone else," he observed.

The facts must be dug out and publicized. Prejudice must be replaced with understanding. This, said Leonard, is a job for the press.

AS MIGHT BE EXPECTED, the Milwaukee Journal managing editor and the mayor operate what might be called a mutual criticism society.

The mayor blames the press in part for the riot problems of last summer.

The editor criticizes the mayor for advocating suppression of news from the public.

The mayor says the newspapermen do not have the full picutre; they cannot see the problem clearly.

The editor says that, not having to run for re-election, they can see things more objectively than the mayor.

It all has a familiar sound — like an I-J editor debating with a Marin mayor.

It proves once more the truth of what a philosophic I-J janitor used to say about the news, "Same thing every day; just different people doing it."

GOD'S GROWING GIBRALTAR

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

OPPORTUNITIES ARE TO BE SOUGHT

A young man, ambitious to succeed, asked a prominent merchant for the secret of his success.

"There is no easy or simple secret," the merchant answered. "You must be on the alert for little things and jump at opportunities."

"But how can I tell the opportunities when they come?"

"You can't!" the older man replied. "You just have to keep jumping!"

Disraeli put it another way when he commented: "The secret of success is for a man to be ready for his opportunity when it comes."

Opportunities come in all sizes and shapes. They are God's way of offering us a free choice to do His work in the world.

Seize them and you can open up fresh possibilities of service to those who rightly expect your help.

Squander them and the good left undone may mean remorse for you — and frustration for others.

"Behold now is the acceptable time, behold now is the day of salvation!"
(2 Corinthians 6:2)

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Youngsters Forget Thanks For Treats

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Each year we prepare for "Trick or Treat" and leave our outside lights on. We get quite a kick out of the kids and their many and varied costumes. One little boy had a bag as big as he was. Sometimes the costumes follow a certain theme but this year there were very few alike.

We were surprised that so few of the youngsters said, thank you. One little boy to whom WE said thank you, said you're welcome.

Just out of curiosity we started checking, out of thirty-eight children, five said thank you.

Politeness, manners and consideration for others is fast disappearing from our society but it makes one wonder about the homes of these children and the training they had.

Marines Deserve Anniversary Honor

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Nov. 10, the United States Marine Corps, will celebrate its 192nd birthday.

Since 1775, the Marines have fought on beachheads across the world from Providence to Southeast Asia. Before Con Thien, Da Nang, and Chu Lai, there was Tripoli, Harpers Ferry, Belleau Wood, Iwo Jima, Guadacanal, Inchon, Korea, to name but a few of the milestones in their fight to preserve the freedom and dignity of man.

Let us honor the men who have served and are now serving in the Marine Corps and express our gratitude for their service and sacrifices for their Country and mankind by displaying our flag, the one they so proudly serve, on Nov. 10.

Treatment Of Flag Part Of Patriotism

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Recently a fellow teacher commented to me what a sad state of affairs it was that he was more or less the only one who took the daily Oath of Allegiance seriously in his class. He is one who suffered much in a concentration camp of the last war.

Mothers who . . . want to teach their children a life-sustaining value system are advised to compare the enclosed two items of one issue of the I-J:

No. 1, an editorial title, "Anti-War Riots: Sign of Sickness."

No. 2, " a fancy cover-up at club." Notice the lady on the left and the item she desecrated.

What are your conclusions what this mother, or this club, or your paper, are in fact teaching?

Another Voice For Mobile Homes

Editor, Independent-Journal:

My husband and I have read with much interest the controversy in the papers in regard to the proposed mobile home parks for the Novato area.

We are very much interested in this subject as we are now putting our home up for sale because of taxes, etc., and plan on moving to Santa Rosa because of the lack of a suitable mobile home park in or near Novato. We would rather stay in Novato because our friends, church and associations are all here. We have lived here 16 years. But now we have no choice. Our retirement income does not permit the luxury of this expensive home living. The recent tax hike was the last straw.

We hope that sometime in the near future some nice mobile parks can be built in Novato and we could move back. Maybe some day the Marin County planning commissioners will wake up and realize that they are chasing the retired people from their homes in the county.

High Praise For New I-J Reporter's Work

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Don Branning's by-line has become something to look for in the good gray I-J. His story of the Nicasio School Board meeting at which Mrs. (Garnet) Brennan was fired was the best piece of journalism to appear in your paper in the 20 years I've been reading it.

New Bombing Halt Likely Peace Feeler

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometime in the next few months President Johnson is likely to stop bombing North Vietnam in a new test of possibilities for ending the Vietnamese war.

Such action has been widely and persistently demanded by critics of the President's war policy, and many officials consider it virtually inevitable. But they hold little hope now it will lead to peace talks.

On the contrary, there is growing belief here the war may never be settled by negotiations—in the end it may simply fade away, with Communist military operations subsiding into small scale guerrilla activity and terrorism.

THE BASIC assumption underlying this view is that U.S. and allied military might will prevail over enemy forces in South Vietnam and will make the war too costly for North Vietnam to continue.

The bombing of North Vietnam is considered by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk to be an important means of imposing that heavy cost yet also is a pressure which can be withdrawn when timing is right to probe President Ho Chi Minh's attitude toward peace.

U.S. leaders believe if Ho Chi Minh does not negotiate short of defeat, he will see his forces in the South and his resources in the North slowly ground down to a state of military impotence. They assume he will want to stop the war before that point is reached and retire to rebuild his strength and perhaps to fight again another time.

THE GAME of trying to read the minds and assess the intentions of the government in Hanoi has been going on for almost three years.

Opinion here on peacemaking has vacillated between the feeling Ho would agree to negotiations and the thought he will refuse to do so on any terms acceptable to President Johnson.

The greater emphasis now given to the fade away theory is due in part to Ho's persistence so far in rejecting Johnson's various overtures and those of many other would-be peacemakers.

Officials note that North Vietnamese spokesmen have said repeatedly for the past year that if President Johnson halted the bombing unconditionally there could have been talks.

But they have never been willing to say flatly that there would be talks.

SOVIET AND OTHER Communist officials have said talks would be held in three or four weeks if Johnson stopped the bombing. But U.S. officials say even the Soviets were unable to commit Hanoi definitely to negotiations if the bombings were stopped on Hanoi's terms.

U.S. officials who hold the fade-away theory say there might be deeper reasons why Ho is unwilling to negotiate. One such possible reason is that in the peace exchanges thus far through diplomatic channels no party has succeeded in producing a compromise peace formula.

Another argument advanced by U.S. officials is that Ho may wish to avoid any kind of international inspection system to guarantee enforcement of whatever agreements were made for the future of South Vietnam.

In spite of these arguments no one in Washington is able to say the view in Hanoi will not change with the changing circumstances of the war. This is the major reason why Johnson administration officials say the United States must continue to probe for peace.

Halting the bombing is a far more serious action for President Johnson than putting a new peace proposal into diplomatic channels or writing another letter to Ho Chi Minh, however.

The nation's military leaders have made known their opposition to any respite for North Vietnam.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Wallace Proves He Ha Political Salesmanship

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace usually is passed off as a joker from Dixie — a medicine man peddling racist notions unacceptable in more enlightened sections of the nation.

But that image just did not hold water in the eyes of thousands of persons who saw him speak this week in a barnstorming tour to get on Califoria's presidential ballot next year. They liked him, and signed up in droves to work for him.

WALLACE WAS NOT selling racism here — at least not overtly. He was selling the notion that the average man is being trampled by "pseudo-intellectuals" in the federal government and in the courts. These "pseudo-intellectuals" have destroyed the "domestic institutions," he charged — emphasizing court rulings "that tell parents where their children must go to school."

His pitch was that he, unlike either major party, offered a choice to citizens "alarmed by the trends sweeping the country."

His audiences were composed mostly of middle class, middle aged persons — who make up a big chunk of the population.

IN AN INTERVIEW with Wallace on Monday, this reporter was assured repeatedly by the former governor that he is not a racist. Wallace painted a picture of bucolic bliss in Alabama, with both races living contentedly side by side.

"We get along just fine," he insisted, "because we know you just can't mix the races and still have harmony."

Wallace has a habit of emphasizing his arguments by tapping his listener's shoe with his own. Or thumping his listener's knee with a knuckle.

That was not nearly so disconcerting as the seven armed bodyguards sitting in the outer room of his hotel suite. A slight gap in the impressive show of security was the guards' failure to check on the identity of visitors.

WALLACE TERMED Gov. Ronald Reagan "a fine type, and very personable," but declined to say whether Reagan's nomination for president would mean Wallace would not run. Wallace started out on a third party ticket in 1964, but dropped out of the race, explaining he did not want to split the Goldwater vote.

Reagan wasn't quite so charitable as Wallace when asked Tuesday to comment on Wallace's candidacy. "Why should I comment?" asked Reagan. "He's a registered Democrat, so he's their problem."

Reagan, however, conceded that if Wallace led a third party ticket "he could hurt the Republican Party."

Asked if Wallace could get the necessary 66,058 persons registered in his party to qualify for the California ballot, Reagan said "almost anyone could get that many names on a ballot for almost any cause. We have had some pretty far-out and weird parties that have been able to get on the ballot."

One thing is certain—no matter how "far out" Wallace seems, he is developing a following in Reagan's own state.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

They say a flying saucer landed squarely in front of Miami Beach's Fontainebleu Hotel recently, and out of it poured a score of little, little men. "What do you fellows want?" quavered a doorman, poised for flight. The leader seemed puzzled by his perturbation. "There's only one thing we really want," he beamed. "Little women."

A lazy boss instructed his Girl Friday to write a stiff letter to a customer whose account was four months overdue. He deemed her first two attempts too insulting. "After all," he explained, "we don't want to lose his trade permanently. He's got plenty of dough; just hates to part with any of it." So she prepared a third draft. "This is more like it," the boss enthused. "He won't get too angry at this one. Just correct two mistakes in spelling.

'Crook' is spelled with a 'C', not a 'K. And 'swine' does not call for a capital 'S'."

Super Rocket Set For Mighty Flight

By JIM STROTHMAN

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — In a mission described as "the most awe-inspiring weight-lifting act in history," America's first Saturn 5 super rocket is set to blast off as the initial flight test of the type booster that will launch men to the moon.

Taller than the Statue of Liberty and packing more power than 6,000 Boeing 707 airliners, the 363-foot-tall rocket is to hoist an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,400 miles into space as a punishing preliminary to the manned lunar voyage.

The mammoth Saturn 5 is more powerful than any rocket ever launched, including any claimed by Russia. It stands more than 3½ times taller than the two-man Gemini-Titan 2 launch vehicles and can lift 280,000 pounds into earth orbit or 94,000 pounds to the moon. Gemini spacecraft, by comparison weighed about 7,000 pounds.

The launch will mark the first flight test of the Saturn 5's 7.5-million-pound thrust first stage and one-million-pound thrust second stage, the first operational use of America's man-to-the-moon launch complex and the first test of an Apollo moonship in deep space.

The spacecraft, called Apollo 4, is to re-enter earth's atmosphere faster and hotter than any previous craft. It is to dive back into the atmosphere at 25,000 miles an hour, building temperatures of more than 4,500 degrees Fahrenheit on its heat-shield to test re-entry conditions astronauts will encounter returning from the moon.

This first unmanned test is to last more than 8½ hours from liftoff to splashdown, but to millions of television viewers watching the six-million-pound booster blast off, the first few seconds are expected to be the most spectacular.

"It will be the most awe-inspiring weight-lifting act in history," predicted an official with North American Aviation, Inc., builder of the Apollo spacecraft and the Saturn 5 second stage.

The booster's first stage is expected to burn nearly nine seconds before thrust is built up to a point where liftoff is possible. It is expected to rise so slowly that the entire rocket will not clear its launch tower until 12 seconds after liftoff.

At the end of the first stage's two-and-one-half-minute burn, however, the vehicle will be 44 miles high, 115 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy and traveling at 6,100 miles an hour.

A six-minute burn of the million-pound-thrust second stage — largest hydrogen-fueled rocket in the world — is to increase the speed to more than 15,300 miles and hour. A two and one-half-minute firing of the third stage is to drive the payload into earth orbit.

After two trips around this planet, the rocket's third stage — with the Apollo 4 spacecraft still attached — must restart to propel the moonship toward its peak altitude of 11,400 miles over North Africa.

There, finally overcome by earth's gravity, the spaceship is to begin its long descent toward the Pacific Ocean. A spacecraft engine will be fired to build up speed to 25,000 miles an hour for the heat-shield test.

Three big parachutes are to deploy at an altitude of 10,200 feet, slowly lowering Apollo 4 to awaiting recovery ships 600 miles north of Hawaii, where it is to land at only 20 miles an hour — the same force a swimmer would encounter jumping off a 12-foot diving board.

Behind The News

Independent-Journal, Saturday, Nov. 4, 1967 19

Skeptics Eye BART'S Dim Future

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— "Are they going to fill up the holes and call the whole thing off?"

This is the question being asked by many skeptics in the San Francisco Bay area about the highly touted rapid commuter railway under construction.

They look at the streets torn up in Oakland, Berkeley and San Francisco by the project originally referred to as the "largest engineering endeavor" in the western world, and then point to funds dissolved by inflation.

The Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) system is being built and nothing is further from the truth that it will not be completed, insist BART officials.

The nagging question about BART's financial funding problems remain, however, with the hopeful commuter murmuring, "Where has the money gone?" and "Are we paying for a system that starts nowhere and goes nowhere?"

BART was backed by a near billion dollar bond issue in November, 1962, one of the largest ever passed by a metropolitan area. It took two-thirds of those voting to pass the issue. The amount of the bond issue was $792 million.

WILL TRAINS ROLL?—A visitor to BART's test station of rapid transit elevated "T" track in Pleasant Hill (Contra Costa County) ponders whether the system will ever be completed. As originally designed, the system would link metropolitan San Francisco and Oakland to many outlying communities that may now find rail transit years in the future. (UPI Telephoto)

As originally proposed, the concept was to create a rapid transit system for the nine-county area around San Francisco Bay. But with the option to join it later, six counties bowed out before the issue was presented to voters.

That left San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa counties still active in the BART immediate plans and carrying the tax load.

BART, a quasi-governmental agency with powers to ask for further bond issues, has been faced with legal and financial obstructions since its inception.

Fifty-seven miles of the originally proposed 75-mile system now are under construction or contract. But not enough money is in the kitty for the remaining 18 miles. These 18 miles are extensions of the lines which would serve suburban communities.

Meanwhile BART has been forced to guard its funds to cover budgeted contract costs, releasing only enough to cover current contracts and holding a reserve against the future. The money is still there.

But those who voted for the entire system want the whole shebang completed before trains run. It originally was planned to operate trains in the Oakland-East Bay area before completion of the tunnel beneath the bay, the heart of the entire system.

BART now has promised the several communities involved on both sides of the bay nothing will run until all is operating. Meanwhile, the communities and BART will seek additional funds from the state to complete those 18 miles.

BART offers many explanations for its present financial difficulties.

General Manager B. R. Stokes told a recent hearing three factors were involved. They were: inflation in the economy, delay of a taxpayers' suit and delay in making alternate studies for many communities.

The crucial problem at the moment is whether BART can raise enough money to complete the 75-mile system by its target date in 1971-72.

In the meantime, bay area commuters, faced with packed buses and snarled freeways, still dream of high-speed, air conditioned trains.

State Employment Offices Run Quietly And Smoothly

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One doesn't hear too much about a state department unless it's in trouble of one kind or another. And lately, there hasn't been much in the public print about the state Department of Employment, which is one of the state's largest.

The department has some 10,000 employees scattered throughout the state. Its job is to provide jobs for people out of work, and failing that, to pay unemployment insurance to eligible claimants, as well as disability insurance to those who qualify.

One doesn't hear much about the department these days for a good reason. The new director, Peter Weinberger, wants it that way. He seeks to keep the department running like a well-oiled machine, functioning in accordance with the complicated unemployment insurance code, and doing its work to the best of the ability of the thousands of employees throughout the state.

The department, he feels, is an integral part of the state. The never-ending task of matching men and jobs will go on as long as there's work to be performed. And in addition, unemployment insurance is here to stay, as the major social reform effected by the legislature back in 1935 represents a forward step in the economy of the state and nation.

And the most effective method of accomplishing the job, Weinberger feels, is to do it without fanfare, principally in carrying out the requirements of the law as dictated by the Legislature.

"Right from the beginning," he said recently, "I announced it would be the policy of the department to stay away from the Legislature unless invited to testify. We've got enough to do over here carrying out the provisions of the law without trying to make the law as well."

The Legislature responded rather well to this attitude. It had no changes of any significance in the Unemployment Insurance Code, both because the department didn't urge any changes, and because business and labor called a sort of unwritten truce over benefits.

Weinberger said his appointment as director was a surprise even to him. He was urged to apply for the post, and won out over a couple of other contenders when members of Gov. Ronald Reagan's task force made the selection.

He was the president of a small business in San Bruno, which was engaged in the distribution by licensing of a patented process for anodizing aluminum, as well as the actual manufacture of anodized aluminum.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Two Topics Due At Special Session

By CAPITAL NEWS SERVICE

SACRAMENTO — The California legislature, scheduled to meet in special session Nov. 6 to consider drawing new boundaries for the state's 38 congressional districts, has had at least one more task handed to it.

Gov. Ronald Reagan announced he would call a second special session, to run concurrently with the one on reapportionment, to consider tax relief for victims of the recent Southern California county fires. The legislature will be asked to authorize boards of supervisors and other local taxing agencies to reassess property damaged in the fire.

Reagan declared a state of disaster in the southern California counties affected by the recent fires—Los Angeles., Orange and San Diego. This will permit state and federal aid to the areas.

Reagan's office still was considering whether to add Medi-Cal to the special session agenda. However, indications were he would not because the regular session of the legislature will open in only two months. In addition, the state's appeal from a superior court ruling which prohibited it from making across-the-board cuts in benefits, was heard in the State Supreme Court this week. The court normally does not issue decisions for a matter of weeks and Reagan's office has indicated it would delay calling a special session until the court had acted.

Financial problems already are stacking up for the 1968 session of the Legislature, which will meet on Jan. 7. Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post said present revenues should produce enough money to balance a rock-bottom budget and do one of two other things: finance capital outlay construction or provide tax relief for property owners. But not both.

The school finance bill of the 1967 session provided that, if property tax relief is not granted, the sales tax would drop from 4 to 3½ per cent, so it appears the lawmakers are committed to property tax relief. Post said capital outlay, in such cases, would have to be financed either by a bond issue or another tax increase.

The first re-payment of state income taxes had a deadline of Oct. 31 and it soon appeared the response and compliance may be a bit higher than expected.

The franchise tax board sent 370,000 notices to persons who paid $200 or more in state income taxes for 1966, notifying them half that amount was due on Oct. 31. By mid-day of Thursday, the board said it had received about 330,000 pre-payments, with estimated revenues of $110-$115 million. The department of finance had estimated the state would receive about $115 million of the $145 million due in the pre-payments.

Governor Reagan has issued and angry denial to Drew Pearson's column claiming that former staff members had been fired because of alleged homosexual activities. Reagan said there was no truth to the report, nor to a report that his communications director, Lyn Nofziger, had leaked the story to reporter during the recent governors' conference, aboard ship en route to the Virgin Islands.

A majority of willful homicides in California for the period 1963-65 involved family or domestic conflicts or quarrels among friends or associates. The state bureau of criminal statistics reported on a study of 2,042 deaths from willful homicides for the period and said 609 involved domestic or family conflicts; 557 were among friends or associates; 318 related to criminal activities; 320 were altercations among strangers; and there was no information in the others.

A total of 2178 persons were arrested, 1667 prosecuted and 1232 convicted. About 16 of the men prosecuted were convicted of first degree murder but only 3.5 per cent of the women were convicted of first degree murder.

The bureau also issued a report showing teen-age arrests for use of marijuana and dangerous drugs during the first half of 1967 jumped 181 per cent for marijuana and 90 per cent for dangerous drugs. Adult drug arrests, up from 12,787 a year ago, totaled 20,134 for the six months, an increase of 57.5 per cent. For the first time, the report showed the incidence of LSD arrests. LSD was the sole cause for arrests in 1.1 per cent of the cases and was involved in 3.4 per cent of all arrests.

A $134 million pay increase and benefit package has been asked for 1968 by the California State Employees Association. The CSEO made its proposal to the state personnel board, which will make its recommendations to the Governor in late December. The CSEA called for a general 5.5 per cent pay increase, a 3.4 per cent increase in other direct salary payments, and $45 million to provide special equity increases ranging from 5 to 15 per cent, fo selected classes.

Birth control discussions may be initiated by social workers with welfare recipients for the first time, under a new policy of the department of social welfare which takes effect Dec. 1.

John C. Montgomery, director, emphasized that family planning services suggested to recipients must be "free from coercion or pressure or any persuasion to accept family planning service against his or her will." He said the new policy was in line with the philosophy of the U.S. public health service and resolutions approved by the past two sessions of the California legislature.

The State Park Commission has recommended 28 park projects for the 1968-69 budget.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

At any other time or place the occasion would have been entirely festive—a gay reception celebrating the inauguration of a new president.

But this was Saigon and the time was 1967.

Thus when the sounds of explosions were heard many of the diplomats, politicians and socialites gathered in Saigon's Independence Palace knew the enemy could not be far away.

The Communists, it was said, were trying to score at least a propaganda victory to mar the inauguration of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and the visit of American Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Humphrey was chatting with the wife of an American newsman when the four mortar shells landed only 200 yards away on the palace grounds.

"I hope that was a salute," the woman said. "I hope so, too," the vice president replied, but added in an aside to another guest, "I don't think so."

The party originally was to have been held in a garden outside the palace but a sudden rainstorm chased the guests indoors. The rainstorm may have averted a disaster. None of the guests was injured. Two persons outside the palace were killed and one wounded.

After winding up his four-day mission to Vietnam, Humphrey flew to Malaysia and Indonesia in the continuing American effort to win friends for American policy in Vietnam.

BAY FILL SLOWED

Bridgeway Only Marin Project

Only one permit to fill one acre of tideland has been granted in Marin County since the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission was formed two years ago, commission director Joseph E. Bodovitz has reported.

In all, the commission has granted permits to fill 45 acres around the bay, but plans to fill 10 of these acres have been dropped, Bodovitz told commissioners Thursday. The fill approved in Marin was to widen Bridgeway in Sausalito.

Bobovitz did not have figures on the amount of fill which occurred in the two years before the commission was created, but was certain it was far more than 45 acres.

The 45 acres did not include filling behind dikes which were begun before the commission assumed power over filling. The commission has this power while it draws a master plan for use of the bay, which it is to present to the legislature in 1969.

The commission granted 37 of the 48 applications it heard, Bodovitz said. Nine were denied and two withdrawn.

Most of the approved fill was in connection with waterfront development for public access and recreation in San Leandro and Berkeley, Bodovitz said. The other permits involved piers, dredging, breakwaters and pipelines under the bay.

90 Days Given On Back Checks

Gordon Keith Jennings, 20, was given 90 days in county jail and placed on two years probation yesterday in Marin Superior Court for passing worthless checks.

Judge Harold J. Haley also ordered him to make restitution. Jennings, of 25 Sierra Vista, Novato, had pleaded guilty to passing $130 worth of bad checks with intent to defraud Montgomery Ward and Co., Corte Madera, in December.

He also was scheduled for preliminary hearing today in Marin Municipal Court on a felony charge of burgling Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of California, San Rafael, on Aug. 26.

Minister Vows To Assist Youths' Antiwar Actions

A Marin minister has gone on record as promising to aid conscientious objectors and draft resistors, even if such aid violates the Selective Service law.

Rev. Karel F. Botermans of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin and 19 other members of the Bay Area Unitarian-Universalist Ministers Association on Monday signed a resolution saying they were "outraged by the basic immorality of our national policy in Vietnam."

The resolution states that the expression of the anti-war views is considered a "major professional obligation" by the ministers and says the pastors regard the anti-war response of youths as "primarily not political but deeply religious."

"We will give to the youth our explicit and continued support in their refusal to participate in a military system which they feel to be immoral, and we shall endeavor to inform them fully of their rights as American citizens to implement their conscientous stand.

"We wish to make it clear that if our support of these youths violates Selective Service law or results in their actions in violation of local regulations, then we consider ourselves equally guilty with those who by their courageous and non-violent acts are subjected to prosecution."

Prep Grid Thriller! San Rafael Defeats Tam

WELCH'S CLUTCH CATCHES, PART 1 — San Rafael's Gary Welch (88) at right, catches the first of two big passes from Rob Thompson that set up the Bulldogs' touchdown in the last 31 seconds at College of Marin last night. Tam's Scott Smith (12) and Dan Payne (20) are unable to stop the play.

Bulldogs Do It In Last Minute

By KIMO CAMPBELL

The Tamalpais-San Rafael game last night didn't figure to prove much, since San Rafael had only a small hope for the title, built on mathematics and optimism, while Tam was wallowing in a disastrous 1-7 record and coming off its worst loss, 34-0 to Terra Linda.

Well, it didn't prove much, except that both teams can play superb football. In perhaps the best game the wild Marin County Athletic League race has yet produced, San Rafael roared from behind to nip gutty Tam, 27-25, in the last 31 seconds before an estimated 1,500 hysterical fans at College of Marin Stadium.

But it wasn't over, even then. After Dave Bariski's third touchdown of the night had put the Bulldogs in front, Tam's great passer, Don Mackin, hit on three straight passes, moving the tough Injuns to the San Rafael 22 as the gun went off.

"We just couldn't stand prosperity" said Tam's disconsolate Willie Hector. "If the team had been winning (all year) we wouldn't have given up those last two TDs. But the team was so keyed up about winning one (Tam had a 25-14 lead with 5:35 left) that they made mistakes. They (San Rafael) put together a better ball game. We had a lot of kids play great ball—Leroy Barrow played a hell of a game, Fowler and Mackin were great —maybe we'll put it together next week."

BARISKI GREAT

San Rafael's Bob Muster was jubilant, of course. "We looked bad on defense, especially in the first half," he said, "but we came back real well. Bariski had a great game (115 yards on 14 carries and the three TDs) and Rob Thompson came in and did a fine job with a lot of pressure on him. I think we learned a lot from this one—you always do against a Tam club."

The Bulldogs started out as if they were going to grind Tam into the turf. With little Herbie Rowland rolling out around end or handing off to Bariski and Dick Loomis, the Bulldogs marched 43 yards in 9 plays after Ken Johnston returned the kickoff 22 yards. Bariski ran out of the grasp of three Tam tacklers to score from the eight, and Gary Welch kicked the PAT.

San Rafael had to punt on its next series of downs, and the Injuns' peerless end, Barrow, took the ball at the Bulldogs' 42, cut inside, then back away from the traffic and down the sidelines for Tam's first score. Mike Fowler, another standout for the Indians, punched over the PAT.

LOOMIS LUNGES

Six carries by Loomis and five by Bariski brought another Bulldog TD in the second period. Loomis made a driving, lunging, 17-yard burst for the score. Welch's PAT was good, and San Rafael seemed comfortably set with just 2:26 left in the half.

Interesting 2:26, though. Barrow hustled back the kickoff 17 yards, then took a sideline pass from Mackin for 72 yards and a score, simply outrunning the Bulldog secondary. The run for PAT was no good.

San Rafael fumbled the ensuing kickoff, and the ubiquitous Barrow recovered at the San Rafael 24. A 19-yard Mackin-to-Barrow pass set up Mackin's three-yard sneak for the TD with just 32 seconds left in the half. Mackin's pass was intercepted on the conversion attempt, but Tam led 19-14 at the intermission.

San Rafael marched 42 yards to the Tam five on its first possession of the second half, but Rowland was ridden out of bounds by Barrow on a fourth-down rollout.

Mackin caught San Rafael napping with a tackle-eligible pass to John Cathy for 29 yards after the Tam stand, but Barrow fumbled after a 21-yard pass on the next play.

MAGNIFICENT RUN

After San Rafael was forced to punt, however, Ron Blasingame's running, chiefly a 32-yard sprint, set up the Indians with a fourth and 23 at the SR 45 after a tripping penalty. Mackin faded to pass, was rushed, and threw a screen pass to Fowler, who rumbled through, past, and over most of the Bulldog team on a magnificent touchdown run. The PAT was no good, but it hardly seemed to matter.

It was 25-14 with four minutes left. Hold it folks, don't leave yet. Bariski rips around right end for 59 yards and a score. It was 25-20 after the PAT was

49er-Ram Battle A 'Crucial'

Any time the Los Angeles Rams play the San Francisco 49ers, it's war.

The 49ers apparently had greater motivation the first time the two clubs met this year — four weeks ago—and won, 27-24.

The loss was the only one suffered by the Rams this season and left them today in second place in the NFL's Coastal Division race with a 4-1-2 record.

The Baltimore Colts, who play the Green Bay Packers tomorrow while the Rams tangle with the 49ers at Kezar Stadium, lead the Division with a 5-0-2 record. San Francisco is third at 5-2.

Thus, tomorrow's Los Angeles-San Francisco game takes on even greater meaning—like staying in the race for the Division title.

Despite their earlier loss to the 49ers, the Rams are favored this time by seven points, mostly because of an unexplainable 45-3 loss by San Francisco last Sunday to the Detroit Lions.

SATISFYING WIN

The Rams come into the game with a satisfying 28-17 victory over the Chicago Bears.

The Lions carved out their lopsided victory by rushing quarterback John Brodie off his feet. The Colts did the same thing to Brodie before the first San Francisco - Los Angeles game, but the 49ers bounced back the following week to beat the Rams.

The 49ers have lost All-Pro guard John Thomas but have regained the services of defensive tackle Charlie Krueger and running backs Gary Lewis and Doug Cunningham.

Thomas was injured three weeks ago and is out for the season. His place at starting left guard is being takein by 6-4, 244-pound Elmer Collett.

FULL COMPLEMENT

San Francisco coach Jack Christiansen also reactivated running back Dave Kopay last week, thus giving the 49ers their full complement of runners. The others are Ken Willard, John David Crow and Bill Tucker. It was this running depth which played such an important part in the team's earlier victory over Los Angeles.

The Rams have made only one change since the 49ers saw them last. That was to reactivate veteran linebacker Gene Breen.

JACK HANLEY

Gabriel In Peak Condition For Another Shot At 49ers

Roman Gabriel now is solidly established as No. 1 quarterback of the Rams. Bill Munson used to be the No. 1 man. Gabriel got his big chance when a knee injury put Munson out of action for the final four games of the 1965 season.

Last season Gabriel led the Rams to an 8-6 record, their best since 1958. This season the big fellow (6-4, 230) believes the Rams are going all the way in the National Football League's Coastal Division.

The Rams would be tied right now with the Baltimore Colts for the division lead were it not for the stunning 27-24 upset the 49ers pulled in the Los Angeles Coliseum Oct. 8. That's the only loss taken by the Rams this season.

Confidence In The Equalizer

Gabriel and the rest of the Rams are confident they will equalize that loss when they meet the 49ers in a rematch Sunday at Kezar. And if the Colts stumble before the champion Green Bay Packers Sunday, the Rams and Colts will be tied with identical 5-1-2 records.

Gabriel is still excited over the 24-24 tie the Rams played with the Colts following the Coliseum loss to the 49ers.

"The tie," said Gabriel, "hurts Baltimore more than it does us. We get another shot at them in the Coliseum.

"We went for the tie in the closing minutes against the Colts because we were unable to get field position. My primary target was Bernie Casey (former 49er).

Gabriel Plays Tarkenton Style

"I had expected to hit Casey on about the five-yard line but the first time I looked he was covered. Then I looked for Jack Snow. He was covered, too.

"By the time I went back to Casey he was already in the end zone and I was able to catch him in the corner."

Gabriel did an awful lot of scrambling away from swarming Colt defenders before finally deciding to throw to Casey.

"It was equal to Fran Tarkenton at his best," says Jack Teele, Rum publicity man. "Gabe is a nut on conditioning and he's in the best condition now of his career. Why, he even is promoting a new type vitamin which speeds recovery from fatigue. He's counting on conditioning to bring the Rams out on top."

Gabriel is convinced the Rams are a better conditioned team this year than last season.

"It shows up in our improved second-half play," he said. "Now when we get behind we have the ability to come back."

The Ability To Come Back Strong

In their Oct. 8 Coliseum session with the 49ers, the Rams left the field at the end of the first half on a 20-0 schneider. Then the Rams scored 21 points in a 10-minute span during the third quarter and added a field goal early in the final quarter for a 24-20 lead.

But John Brodie and Sonny Randle took care of that deficit with six minutes left in the game. Brodie fired a 28-yard TD pass to Randle.

One More Season For Maris

ST LOUIS (AP) — A baseball writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says Roger Maris will definitely sign a 1968 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals, but will likely retire at the end of the season.

Maris was quoted by sports writer Jack Herman in today's editions of the morning newspaper.

It was the first time Maris had been quoted as saying he would return to the world champion Cardinals for a second season. The 33-year-old Maris joined the Cardinals last season after establishing his reputation as a slugger with the New York Yankees.

BIG SEASON

During the 1961 season Maris hit 61 home runs and broke Babe Ruth's long-standing record. Both marks are listed in the record books because Maris slapped his home runs in an extended season.

His 1967 contract with St. Louis called for an estimated $72,000. He earned his pay with a late-season flurry which culminated in the World Series where he hit at a .385 clip and batted in seven runs.

Earlier yesterday Anheuser-Busch, Inc., announced Maris and his brother, Rudy, had been granted a beer distributorship in Gainesville, Fla.

"My preference is to devote full time to the beer distributorship," the newspaper quotes Maris as saying. "I want to build it up bigger than it is."

Maris added that next year could very well by my last in baseball."

Most Host Ties Track Record

SAN MATEO (AP) — Most Host equalled the Bay Meadows track record of 1:35 1-5 for the mile in winning yesterday's Man Mar Ranch purse. Bigger Granted trailed by two and a half lengths in second place and Lonesome Boy took third.

Most Host, owned by Mrs. Frank C. Bishop, paid $5.00, $2.80, and $2.40.

IT'S COLD IN DENVER

Raiders Face Snow Job

DENVER, Colo. (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders practiced all week in warm sunshine at their home base but when they take the field against the Denver Broncos tomorrow they may have to play in the snow.

The Denver area was hit by four inches of snow Thursday and the forecast was for more by tomorrow.

Regardless, it shouldn't bother the Raiders a whole lot. They go into the game as the leaders of the American Football League's Western Division with a 6-1 record and solid 15-point favorites.

The Broncos, who startled everyone by knocking off two NFL teams during the exhibition season, have lost seven of eight regular season games, including a 51-0 shellacking by the Raiders and a 52-9 pasting last Sunday by the Kansas City Chiefs. However, coach Lou Saban's club is dotted by rookies and a few veterans. He's building for the future and with that in mind, rookie Jim Leclair will start at quarterback in place of the more experienced Steve Tensi.

TOP FLIGHTERS

Despite their losing ways, the Broncos boast a number of top-flight players, such as running backs Floyd Little, a rookie from Syracuse, Wendell Hayes, Bo Hickey and Charlie Mitchell. All are pretty good pass receivers as well. Add to them ends Eric Crabtree and Al Denson and the Broncos can be expected to explode on any given play.

However, the Raiders, boasting the AFL's best balanced offense, don't seem to have a weakness in any part of the game. Their offense, anchored by the passing of Daryle Lamonica and the running of Clem Daniels and Hewitt Dixon, is the third best in the AFL and their defense is tops in the circuit.

Last week, they showed how solid they really are by routing the San Diego Chargers, second in the West and previously unbeaten, 51-10.

Braves To Play Sabella's Sunday

San Rafael Braves, currently in third place, two games behind the leaders in the San Francisco Triple-A Baseball League, hope to regain their winning ways tomorrow when they meet fourth-place A. Sabella's Restaurant at Funston Park, 11 a.m.

Righthander Bill Clark will be pitching for the Braves. Batting leaders Jess Jacinto, Rich Jeffries and Ron Gaspar will lead the Braves' attack.

Wysong Amazed At His Lead In Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU (AP) — "I don't know what I'm doing leading this thing," said Texan Dudley Wysong, in front of the $100,000 Hawaiian Open by one stroke at the halfway point.

"I don't even know what direction I'm aiming the ball," he said.

Then he walked to the practice tee to work on his game. "I played pretty good last week," he said, "but I haven't got any touch at all this week."

Somehow Wysong managed to put together a 69 over the windswept par-72 Waialae course along the Pacific shore yesterday.

Most of the day gusty trade winds bent the palm trees almost double before they died to a whisper at sunset.

That gave Wysong a total of 141 and a one-stroke lead over Billy Casper who shared pre-tournament honors with Arnold Palmer, Jim Grant, Ray Floyd and Dick Sikes.

Casper had his second straight 71.

Grant, playing in only his second pro tournament — he didn't make the cut in his first one—played for par, he said, and managed a 73.

TWO EAGLES

Floyd and Sikes both made eagles.

Floyd's came on a par five, when he holed a 90-foot sand shot for a three, and Sikes' came on the par four 15th, when he knocked a 175-yard No. 5 iron into the cup.

Steve Spray, who won second money at the Sahara Invitational last week, posted a 70 when the wind was at its gustiest, and finished with a 143.

Deane Beman and little known pro John Felus, who stands only 5-3 and looks like his caddy's little brother, also are at 143.

Palmer, playing with an ear infection that he said didn't hurt, messed up a good round on his closing holes and posted a 74 for a total of 146, five strokes off the pace.

"I took double bogey on No. 15 and a bogey on 16," he said, "both easy holes. I hit the trap on both, and three putted 15 besides."

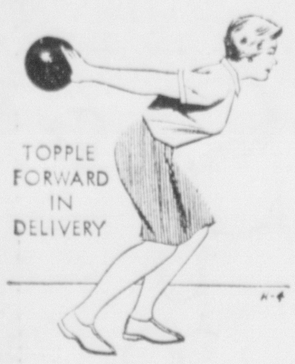
Wysong said his round included some incredible pars. "They saved the day for me," he said. "On the sixth hole I hooked into the rough and did not get it out. My third hit the green and I made the putt for a par.

"On the tenth I knocked the ball over the green and pitched into the trap. And I made a par five from there. It went like that all day."

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, playing his first tournament as a professional, fired a 72 following his first round 76 for a halfway total of 148.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



If you are aware that your bowling form is too stiff, try to let yourself merely "topple" forward as you begin your delivery. Keep your steps in more or less a straight line, of course, and be sure that you retain your push-away, but this simulated falling can sometimes help a bowler relax.

Bariski Star As Bulldogs Shade Tam wide.

A 44-yard punt by Mackin gets Tam out of a hole following the kickoff. Two runs by Rowland, and now Rob Thompson, an ex-middle guard who was converted to quarterback because he has a strong arm, is in the San Rafael backfield. He has to be throwing the bomb. He is. Gary Welch is free on the sideline—it's complete, and the Bulldogs have first down at the Tam 31 after the 26-yard pickup. Thompson-to-Welch again, and this time it's 21 yards to the 10. First down, and Bariski bulls around left end, runs over a few defenders, and bounces the ball happily in the end zone. Welch's PAT makes it 27-25 with 31 seconds left on the clock.

Mackin tosses to Barrow and Robin Nelson for 28 yards, and Tam has a first down at the San Rafael 28 with nine seconds left. It's the screen to Fowler again, he has blockers in front of him—but Tom O'Donnell drops him to make it all seem like a game again instead of a moment of truth.

"That was the same play they burned him on before," said Muster, "and he wasn't going to let them do it again."

As we said, it may not have decided a championship, but it should have.

Streaking Warriors Face Tough Philly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A couple of hot NBA clubs tangle here tonight as the San Francisco Warriors invade Philadelphia in a rematch of last season's playoff finalists.

The Warriors are riding a six-game win string while the 76ers are 6-1 for the season.

Big Wilt Chamberlain is grabbing 25 rebounds per game and Hal Greer is hitting the same number of points.

The Warriors (8-4 for the year) also have come up with a surprise scoring star in veteran Jim King, who is also clicking for about 25 points per contest.

EXPENSIVE PROTECTION — Putting on a high school football program can run into money with the biggest expense going to the protection of the players. Some of the protective gear and medicine can be seen here.

High School Grid Programs Don't Blossom So Cheaply

So you want to know how much it costs to start a high school football program.

Would you believe $26,895?

That's the figure for the first year. Annual cost after that initial year would be more like $5,250.

Using Redwood High School as an example, we collected all the costs involved in having a football program which would include varsity, junior varsity and freshman teams.

The biggest cost, and rightly so, is for the protection of the athletes involved.

To outfit one player for game and practice uniform and equipment, the cost is $166. Multiply that by 120 boys on the three teams and you come out with $19,920. It's a large initial investment, but most of the equipment is used year after year.

Then there's cost such as $800 for game officials, a $1,000 bill for cleaning and maintenance of the equipment, $800 for bus transportation to games, $350 fee to have a doctor present at all home games, $300 stadium rental, $1,900 pay to all the coaches in the program, and $100 for awards to be given players after season's end.

Add to that initial cost the practice equipment of $1,725, including a seven-man blocking sled at $800 and a two-man blocking sled at $350.

Redwood athletic director and football coach Bob Troppmann works on an annual budget of $2,000 per year, after that initial investment. The funds come from the student body, with income from gate receipts the largest item.

The average income from gate receipts is between $2,500 and $3,000, according to Denis Ragan, Redwood's student finance director.

The Tamalpais Union High School District helps foot the bill for Redwood, as well as the other two high schools in the district, Drake and Tamalpais.

DISTRICT PAYS

The district pays coaches' salaries, doctor fees, cost of stadium rental and transportation. In Redwood's case, that comes to a $3,350 total.

A parents' group, Redwood Benchwarmers, helps pay costs with $500, used for meals at road games, films of the team's games and athletic awards.

BREAKDOWN

Helmet, with face mask, $22; shoulder pads, $20; mouth guard, $1; hip pads, $12; thigh pads, $5; knee pads, $3; practice pants, $7; game pants, $20; game jerseys, $10; practice jerseys, $2.50; game sox, $5; chin strap, $1; parka, $12.

The player himself pays for shoes, $25; athletic supporter, $5; undershirts, $1.50, and insurance, $14.

Lazzarini Leads Tars In Pivotal Loop Game

Ten yards a crack is a pretty good mileage rate, even for moles and especially for football players.

That's what Dean Lazzarini, former Drake High School great, is averaging for the College of Marin Tars every time he carries the ball.

He's gained 347 yards in 33 carries to top Tar rushers.

Halfback Lazzarini, halfback Tim Harr and receiver Honor Jackson are 1-2-3 in Golden Valley scoring with 42, 38 and 26 points respectively.

They'll try to do some more scoring tonight when they meet Shasta at Redding at 8 in a pivotal GVC battle pitting the league's two undefeated teams against each other. The winner could all but wrap up the title, barring upsets the rest of the way.

Nervous Batters When He Pitched

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI)—When Christopher Anthony Taranto stepped up on the mound the batters started to shake. They didn't have a chance.

Taranto was the only athlete in high school history to pitch six consecutive no-hit baseball games and nine no-hit games in a season. He set the record at Notre Dame High School here in 1961.

Drake Pirates Face Another Toughie

Drakes Pirates, who seem headed for their second straight tie for the MCAL football title, and Balboa's Buccaneers, who sewed up the San Francisco City championship last weekend, will clash tonight to determine the real Pirate champion of the Bay Area. As well as such interesting sidelights as the relative merits of Marin and City teams.

The City's prepsters have taken a beating from MCAL teams this year, and a convincing Bal victory would do much to soothe the bruised psyches of City fans.

But Drake has other ideas. Coach Bob Franceschini is grimly aware of Balboa's power, but he's hardly awed after playing Vallejo and St. Ignacius, plus Terra Linda and Redwood the last two weeks. "They've a good team" he said, "on a level with SI and Vallejo, but they're no tougher than the teams we've beaten the last couple of weeks. If we play good football and don't make mistakes, we can beat them."

Balboa, currently number six in the Bay Area and eleventh in the state, has awesome credentials on paper—such as a 34.4 season scoring average, 90 of those points coming from the many-splendored talents of junior halfback Calvin Jones, the City's top scorer and rusher.

Drake has no such statistics. But it has an indefinable ability to come through in the clutch—personified by halfback Don Alvarado's all-round skills on attack and preserved by the tenacious play of the entire squad on defense. It is worth far more than the sum of its separate parts.

Players like Alvarado, quarterback Don Stone, linebacker Perry Hedin, halfback-defensive end Andy Sitich, and tackles Rich Street and Dennis Hermsmeyer have the ability to come through in the tough spots that characterizes a championship team. Courage has been defined as "grace under pressure." Perhaps that's the best way to explain how Drake wins.

INTANGIBLES

Balboa, however, has some intangibles of its own. Coach Archie Chagonjian is simply worried that his club might be down after winning the AAA title with a 25-20 victory over archrival Lincoln at Kezar Stadium last week.

The Bal Bucs have, in addition to the mercurial Jones, a good sophomore halfback in Mike Salem, an inspirational leader in center-linebacker Steve DeMaestri, a pair of strong linemen in guard Al Levi and tackle Dan Vance, and a dandy ringleader for the whole bunch in Rack Calcagno, who comes from a quarterbacking family — two brothers were all-City and one, Ron, is currently starring for unbeaten Santa Clara.

MOSTLY JONES

Balboa's offense is mostly Jones and fullback Ed Bonnett running between the tackles, or Calcagno passing to Jones and league-leading pass receiver Jim Tyree.

One thing you have to say for Drake—they don't pick any patsies to fill out the schedule. But then, you don't learn to beat the likes of Terra Linda and Redwood by playing Milquetoast High.

PRO GRID ROUNDUP

Colts Face Big Test Tomorrow

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The unbeaten Baltimore Colts once again find Green Bay's fearsome Packers blocking their path to a National Football League division championship.

This time, however, the danger has been cut in half for the Colts . . . and Johnny Unitas might have enough healthy horses at his command to make it disappear altogether.

Unitas and the Colts, beaten in their last five duels with the Bart Starr-led Packers, are slim favorites to end the hex tomorrow in their only regular-season confrontation with the defending NFL champs.

The Colts and Packers, who met twice each year as long-time pennant rivals in the Western Conference, are playing in different divisions this year. In order to set up a rematch, both must win their division titles.

"We've got the team to go all the way this year," says Colt veteran Lenny Moore. "But to do it, we've got to beat the Packers. It sure would be nice to give it to them twice this season."

COLTS FAVORED

Green Bay, 5-1-1, has other ideas, but the oddsmakers lean to the 5-0-2 Colts, who will be bolstered by the return of two Unitas targets—Jimmy Orr and Ray Perkins—and massive tackle Jim Parker from the injured list.

Gale Sayers, plagued all year by injuries, will start for the Chicago Bears at Detroit, but the Cleveland Browns won't know until game time whether battered Frank Ryan will be available against Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere tomorrow, Los Angeles is at San Francisco, New York at Minnesota, Atlanta at Dallas, St. Louis at Washington and Philadelphia at New Orleans.

In the American Football League, New York plays at Kansas City, Oakland at Denver, Houston at Boston and Miami at Buffalo, San Diego draws a bye.

Baltimore pits the NFL's top passing attack against Green Bay's league leading defense. In the clubs' last three tilts, the Packer defenders have held the upper hand, holding Unitas' offensive unit to one touchdown.

Sayers, who broke loose for 142 yards as the Bears beat Detroit 14-3 three weeks ago, sat out the next game and gained only 13 yards in last Sunday's 28-17 loss to Los Angeles.

Chicago is counting on the gifted halfback to bounce back against the Lions, who stunned San Francisco 45-3 a week ago behind quarterback Karl Sweetan.

SHARE LEAD

The Browns, who share the Century Division lead with St. Louis and New York, have been grooming reserve quarterback Dick Shiner for their rematch with Pittsburgh should Ryan be unable to play. Ryan, who has started every game despite a string of injuries, suffered a severe bruise on his throwing arm in last week's 38-34 loss to New York.

Quarterback Bill Nelsen, injured early in the campaign, returned to the Pittsburgh lineup last Sunday and helped them end a five-game losing streak with a 14-10 nod over New Orleans.

Ex-Viking quarterback Fran Tarkenton leads the high-scoring, easy-to-score-upon Giants into Minnesota, where the home club is trying to regroup after last week's 21-20 upset loss to Atlanta. Tarkenton's 16 TD passes have helped transform New York into the league's No. 1 offensive machine.

Atlanta, paced by hard-nosed linebacker Tommy Nobis, hopes to spoil quarterback Don Meredith's return to the Dallas lineup after a three-week absence. The Cowboys fell to Philadelphia 21-14 last week with Craig Morton filling in for the injured Meredith.

St. Louis comes off a tough loss to Green Bay last Monday night, with young quarterback Jim Hart at the top of his game and kicker Jim Bakken leading the NFL scoring parade. Hart fired two TD passes to rookie Dave Williams and Bakken booted two field goals against the Packers.

The Eagles, one game behind Dallas in the Capitol Division, tackle a hungry New Orleans club that has gone seven games without a victory. The Saints came close against Pittsburgh behind the passing of Gary Cuozzo to Dan Abramowicz.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Nov. 4, the 308th day of 1967 with 57 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1842, 38-year-old Abraham Lincoln was married to Mary Todd in Springfield, Ill.

In 1918, the Austrian and Hungarian armies accepted World War I peace terms dictated by the allies.

In 1931, the League of Nations cited Japan for willfull aggression in Manchuria.

In 1952, 20 years of Democratic administration ended when Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was elected president.

A thought for the day: Greek writer Sophocles once said—"Though a man may be wise it is no shame for him to live and learn."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Even Experts Can Get Egg In Their Faces Occasionally

Did you ever get out of the wrong side of the bed, burn the toast, wreck the car on the way to the office and drop a plate of soup in your best customer's lap at lunch? One of the bridge experts in the recent Team Selection Tournament played a hand like that, thus showing that even experts can cover themselves with egg.

GOOD DAY

On a good day, West would have bid four clubs instead of making his chicken-hearted bid of three clubs. Or West would have gone on to four clubs over three notrump.

When West actually sold out to three notrump he had doomed himself to a bad score even if he managed to defeat the contract.

OTHER PLAY

At the other tables of this very select tournament West had made four spades with the East-West cards, usually doubled, and often with overticks. West made a complete hash of the hand by allowing South to make three notrump.

South took firstspade with the ace and led the ten of diamonds. West discarded a club, and South's face fell. South could see that he was virtually cold for four hearts and that there was no real hope for three notrump.

STRUGGLES ON

South struggled on, taking the ace of diamonds and his five hearts. Then he led the jack of clubs, hoping to steal an eighth trick somehow.

Still obsessed with the notion that South has started with AK X of spades, West stepped up with the ace of clubs and led another club. This gave South his contract, East a case of the screaming meemies, and me a hand for the column.

GAUHATI, Assam (UPI)—Umbrella venders and manufacturers are close to ruin because of the wily ways of the monsoon rains in Assam state this year.

"In Gauhati and many others towns the rains occurred almost exclusively at night while people were sleeping," said one dealer. "This is our curse, for both retailers and wholesalers have been left with large stocks."

Issue Of Mixed Marriages Still Before Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Protestant leaders this week voiced both appreciation and some disappointment at results of the just-concluded meeting of Roman Catholicism's new international synod of bishops in Rome.

Representatives of several denominations saw potential ecumenical gains in some of the actions recommended, but they said further steps still were needed to put mixed marriages on an equitable footing.

On that matter, Charles Parlin, a Manhatten attorney and Methodist observer - delegate just returned from Rome, said both Protestants and Catholic lay leaders were "disappointed that the synod didn't go further."

However, he added, "even though it only inched along, the fact that there was a synod and that it listened to the laity to a limited extent is a history-making and very hopeful sign."

The synod, which ended its month-long first meeting Sunday, urged an easing of the requirement that non-Catholic partners in mixed marriages make oral promises to rear children as Catholics.

It was also recommended, subject to action by the Pope, that local bishops be allowed to make exceptions to the rule requiring that a Catholic priest officiate at mixed marriages in order for the church to consider them valid.

Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the Lutheran Church in America and chairman of the central committee of the World Council of Churches, commented:

"We Protestants await with anxiety and thanks to the reported attitude of the synod of bishops—with a dash of hopefulness the verdict that the Pope will soon pronounce on mixed marriages.

"We eagerly hope that it will be in accord with the spirit of the Vatican Council, recognizing as Christians the members of other churches and honoring the basic liberties of all human beings."

Rev. Dr. John T. Middaugh, member of the United Presbyterian ecumenical commission on relations with Catholics and president of Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis., called the mixed marriage action a "significant step."

It "will ultimately lead to truly Christian interfaith marriages," he said. "But until we come to the point where priest and minister join hands as fellow pastors in these marriages, we fall short of the ideal."

He termed the synod's recommendation for a theological commission to deal with doctrinal problems "a highly commendable step" and expressed hope it will also include Protestant and Orthodox advisors.

"The Roman Catholic Church no longer exists in a vacuum," he said. "Both Protestants and Roman Catholics have learned by the grace of God that we have to listen to each other."

AERIAL VIEW OF TEMPLE SQUARE IN SALT LAKE CITY

The historic Mormon Tabernacle looks like a huddled turtle in this aerial view of Salt Lake City's Temple Square. The auditorium known for its accoustical qualities, is 100 years old this year. It was constructed entirely without benefit of steel of any kind, including nails. The multi-spired building is the Salt Lake Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The square also includes the new Visitors Center (upper right) and the Assembly Hall, (upper left).

Temple Scroll Shows Influence Of Christendom

JERUSALEM (AP) — A newly identified Dead Sea scroll indicates that one group of followers of Jesus joined the Jewish community of Qumran shortly after the crucifixion and influenced it to adopt some Christian doctrine.

Dr. S. H. Steckoll, who does research on the scrolls, gave this interpretation after contents of the "temple scroll" were disclosed by Prof. Yigael Yadin, head of the Hebrew University's arcraeological department, last week.

SOME CHANGES

Steckoll said it reveals changes among the community at Qumran "which lead to the inevitable conclusion that they were influenced by Christians and indeed adopted some Christian doctrines."

"In saying this it has to be understood that these early Christians were, like the people in Qumran, Jews, and both groups in fact practiced Jewish religion as interpreted by them," he added.

It was much later that Gentiles were converted to Christianity.

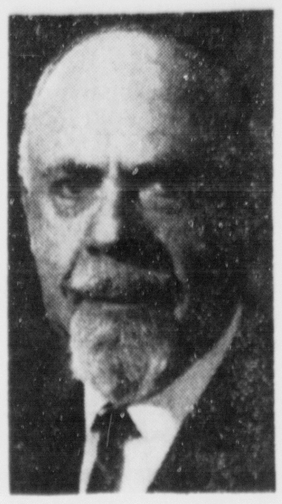
Steckoll said one example of change was in the rules for purity, especially those relating to burial practice. In the temple scroll, he said, these rules are "not only different from the official views of pharasaic Judaism at the time but also different from those rules of purity of burial practice in an earlier Dead Sea scroll: the Damascus document."

SHEDS LIGHT

He said the Christian influence would help shed light on three matters raised by earlier Dead Sea scrolls—the concept of the future temple, the practice of astronomy, and the scroll mentioning a "messiah of Melchizedek."

Early Qumranic literature, he said, states that the existing temple in Jerusalem would fold up and a new temple built not by man would descend from heaven.

"The newly deciphered scroll from Qumran supports that school of thought—of Jesus—of a man-built temple."



SPEAKER — F. Henry Edwards, high priest of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will deliver the final of three special messages at the Napa church on Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. For the past 22 years the Independence, Mo., minister has been a member of the church's First Presidency, the chief presiding council.

The temple scroll received its name because it deals with the building of the new temple.

Steckoll said it had been difficult to explain where the Qumranians acquired the custom of reading the stars and horoscopes.

STARS STUDIED

The stars were studied by Jewish astronomers in Babylon, he said, and "now that we can see that some followers of Jesus joined the sectarians at Qumran, an explanation is to be found in a comparison with the Magi, 'the wise men who came from the East'—now known to have been astronomers who reached Bethlehem from Nippur in Babylon."

As for the "messiah of Melchizedek," he said early scrolls referred to a messiah of Israel and a priestly messiah of Aaron, but one scroll recently published in Holland also mentions a priestly messiah of Melchizedek.

"This document can only now be explained as also belonging to that period in Qumran after some Christians had joined and influenced the tenets of this community," Steckoll said.

"In the epistle to the Hebrews, Jesus is also described as a messiah of Melchizedek," he said.

A TEEN-AGER'S PUSH TOWARD CHURCH UNION

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Sue Brandt, 17, a Lutheran, broke some of the barriers to ecumenism so she could join a Catholic organization.

Miss Brandt, of suburban Florissant, was invited to a party for orphans, sponsored by the Catholic St. Vincent de Paul Society. She wanted to join and do her part. But "joining wasn't easy.

She had to be approved by a vote of the membership and by the local counselor of the society before she became the first Protestant in the local society and one of the few non-Catholic members of the group throughout the world.

"I think they knew I was sincere, they voted to let me join," she said.

Miss Brandt, of her experience within the Catholic organization, said: "I began to understand and respect parts of their religion which had only been words to me before.

"I feel that since we all want to help people, religion should be no barrier."

Famed Cathedral Needing All Of Modern Skills To Save It

YORK, England (AP) — York Minster, England's largest Gothic building, is going to need all the skills of 20th Century technology to save it.

Experts say that unless action is taken immediately, the great medieval cathedral will probably be past saving in 15 years.

"The piers of the central tower are carrying enormous weights and if one leaves it too late nothing could hold them up," warns Bernard Feilden, 47-year-old cathedral architect.

With work already under way and parts of the cathedral still in use, Feilden has installed his own warning system.

Tell-tale strips of glass have been cemented over identified cracks and these are inspected daily. The glass breaks when a crack widens, though the movement may be invisible to the naked eye. Already five of the glass strips have fractured.

A more refined type of strain gauge is now being installed.

York Minster is Britain's biggest medieval cathedral and attracts a million visitors a year. It is the metropolitan church of York, the northern province of the Church of England.

The measures envisaged include the placing of a reinforced concrete ring beam round the top of the central tower and a girdle of stainless steel wire at roof level to restrain any outward movement.

The piers, already strapped to prevent any immediate danger to the public, will be grouted, the cracks filled, and strengthened by stainless steel.

Only then can new foundations be inserted by drilling piles down 55 feet at an angle through existing masonry to solid ground. Concrete and stainless steel will link the piles and the existing stone foundations. Services are now restricted to the cathedral nave. A great excavation is roped off under the square central tower, which forms the very heart of the building. There workmen dig eight feet below the floor among foundation stones laid in Saxon times.

Occasionally they find skulls and bones, the relics of medieval burials.

But they are going deeper yet to reach the earliest Roman masonry, believed to be four feet lower.

The people of York walk over a bridge of boards to reach their seats for services. The great organ, now played from a remote console, is muffled under layers of plywood and polythene casing to protect it from the dust the workmen raise.

There are cracks at all levels in the tower. You can see distortion in the walls and arches of the transepts, caused by its lateral movement.

The great size of the structure and its loads present the experts with special problems. The weight of the central tower is estimated to be nearly one-third that of the whole building and the load on its foundations, allowing for wind pressures, is calculated at 25,000 tons — about the weight of an ocean liner.

All this rests on four main piers, on foundations originally sunk into waterlogged ground. But York's water table has dropped by four feet in the past century or so and is still sinking. This, the architects think is the main cause of the trouble.

Other causes of weakness are ascribed to passing traffic and defects in the stonework itself.

Now there's a new worry — bangs from supersonic aircraft.

Very Rev. Alan Richardson, dean of York, recently sought and won an assurance from the authorities that no experimental bangs would be made over the York area.

Meanwhile more than half of the two million pounds ($5,600,000) initially needed for a seven-year repair program on the Minster has been subscribed.

HIGH SCHOOL PRANKSTERS SPARK BLAST

Something went off with a bang in the boys' rest room at Terra Linda High School Thursday.

No one owned up under questioning by Dean of Boys Donald F. Achzinger but several students identified the explosive as "H 8," said police.

Tiburon Fence's Owners Take Battle Into Court

Owners of a fence declared a public nuisance by Tiburon City Council yesterday asked Marin Superior Court to reverse the council's Oct. 19 order to remove the structure on Paradise Drive.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson scheduled Nov. 13 for a hearing before Judge Harold J. Haley on why the request shouldn't be granted.

The petition — by Michael Y. W. Demaurex, C. Marshall Walter, Jay Quetnik, Michel Demaurex and Associates, and Western Title Insurance Co., all of San Francisco and owners of waterfront property along Paradise Drive between Main and Mar West streets in Tiburon — claims the council's resolution is invalid.

It declares the petitioners were deprived of a fair hearing before the council, that no evidence was presented to show that the six-foot redwood fence is a nuisance.

The council has declared the fence construction, which began Oct. 12, creates a policing problem, a fire hazard, danger to pedestrians, is unsightly, and no building permit was obtained.

The petition replies that access will be given to all "necessary public authorities" and other authorized persons, that policing will be even easier with the fence, that it is not unsightly, and that application for a building permit has been made since owners learned one was needed.

It also states that safe pedestrian traffic will be possible.

THE MAN WHO KILLS MOSQUITOES

By FRANK FARRARA

Profile Of A Marinite

George Paul Jones, a genial, quiet man who looks as though he wouldn't harm a fly, kills mosquitoes by the millions.

As manager of the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District, he specializes in the mass murder of the pesky insects that once hung in clouds over Marin's salt marshes.

At the turn of the century, the mosquito problem in Marin was the worst in the state, and "they had to burn smudge pots to keep them out of stores," Jones said.

NEWCOMERS wonder why Marin needs a mosquito abatement district when they don't see many mosquitoes. "But it was rough in the old days," Jones commented.

The district, organized in 1915, was the first mosquito abatement district formed in California. Jones has been with it almost 21 years.

Before the district was born, men would go through the mosquito breeding marshes in horse-drawn, wooden wagons and sprinkle oil with watering cans.

"THEY USED to hold bazaars and other fund-raising events to pay for the job," Jones recalled.

The mosquitoes were so thick that "people going to the depot wore netting, and there were only certain times of the year they could sell real estate."

Jones, a 62-year-old, round-faced man with a ruddy complexion, said he got into the mosquito abatement post "by accident" after being in the oil distribution business in Marin with his brother.

"HE WENT into the service in World War II, and I kept it going," he said. "When he came back, I pulled out."

"About that time the opportunity came up at the district, and I've been here ever since," Jones said.

A native of Sausalito, Jones was graduated from Tamalpais High School and Heald's Business College in San Francisco, and attended San Francisco Law School "for a couple of years."

"THE LAW study helped me when it comes to contracts," said Jones, who considered his post a diversified job.

"It takes a knowledge of mosquitoes, budget and equipment," he commented. He noted that the district has its own shop and has designed special spray rigs, which can be mounted on trucks for trips to the source of mosquitoes.

Jones, a past president of the Marin Rod and Gun Club and a member of the Sportsman Council, Redwood Empire, believes hunting and fishing an ideal pastime to keep youths from getting into trouble.

A FATHER of five, including twin girls, Jones recalled that he spent "quite a bit of time" with his boys, hunting and fishing along Petaluma Creek.

"They get interested in these kind of things, and it keeps them from hanging around street corners and getting into trouble," Jones said. "It gives them a constructive way to burn up energy."

GEORGE PAUL JONES, a native son of Marin County, has headed the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District for 21 years. He can remember the old days when clouds of mosquitoes made life miserable for the early Marinites.

He also recalled that he went on many camping trips with the children. "You have to work at being a father," he said.

JONES IS a son of the late County Clerk George Jones.

The children have grown to adults, but Jones hopes to get back into camping in full swing after he retires. He expects that he and his wife "will take the trailer and barnstorm around."

Jones and his family lived in San Rafael for 20 years before they moved to Rohnert Park, Sonoma County, where one son, 19-year-old Gordon J. Jones, is a student at Sonoma State College.

THE OLDEST son, 21-year-old George M. Jones, is serving in the army in Korea, and the three daughters are Mrs. Theresa Horton, 17 Meadow Avenue, San Rafael; Mrs. Patricia Raih, Marion, Ind., and Mrs. Margaret Gudeman of Oakland.

Jones met his wife, the former Beatrice F. Haney of Sonoma County, in San Francisco, and they were married 30 years ago.

Jones doesn't talk much about himself, but he's not reluctant at all to talk about mosquitoes, the district and its work.

IN SALT marshes from four to five million mosquitoes can breed in an acre, he said. When it comes to biting, they "are vicious" and they fly from 20 to 30 miles from their source.

There are fresh water mosquitoes and there are also mosquitoes that breed in the cavities or crotches of trees which hold rain water, he said.

"House mosquitoes can come out of catch basins and septic tanks," Jones said.

JONES ALSO is in the business of destroying yellow jackets and claimed that, last year, the district destroyed more than 600 nests.

The district, which recently annexed a southwest portion of Sonoma County to the north of Marin, covers 500 square miles, Jones reported.

The district has grown and the methods vastly changed from the days of the sprinkler cans. And Jones, who has "done all the jobs" at one time or another in his two decades, expects to keep it up, for a little while longer.

THE SCHOOL LIBRARY may have changed into a dispensation center for many kinds of educational media at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo, but the book remains its basic "product." Student assistant Barbara Hall checks out a book from the open stacks to Jean Cummings.

USUALLY NOT MORE than two students can watch the microfilm reader comfortably in the Drake High library, but for the photographer, Amy Ziegler, Eric Berger and Laurie McHatton make it a threesome.

AT INDIVIDUAL listening stations along the wall of the library, students can choose an educational program in much the same way airline passengers select entertainment. Or they can study with film strips, slides, books, pamphlets or periodicals.

The New School Library

It's Much More Than Just Long Shelves Of Books

Whatever happened to the old-fashioned school library?

Too often, it still exists. Too often, it's the same old dreary book-filled cavern that has for decades repelled young people.

Not so at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo. Thanks to the combination of dynamic staff action, local tax support and timely federal aid, Drake's library has joined the modern world.

SO, INCIDENTALLY, have the libraries at Tamalpais High in Mill Valley and Redwood High in Larkspur, as the Tamalpais Union High School District has given an extra push to its library program in the past few years.

In the world of school libraries at this point, Drake's must be considered a model.

For instance, the Center for Communications at Santa Barbara, project of the National School Public Relations Association, lists the Drake library as a good example of what can be done by creative educators, local support and federal financial help.

Consequently the place is sometimes overrun by visiting educators from all over the country there for some ideas.

FEDERAL AID made possible the purchase for its microfilm collection by Drake High School of 29 volumes of the New York Times dating back to 1851, as well as 34 periodicals received with the regular subscription. Library assistant Lynda Siesmore checks out a microfilm to a student.

LIBRARIAN Ruth Taylor spends a part of her time instructing Sir Francis Drake High School students in the proper use of the card catalogue and the other educational tools of the library.

The Library As Hub For Instruction

It's Become Center For Many Media

IN LIGHT OF what it houses, the word "library" might be considered old hat. "Resource Material Center" is a currently popular educational term. But librarians Ruth Taylor and Lorraine Furtado at Drake find it cumbersome and pretentious, especially for adolescents.

"Media library," they think, is the coming thing — overtones of Marshall McLuhan, media demigod of western civilization at the moment.

But it is a term that makes a lot of sense. McLuhan, who says the "book man" is dead or should be, doesn't say throw the books out; he says only that educated man can no longer live by books alone.

IT MAKES A lot of sense because as any parent knows just about every kid prefers the television screen, the movie theater, radio and record player to the book, at least at one stage of his development or another.

FROM THIS CONSOLE, operated here by librarian Ruth Taylor, five different educational "programs" can be run simultaneously for Drake High School students. What the teen-agers hear is not fun and games, but "books in sound" — tape and recordings to help them with their studies.

Other media can be properly educational.

Some kids learn better through visual (other than print) and audial media. Most kids learn better from a combination.

The "media library" tries to make the combination accessible.

THE DRAKE project came about like this:

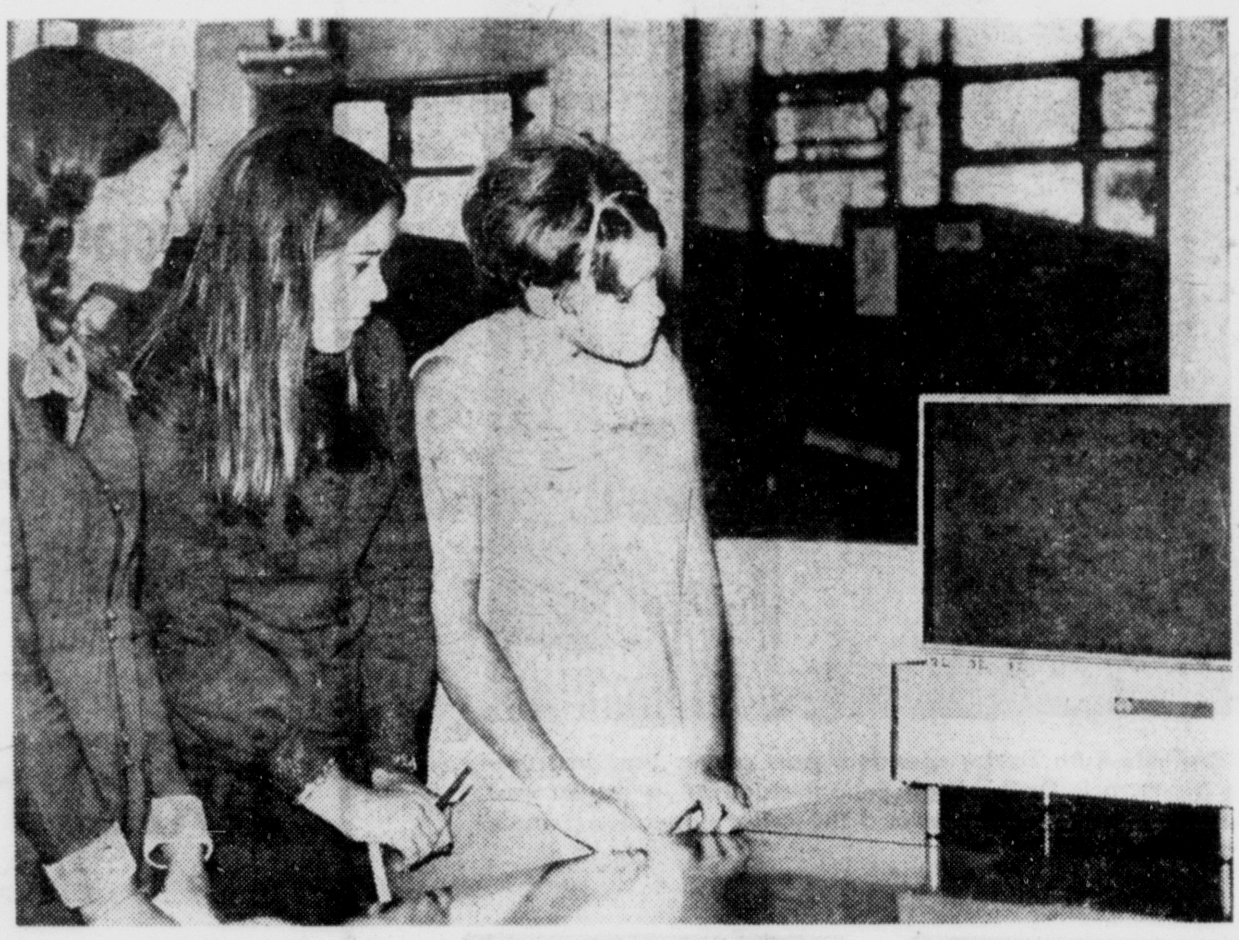
The school had outgrown its original library. Redwood, newer, had a marvelous library facility and was building materials gradually. Tam, the oldest school, had its library remodeled. Drake wasn't up to the district standards.

The district expanded and modernized the Drake library for $130,000. This local effort gave Glidden Benefield, veteran Tam teacher-coach newly employed to go after government grants, the opportunity to ask for and get $38,000 in an original grant and about $25,000 in subsequent federal aid.

THAT BOUGHT some interesting media: a master console for records and tapes piped to individuals or groups; head sets, wires under the carpet, with seven loop receiving arrangements from five amplifiers, meaning five kinds of "programs" available simultaneously; study carrels where students plug in to the console, look at slides, film strips, books, pamphlets or periodicals; a microfilm library and reader; plus many more volumes, periodicals, pamphlets and other standard library materials, most of it suggested by teachers.

The results have been spectacular, staff members agree.

The increased accommodations and versatility and the greatly improved atmosphere attracts many more students and many more teachers. The library has become the instructional hub of the school, a long sought ideal.



IT DOESN'T show, but these Drake High students, left to right, Amy Ziegler, Debbie Bruce and Laurie McHatton, are watching intently an eight-millimeter educational film on the viewer before them. It marks a convenient and efficient method of bringing such films to small groups of students who are interested in the subject. The school libraries have become the means of providing many different kinds of visual and audio instructional tools for Tamalpais District students.

THE MAKING of finely carved, custom-fitted gunstocks began with James H. Marsico Jr. as a hobby. Now it is his vocation. At his Jim's Gun Service Center in Novato he produces work in the tradition of Europe's master woodcarvers.

(Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

The Fine Art Of Carving

By THERON NEWELL

For centuries the artisans of Europe were known for the beauty of their individual work.

With the advent of machine production of identical work, the era of the individual artist, who created each piece and made a work of art out of it, seemed at an end.

But there are still scattered craftsmen who keep up the old traditions.

One such man in Novato is James H. Marsico Jr., owner of Jim's Gun Service Center where he uses his talents as a woodcarver to create some of the most beautiful individual gunstocks found anywhere.

IN THE FRONT part of Jim's Gun Service Center at 861 Grant Avenue, Novato, one can see a few custom-made guns which Jim has for display purposes or has scheduled for delivery. There are also rough gunstocks or wood for gunstocks.

In the back workroom of his shop are many gunstocks in various degrees of carving and finishing.

Each custom-made gun that he turns out is a work of art. Each one is the creative collaboration of the owner and Jim. Each gun is as carefully fitted to its owner as a fine suit of tailored clothes.

"IT TAKES no less than four fittings to get a gun right for each person," Jim explained.

"A gun is an extension of a man's body and arms," he said.

He fits the gun to a man's shoulder, length of arm, neck and head.

"A man doesn't know what it is to shoot until he has had his own custom-fitted gun," Jim said.

THE MAN AT work is gunsmith Jim Marsico, and the scene is the gunshop in his place of business on Novato's Grant Avenue. He is a study of concentration as he works carefully on one especially fine gunstock for a custom client. Marsico learned woodcarving from a German master.

A Craftsman In The Old Traditions

THE PROCESS starts when a person selects the piece of wood which he wants for his particular gun, whether it is a shotgun or rifle. Jim uses only walnut, myrtle or maple wood.

"The design is unlimited. The customer selects what he wants on his gun and together we work it out on the stock," Jim said.

He has done a prize trophy deer head for one customer. He also did a full deer taken from a picture of it. He has put a man's favorite hunting dog on the stock of the gun.

AFTER THE design has been selected, Jim, who has had art instruction in addition to woodcarving training under Europe's most skilled carvers, sketches the design on paper.

"Then I sketch it in pencil on the woodstock. If the customer is satisfied, then the carving begins," he said.

This is no job that can be hurried. From the selection of the woodstock until the finished gun is turned over to the customer, it takes from 60 to 90 days.

"I use nothing but oil finish," Jim said.

IT TAKES many, many coats to get the desired luster to the gunstock, he said.

Jim was born and raised in Pennsylvania where there was a lot of good hunting. During the depression, his father did custom gunstock work for extra money.

"Guns were expensive and I couldn't afford one, so I built my first gun," he said.

HE ACQUIRED the metal part of an old military rifle. Then, under his father's instruction, he made the stock to fit his own body. This got him started in what was to be a lifetime hobby and is now his vocation.

He joined the service during World War II and it was not long until his superiors found that he had a great knowledge of guns. He was made a sergeant-instructor in small firearms in the Army Air Corps.

"This experience was of great value to me because I soon realized that 90 per cent of the time, the gun was unsuited to the man who was to shoot it," he said.

HE REMAINED in the service in the engineering field, but continued his hobby of working on guns. He had built 18 guns for himself, and also, while in the service, built between 100 and 150 custom-fitted guns for officers during his off-duty hours, he said.

"My real interest in guns came to life while I was stationed in Germany in 1953 to 1956 when I saw the marvelous woodcarving on German guns," he said.

"Germans do the finest woodcarving in the world, and I wanted to learn how to make gunstocks like they do with their woodcarving," he said.

FUCHS IS one of the most famous names in woodcarving in Germany, and Jim visited Fuchs in his woodcarving studio.

"I did not know whether or not he would take a pupil, but I asked him if I could study under him during my off-duty hours in the evenings and weekends" Jim said. Herr Fuchs (Jim cannot remember Fuchs first name) accepted him, and he studied the art under the master for three years.

"In addition, I visited woodcarving schools on weekends;

SURROUNDED BY guns, gunstocks and wood that he will carve into stocks for guns is proprietor Jim Marsico in his Jim's Gun Service Center at 861 Grant Avenue, Novato. There is no limit to the number of designs possible, the gunsmith says.

the best of them being around Oberammergau," he related.

"THEY GOT me interested not only in carving gunstocks, but in carving panels, plaques and other types of ornamental woodcarving," he said. "All of this was carefully planned so that I could carry it on as a vocation when I retired."

He retired as a chief warrant officer-4 from Hamilton Air Force Base in 1965. He and Harold Greenwall formed a partnership and bought Jim's Sport Shop at 703 Grant Avenue.

"I took care of the gun repairing and made guns for customers, but that soon grew too big to be part of the sport shop," he said.

HE SOLD out his half of the partnership and moved to his present location a year ago. During that time, he has made 26 custom guns and at the present time, has orders for seven more, he said.

"Gunsmithing is hard to evaluate in dollars and cents," Jim said.

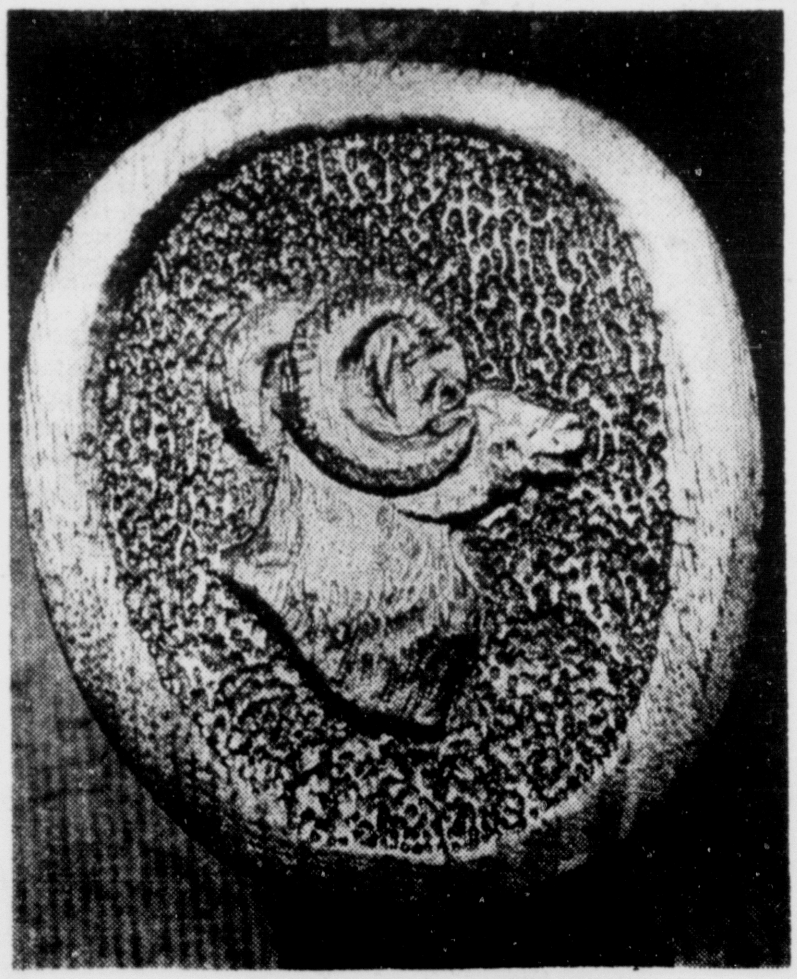
"The value of a gunstock can only be tested in use and the pride that the owner gets in using and showing his gun," he added.

HE ALSO does engraving and gold fill on the metal parts of guns, but specializes in the woodcarving.

Married, Jim and his wife, Dorothy, have four children, Jimmy Joe, 15; Samuel Paul, 13; Margaret, 11, and Carolyn, 7. They live at 58 Pico Vista, Novato.

In addition to his gunstock work, Jim has done other fancy woodcarving, such as replacing the carved leg of a piano which was broken in shipment. He has done several such replacement pieces for hand carved furniture, he said.

"Ultimately I would like to get into general woodcarving as well as the gunstock business," he said.



THE INTRICATE design that Jim Marsico does on the stocks of his custom-made guns and other pieces is apparent in these close up views of the work of the artisan, above and at left. There is no limit as to the variety of possible designs, Marsico says, and the customer makes the selection. Then Marsico goes to work.

"Should I Try to Clean My Leather Skirt?"

Much as I dislike to phrase it this way, I must answer "Yes and No." If your skirt or any other garment is of suede, take it to a dryceaner who is expert in leather cleaning. You may be able to brush out a minor spot, but your drycleaner should clean a suede garment.

Cape or kidskin leather garments may be spotted in the spotted or soiled area, with lots of suds from a mild soap and little water, wiping dry with a clean cloth. Then apply more suds, allow to dry & rub lightly with a soft cloth.

Grease or gum spots are removed best with carbon tetrachloride applied on a cloth and rubbed lightly with a circular motion. Paint is best removed with turpentine followed by carbon tetrachloride to take out the turpentine stain. Remember, cleaning indoors can be dangerous. Be certain the room is well ventilated.

Some leathers can be immersed in soap and water. Shoes and handbags are cleaned best when wiped with a damp, soapy cloth.

Many feel safer, however, by entrusting their leather clothing to a good dry cleaner.

A New Alta Mira With The Old Charm

THE FOYER OF the newly decorated Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito, graced by a walnut credenza and gold-leaf mirror, says a friendly "hello" to visitors. Walls are putty-green and details are terra cotta. Chair is covered in antique satin with a slight gold pattern. Interesting hardware on the door is a Portuguese import.

When hotelier Bill Wachter decided to refurbish his internationally known Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito, he was determined to retain the Old World feeling that was so much a part of the establishment's charm.

The building, itself, perched high on a hill overlooking sparkling San Francisco Bay, is of Basque and Spanish architecture.

If it were not for the tell-tale view of Alcatraz in the distance, the visitor might well believe himself to be on the Mediterranean Coast.

WACHTER commissioned Bell's Interiors of San Rafael to re-design the lobby, restaurant and banquet rooms before setting the bedrooms and cottages.

Wishing to set off the owner's collection of Portuguese antiques, designer Norma Davis of the Bell's staff began in the lobby with color.

She chose a wall color of putty-green, then highlighted the architectural details such as medallions, columns, beams, friezes, etc., by painting them terra-cotta brushed with gold.

ALL UPHOLSTERY is terra cotta raw silk, either plain or with a slight gold pattern, while the wood finishes are in a warm walnut.

The simple color motif sets off the beautiful wrought iron and sculptured objects to great advantage.

Furthermore, the basic color scheme is sufficiently neutral so as not to "upstage" the guests, a consideration in any room and particularly so within a hotel.

IRON GRILLEWORK on each side of the cocktail lounge entrance permits the magnificent view of the bay to be seen from the lobby, yet provides a feeling of separation.

In the lounge, Mrs. Davis has introduced blue in a metallic wallpaper on one wall.

The dining room continues the putty-green and terra cotta scheme with wallpaper on the back wall in a floral and scroll design of green and brick tones against a gray-green background.

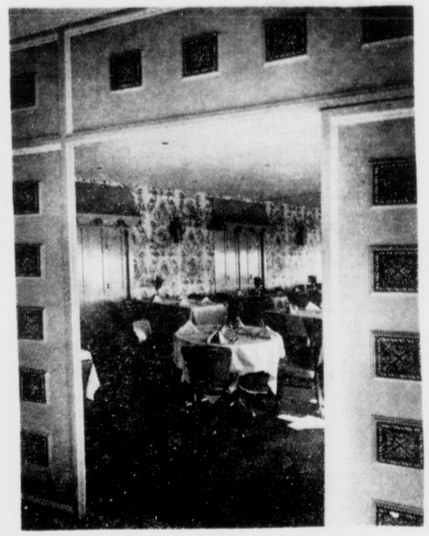
THE REST OF the room, of course, is entirely windowed to permit diners to enjoy the view for which the Alta Mira is famous.

The overall effect achieved by Bell's for the "new" Alta Mira is one of sunny lightness, warmed by terra cotta and brushed gold, and cooled by the Mediterranean feeling of open grillework, turned columns and wrought iron.

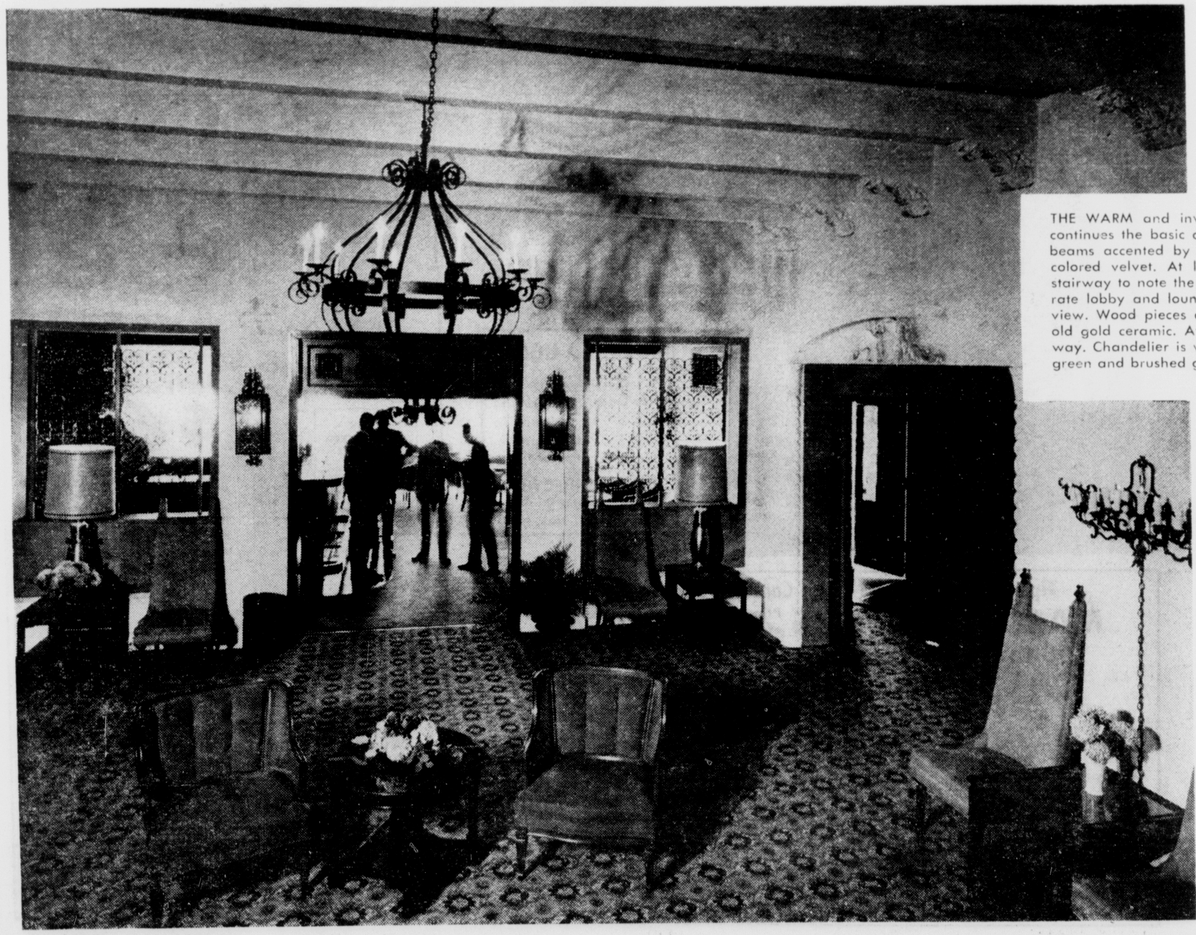
Dining outdoors at the Alta Mira has long been one of the most anticipated pleasures of Marin living.

Tasteful interior decor gives the Alta Mira's indoor hospitality that same appeal.

DINING OUTDOORS at the Alta Mira is one of life's most pleasant experiences for Marinites. But the redecorated hotel on a Sausalito hillside also offers much interior charm.



A VIEW FROM the lounge of the Alta Mira Hotel into the dining room displays something of the Old World charm that has been captured by Bell's Interiors with the new decor. Putty-green and terra cotta are again the colors, starting from the entryway. The wallpaper is a stylified gray-green background with a Baroque scroll pattern in avocado green subtly accented with terra cotta blossoms.



THE WARM and inviting lobby of the Alta Mira Hotel continues the basic color theme of putty-green walls and beams accented by terra cotta. The upholstery is brick-colored velvet. At left, you are looking from the west stairway to note the interesting use of grillework to separate lobby and lounge without shutting off lights or the view. Wood pieces are distressed walnut and lamps are old gold ceramic. At right, the view is toward the stairway. Chandelier is wrought iron and an import as is the green and brushed gold flambeau in the corner.

NEWS ITEMS — In December, a new system of shopping will be tried in England. Television sets will be installed in 100 supermarkets of the Tesco chain, the nation's largest. An Ampex videotape recorder will transmit specially developed product commercials to the TV sets installed in the markets. Shoppers in these markets will be exposed to these products at a time when they can be influenced to "buy now." It is the only time when television can say buy now and mean it. TV commercials for the products sold in the stores will be repeated continuously throughout the day. Each commercial is to last about 20 minutes. For the statistically minded, each commercial will be shown an average of 28,000 times in a two week period.

The ABC Radio Network has announced that it is going to offer four net services to their stations. One of these services will be an FM network with specific appeal for the FM listener. Now that there are more and more FM listeners, we can expect the programming to become more imaginative, creative and varied.

The future offers a promising low cost means of viewing prerecorded cartridge type program material on our TV sets. An international partnership has announced the development of a television cartridge player that can be connected to the antenna inputs of a TV receiver. The cartridges will be made by an "Electronic Beam Recorder" a new principle. Recordings by this light principle can be made from a TV camera, a magnetic tape, or a motion picture film. The electronic beam recorder uses a film cartridge and not a tape cartridge. Possibly in early 1968, the playback equipment and the prerecorded cartridges will be available. The cost for these items is expected to be considerably less than present costs of video tape recorders and video tape.

NEW ITEM. We have just received the first shipment of the new RCA Mark 8 Stereo Tape Cartridge Player. This is a very compact unit in a cabinet of walnut veneers and select hardwoods that can be plugged into any stereo console, stereo table radio or component system equipped with proper jacks. Operation is automatic — player starts when 8 track car-stereo cartridge is inserted. You can enjoy up to 80 minutes of high-fi stereo music on a single continuous-loop cartridge.

POET'S CORNER

COME INTO MY VALLEY

Come into my Valley
And watch the Spring with me,
Nature's panorama
Enfold majestically.

See the first acacia
Explode against the sky
Peach and apple blossom
To captivate the eye.

Daffodil and hawthorne
Pines for-ever-green,
Restless skies at twilight
Blue you've never seen.

And if you think you've traveled
And there's nothing more to see,
Then come into my Valley
And watch the Spring with me.

TAMALPAIS VALLEY — FRANCES DUNN

DARK CLOUDS

After a summer of idle clouds
Autumn's water carriers arrived
Heavy and pregnant with rain
They travel a hesitant road

Rolling across the sky
They'll drive this summer away
But to a thirsty land
Clouds carry a promise of spring

MILL VALLEY — MARIE LOUISE EINFELDT

UNSEEMLY

I don't mind
That I'm the kind
Who wears unmatched stockings again.
But I do mind
When I find
There's a seam in one,
While the other has none.
That's when!
That's when!!

On The Stereo Scene

A Company With A Marin Base, And Some Really Far-Out Jazz

By JOHN SUNIER

This summer a small avant-garde record company from New York, that has been in business only a couple of years, set up a West Coast office in the Marinship area of Sausalito.

ESP Disk is the name, and it boosts a variety of musical experiences which are, to say the least, unique. It is doing some recording already at Pacific High studios in Sausalito. The following is a glance at just a few of the items in the extensive catalog.

One of the first things that one might notice on these albums, besides the rather stark black-on-white artwork, is that the copyright information is printed in Esperanto. ESP Disk is certainly riding the wave of the future.

Musically, most of their library centers around what has been the "new music" in jazz. It goes on where Eric Dolphy, Ornette Coleman and Cecil Taylor leave off, and frequently with considerable success.

ORNETTE COLEMAN TOWN HALL, 1962 — ESP 1006:

I found this the best LP of all I heard. It is more successful than the sort of thing Coleman is doing today.

In addition to David Izenzohn on bass and Charles Moffet on percussion instruments, Coleman used a string quartet for this unique appearance in New York's Town Hall. There are three longish tracks on Side 1, and Side 2 is taken up by a 23½-minute composition by Ornette, "The Ark." It strikes me as one of the most immediately communicative of the extended jazz experiments.

This music is far beyond the stricture "third stream" efforts of Gunther Schuller and also a far cry from humorous efforts at combining the classics and jazz (i.e.: Stan Kenton's Wagner album).

THE COACH WITH THE SIX INSIDES — A Musical Play by Jean Erdman based on James Joyce's "Finnegans Wake" — ESP 1019:

With a major film on "Finnegan's Wake" coming out in the wake of the "Ulysses" film, this delightful musical should find new popularity.

I didn't check how much it is changed from the Joycian original, but if heard is immediately clear and direct. This is perhaps helped by the presence of the libretto, so that the wonderful play on words and puns can be seen at the same time they are heard.

A very original score is by Teiji Ito, and Miss Erdman plays Anna Livia Plurabelle. All the five actors are excellent in their roles.

This is not exactly a run-of-the-mill musical by any means, but few listeners could not fail to be intrigued and entertained by Miss Erdman's creation.

ONE NATION UNDERGROUND — The Pearl Before Swine — ESP Disk 1054:

This folk and rock group takes its name from a Biblical passage which instructs to "turn ye on." However, I found their rather bland music not to have that effect upon me at all.

Some of the sounds are nice, in a pastoral sort of way, as the oboe work in "Regions of May." The lyrics are very protest-conscious. Great cover by that pop-op artist of some repute, Hieronymus Bosch.

THE HELIOCENTRIC WORLDS OF SUN RA — Volume I ESP Disk 1014; Volume II ESP Disk 1017:

Sun Ra and his Solar Arkestra constitute one of the largest ensembles in the "new music," unless one includes the new Don Ellis band.

Composing all the music and playing piano, celeste, marimba, tympani and bongos, Sun Ra draws upon many different currents in music today. Improvisation and chance are perhaps the primary elements.

It doesn't always work, but frequently it does and when the listener is in the proper frame of mind, the music opens new vistas of listening experience.

BARRAGE — The Paul Bley Quintet — ESP 1008; CLOSER — The Paul Bley Trio — ESP 1021:

Paul and Carla Bley have been important figures in the "new music" of jazz for many years. Their work seems fairly unknown out here in the West, and these two LPs should help spread the word.

Marshall Allen is hard on alto and Dewey Johnson on trumpet in the six tracks qof the quintet album. They have rather a sameness of approach, perhaps due to the fact that Mrs. Bley composed all the selections.

The title tune has some interesting tape manipulation effects and is about the best on the LP. The Trio album runs a wider gamut and is more approachable.

My favorites were two tongue-in-cheek trifles, "Sideways in Mexico," and "Cartoon."

RON BLAKE PLAYS SOLO PIANO — ESP 1011:

While most ESP disks are available in stereo, this one is monophonic only. After all, on solo piano, it is not that important.

Liner notes by Gunther Schuller would have one believe Blake to be part of the "third stream" movement, but I prefer to describe him simply as a searching and inventive modern jazz pianist. Some of his original compositions are great, especially the eerie "Sister Tee."

Blake flopped at the Monterey Jazz Festival a few years back, but this LP should raise his reputation hereabouts.

"BELLS" — Albert Ayler group recorded at Town Hall, May 1, 1965 — ESP Disk 1010:

This has to be the weirdest long play record ever pressed, at least in appearance.

The actual disc is transparent, of a strong violet color, has no center label, is furnished with grooves on one side only, and the reverse side is silk-screened in white with a design incorporating the title, "Bells."

As to the music, it is wild, vehement, dissonant, with what one critic referred to as sheer "bad boy" joy in making sounds. In addition to Albert on sax, brothers Donald and Charles play trumpet and sax respectively. The strangest thing about Ayler's style really gives one a start when first heard: his slower tempi favor a huge vibrato sax style a la Guy Lombardo.

A drunk Guy Lombardo, to be more exact.

SPIRITUAL UNITY — Albert Ayler Trio — ESP 1002:

More Albert Ayler, with Gary Peacock on bass and Sunny Murray on drums.

A catchy tune, "Ghosts," is heard in two extended variations separated by two other longish tracks, all by Ayler. This is less energetic and shouting than "Bells," but an important effort in the new jazz field.

THE GIUSEPPI LOGAN QUARTET — ESP 1007; MORE GIUSEPPI LOGAN — ESP 1013:

Here is more pioneering "free music" by a reedman whose styyle closely parallels that of Albert Ayler.

Logan plays tenor and alto sax, bass clarinet, flute, piano, and Pakistani oboe, as well as composing all the music. That is if you can say that improvisations as free as these are composed at all.

This shows why so of these performers don't even admit to playing jazz, but just new music.

By the way, the stereophonics on all the ESP albums are excellent.

SAN RAFAEL ARTIST Jack Castor has an exhibit of his oils and watercolors at the Glass Owl and the Sierra National Bank, both in Petaluma, through Nov. 28. "The frustrated architect within me" is partially responsible for his interest in old Victorian houses, Castor says. Problems Within, And What We Can Do To Ease Them

By DON KEOWN

OUR TROUBLED SELVES by Allan Fromme, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 274 pages, $5.95.

DELANO: THE STORY OF THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE STRIKE by John Gregory Dunne, Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 176 pages, $4.95.

In his "Our Troubled Selves" Allan Fromme has succeeded where many have failed in writing a book on human emotional problems that is truly understandable for and helpful to the layman.

It is free from psychiatric mumbo-jumbo, and it offers practical suggestions on what the individual can do to counteract or minimize the gnawing effects from within of such present day emotional malaises as our feelings of loneliness, indecision, guilt, depression, anxiety and fear.

He includes chapters, too, on the more serious neuroses and psychoses, but he makes it clear that these are fields for the professional, not for self treatment, and offers some limited insight into what assistance can be expected there.

He admits candidly the limitations of and controversies within contemporary psychiatry and psychology, but expresses the hope that there awaits in the future a successor to Freud, Jung, Adler, et al, who will be able to resolve the differences and disputes that now exist in the field of psychotherapy so that it can pursue more effectively its goal of "making us feel better about ourselves and the world (so that) we learn to enjoy them both better."

But it is with the less serious upsets, the ones with which we can to a degree contend personally if we are willing to take a fresh and honest look at ourselves, that most readers will be primarily interested.

What remedies does Fromme prescribe?

For that lonely, alienated feeling that is so much a part of contemporary living, "pleasure and laughter and self-indulgence (that) help us enjoy being ourselves more. . ."

"We need the refreshment that distractions, diversions, and satisfactions can give us," he asserts.

Indecision: "Our greatest danger is not that we will do the wrong thing; it is that we will do nothing . . . If we act often enough, it becomes habitual . . . If we are willing even to be wrong rather than doubtful, we shall venture more and enjoy the satisfaction of learning from our experience."

For fear, happiness is offered as the great antidote — "simple, down-to-earth pleasures (that) improve our self-esteem by allowing us to be glad about something in general and ourselves in particular."

On hostility: "We must learn that the world is not against us every time we suffer some small rejection or denial. Others are being rejected, too. What we have to learn is how to ask for things more effectively. . ."

These are only selected, incomplete samples of the manner in which Fromme, a clinical psychologist and leading psychotherapist with a number of earlier books to his credit, discusses the problems that are too prevalent today, robbing many of us of the full enjoyment of life. His aim is to help us eliminate those dissatisfactions and disturbances that lie behind the facade, creating unhappiness. It is a book that many will read with growing excitement and ultimate benefit.

"DELANO" constitutes an extraordinary reporting job by the young magazine writer John Gregory Dunne.

Unpretentiously small, the book nevertheless presents a clear and appalling picture of roots, issues and developments in the San Joaquin Valley's bitter strike of field workers against the grape barons and their allies.

Dunne, writing on an emotionally charged subject, has tried hard for objectivity. The problems and transgressions of both workers and employers are discussed. But whereas the problems of the growers rate as serious difficulties, those of their field hands are human tragedies. And whereas the violence and other sins committed by the ranchers and their confederates stem from some very human motives, those of the strikers have their origins in desperation and the desire to survive.

The reader's sympathy is soon won over by Cesar Chavez and his National Farm Workers' Association in their uphill struggle to overcome decades of entrenched special privilege and exploitation.

Along with that sympathy should come a sense of shame. For if the growers who battled to retain their iron control of conditions in their fields and camps were motivated by profit and property, two very understandable American concerns, those of us not so directly involved who tolerated an inhumane situation for years because of indifference and neglect have no such excuse.

John Steinbeck and Carey McWilliams documented the most shocking features of the problem vividly a good many years ago. It does not speak well for the American social conscience that no major reforms resulted until an exceptional leader, the determined, courageous Chavez, arose from the ranks of the downtrodden themselves.

Nor should Dunne's concluding point — that the fight is far from finally won — be overlooked. Schenley capitulated and colossus DiGeorgio was toppled, but many other growers still resist stubbornly any intervention in the highly personalized relationship — or domination — they have maintained with their workers.

As a San Joaquin Valley newspaper reporter for seven years, we can certify the accuracy of Dunne's portrayal of an ugly situation. It is an important book deserving of thoughtful study. Guilt pangs may, and should, result. What we do to alleviate them is then up to each of us as individuals.

DR. RICHARD Bryan Cunningham, assistant professor of systematic theology and philosophy at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry, is the author of Westminster's newly-published "C. S. Lewis: Defender of the Faith" ($5).

The book is an evaluation of Lewis' use of literature in defense and advocacy of faith.

It also explores Lewis' beliefs in such areas as ethics, philosophy and religion.

THE TEXT for "Daily Life in Ancient Peru" (McGraw-Hill, $13.95) was written by Hans Dietrich Disselhoff, former director of the Berlin Museum of Ethnology, and translated to English by Alisa Jaffa.

Reliable written chronicles of the history and culture of this old land are exceedingly sparse. Thus it has fallen upon the archaeologists to provide us with our most dependable information on the subject. They have performed and are still performing well, and Dr. Disselhoff has looked to them largely for his narrative on how the ancient Peruvians lived and forged a fascinating civilization. The Incas were only the final blossoming of a long and brilliant cultural chain.

JOHN GREGORY DUNNE is the author of "Delano," a report on the San Joaquin Valley's bitter strife between grape growers and the National Farm Workers' Association.

For many, the prime attraction of the book will be its illustrations — photographs of relics and museum treasures and historical drawings. Many of the photos are in color, and the reproduction is of art-book quality.

The subject will not be of interest to everyone. But for those intrigued by the golden land of Peru and its long history, the book will be the source of much enjoyment and enlightenment.

GEORGE S. Wells, editor of camping and trailering magazines and writer on outdoor life and travel, is the author of "Modern ABC's of Family Camping," offered by publisher Stackpole Books of Harrisburg, Pa., as both a refresher course for the experienced and a comprehensive guide for the novice camper.

Wells begins with the philosophy and rewards of camping, and goes on from there to cover campsites, equipment (with special attention to the outdoor kitchen), itinerary and all the related topics.

There are special chapters on travel and camping with children, on camping organizations, on foreign travel and camping and on sources of information for campers.

Camping now claims 30 million devotees in these United States. If you are one of them, or thinking about joining their ranks, Wells' book could offer you a lot of value for its $4.95—particularly the updated and very practical discussion of camping equipment from tent-trailers to kitchen utensils.

THE NOVEMBER list of Ballantine paperbacks is headed by two original novels, "The Eskimo Invasion," a science fiction yarn by a first-time novelist, John Heyden Howard, and "After the Bugles," a western by Elmer Kelton. MURDER FANTASTICAL by Patricia Moyes, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 253 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Rachel Farrara.

The famous "nose" of Inspector Henry Tibbett returns in a puzzler involving a social climbing bookmaker, who was found dead from a bullet wound in the driveway of Maj. George Manciple.

Inspector Tibbett finds himself in the midst of an appealing but eccentric family, who baffle him as much as the murder.

To further confuse, the son of the murder victim appears and brings to light more intriguing aspects of the case. Even when the plot starts to unwind it appears to entangle anew, and the inspector seems to flounder in his deductions.

He relies on his intuition and brilliant observations, and succeeds, despite the distractions of the unpredictable cast of characters.

Miss Moyes seems to excel in puzzlers, and she doesn't fail here.

"ANIMAL DOCTORS: What Do They Do," published by Harper & Row, is part of a series by Carla Greene explaining various occupations in terms that inform and delight 4 through 7-year-olds. The subject this time enables Leonard Kessler to indulge in the kind of humorous animal illustrations that are unfailingly popular with children, as demonstrated above. It is an "I Can Read" book, especially good for boys and girls just mastering printed pages.

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

The man most responsible for bringing the mythology and folklore of many lands to English-speaking children was the Scottish scholar Andrew Lang.

He collected, translated and edited the tales of giants and dwarves and other exotics, and they were published by Longmans, Green and Co. in London in three volumes — "The Red Fairy Book" in 1890, "The Yellow Fairy Book" in 1894 and "The Violet Fairy Book" in 1901.

In their pages youngsters of the time were introduced to the likes of Rapunzel, Jack and the Beanstalk, Thumbelina, princes and princesses galore, witches and other captivating characters. Many remain storybook favorites of today's generation.

Not too long ago Dover Publications reissued all three volumes in softcover. Now McGraw-Hill has produced them in hardcover, selling for $3.50 each.

The books are unabridged and contain the original illustrations by H. J. Ford and Lancelot Speed.

Readers and listeners of all ages will be fascinated by these old stories rich in imagery and excitement, and by the tasteful package in which they are presented. It is a wonderful plunge into nostalgia.

Some other books for junior readers:

Aldous Huxley, no less, is the author of "The Crows of Pearlblossom" (Random House, $3.50), the only children's book he ever wrote. It was written at Christmas time, 1944, for his small niece, and it is a very funny little tale about two crows who have problems with a rattlesnake in their tree, but eventually outwit the intruder. Barbara Cooney has provided some appropriately humorous illustrations. The book, very small, seems somewhat overpriced, probably out of recognition of the eminence of the author. But it is superior storytelling.

Just about everything a junior researcher might want to know about governors, kings, presidents, prime ministers and popes, from the earliest recorded times, is in "King, Rulers and Statesmen," (Sterling, $4.95), compiled and edited by L. F. Wise and E. W. Egan. There hardly is any need to search through the entire reference shelf when all is contained in this one volume. Many illustrations.

Any child who possesses an old or unusual coin will want to browse "Coin Collecting as a Hobby" (Sterling, $2.95), by Burton Hobson. It's a good book for beginners, offering information on how to collect and arrange, with many illustrations.

In an area like Marin where people live in and on the water as much as on the land, it is imperative that everyone be a good swimmer. One way for youngsters to sharpen their swimming would be to read "Better Swimming and Diving for Boys and Girls" (Dodd, Mead, $3) by George Sullivan. One of a series of books on how children can better themselves in sports, it has 99 diagrams and photographs and a good, explanatory text.

"The Golden Goose" (McGraw-Hill, $3.25) is a Mother Goose picture book with the artwork performed by William Stobbs. Stobbs is less inclined to "paint down" to the small readers, and as a result produces some enchantingly colorful scenes, rich and full of mood. Mother Goose tales are big this Christmas year, and this is a very pleasing one.

A Major Writer At Work

A MALAMUD READER by Bernard Malamud, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 528 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Anne G. Stine.

Bernard Malamud has been recognized as one of America's important writers for the last 15 years. This is a collection of his stories published between 1950 and 1966, plus the complete text of his novel "The Assistant."

Here, in one volume, the reader can find the reasons for Malamud's distinction.

In the main he deals with the impoverished American Jew and the tragedies connected with him, which often seem to be racial. The people, such as Frank Alpine in "The Assistant," illustrate Malamud's conviction that suffering is likely to come to all, but even those who are almost defeated can, and do, strive for a life of order and value. Some of the situations and characters are not esthetically appealing but they are drawn with such compassion and imagination that they are impossible to forget.

In the character of Yakvor in "The Fixer," Malamud achieves

BERNARD MALAMUD
A feeling of sorrow

the feeling of deep sorrow and loneliness by combining reality with illusion, the grotesque with the commonplace.

This book should not be read at one sitting; each story should be considered individually. As a whole, there is too much of the same theme: people struggling to live as they believe they should, to achieve a victory over themselves against incredible odds.

When the stories are read individually one can appreciate Malamud's power to depict suffering and sorrow with true compassion, and to illustrate that dignity can come from the depths of humiliation.

Is Another Vietnam Taking Shape Next Door To Today's Fighting?

THAILAND: THE WAR THAT IS, THE WAR THAT WILL BE by Louis Lomax, Random House, 173 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

As Louis Lomax, Negro sociologist and journalist, arrived in Cambodia at the close of 1966 enroute to North Vietnam, the latter country's premier, Ho Chi Ming, suddenly and without explanation withdrew his invitation to the American and refused him admission. So Lomax went instead to Thailand.

What he found there is spelled out in a small but most significant book that Lomax has entitled "Thailand: The War That Is, The War That Will Be."

The subtitle is even more chillingly descriptive: "A First-Hand Report of Another Vietnam in the Making."

Lomax found many, many parallels between Thailand now and South Vietnam of only a few years back.

The land of Siam is ruled by an autocratic, militaristic government that makes no pretense at democracy. There is growing Communist-supported guerrilla activity against that government, particularly in the jungled northeast. The American build-up in Thailand is precipitous. More and more, Thailand is falling under U.S. influence. Resentment of the Americans in their country is growing among Thailanders, particularly the use of bomber bases there for assaults against the North Vietnamese. Despite American training, the Thailand army is inefficient and corrupt, more interested in politics than its real job. There is religious unrest and strife. The peasants feel little relationship to Bangkok, seat of the government. Neither the Thailand nor the American governments tell their people the truth about what is taking place in that Southeast Asian land.

And, like Vietnam of not so long ago, Americans know next to nothing about Thailand. There are some vague and romantic notions about Siamese splendor, and some may remember reading that the king of Thailand is a jazz enthusiast and a saxophonist himself. And that is just about the extent of our knowledge."

A reading of Lomax's book will help dispel some of that ignorance, and none too soon.

Lomax says the Thailand guerrillas have, so far, purposely avoided a head-on confrontation with the Americans flooding their land. But they are biding their time. They may well prefer to bring about a showdown at the very moment that a war-weary United States finally achieves an end to the fighting in Vietnam. On the other hand, there are signs of a growing restlessness, and the time of decision may come much sooner.

A Bright Young Talent—

GAME IN HEAVEN WITH TUSSY MARX by Piers Paul Read, McGraw-Hill, 160 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

And that's just what this first novel is — a dialogue in heaven between Karl Marx's daughter Tussy (a life-long revolutionist who killed herself for love), a very proper English duchess and the narrator who is also upper class English, and not proper at all.

The young English author of this astonishing work is one of McGraw-Hill's bright new talents, and shows a technical virtuosity that leaves one gasping.

The story unfolds as the narrator, up in heaven, tells Tussy and the duchess about the great revolutionist Hereward's career down on earth, but it is constantly exploded with flights of fancy, shifts to other planes of experience and discourses on what seems at first unrelated and spurious matter. But almost all of it dovetails into a pattern — the innate corruptibility that defeats all men, especially the innocent, with a vision.

Read's collage of scenes, his many-angled approach to his subject and his wacky humor remind one of Donald Barteleme's "Snow White" that caused such a stir last spring. One would guess he is familiar with the Robbe-Grillet school and the avant work of the post-war Germans.

But admirable as his technique is, it's what he has done with it that counts, and what he has done shines out miles ahead of most bright young talents. He has looked beyond his own ego to make a meaningful social comment and in a provocative, entertaining way.

Who could ask for anything more — and from a first author, at that!

The Story Of America's Sheik

VALENTINO by Irving Shulman, Trident Press, 499 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

The author of the sensationalized "Harlow" of two years ago, Shulman has now produced less of a bombshell biography of another of Hollywood's legendary luminaries.

Long and unnecessarily detailed in some parts, the book takes the screen's "Greatest Lover" through his classic rags-to-riches and flashy-britches life in fairly thorough fashion. The opening chapters seem to include every insignificance Shulman was able to root out about the circus-style funeral, leaving the reader to heave a sigh of relief at the interment.

From there the process whereby Rodolpho Guglielmi transforms himself from a pesky adolescent in a poor southern Italian village to All America's Sheik is detailed by Shulman for several hundred pages. The climax of legal battles toward the end of Valentino's life and on into recent years is the all-too-common result of fame coupled with never-quite-enough fortune.

While Shulman has done a comprehensive job, it is characterized by undistinguished writing which the subject fails to overcome except for an occasional glimmer of the likeable, sometimes victimized young man whose tastes ran to flashy motorcars and giant Dobermans. Dobermans.

While some phtographs are included, many more would have been welcome.

This is more or less a handy home guide on the subject of impotency, covering causes, diets, drugs, aprodisiacs and other factors.

Presented in a simple, straight forward manner, the work dispels many of the myths and folklore regarding impotency. It touches upon physical and psychological aspects of the problem, but doesn't pretend to be a medical guide.

The overall approach is that of reporting with the effect that of a long magazine article.

Set In Mexico

THE ROSES IN IRON by William Bryant, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 243 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Set in late 19th Century Mexico, this first novel of California-born writer William Bryant concerns the ties among three people desperately masking their fears and needs with worldly poses over crystal glasses of dessert wine and figs. The English dowager Condit and her niece live as foreigners in Mexico City, with the Harvard-educated Mexican aristocrat Ricardo dropping in each afternoon to visit his young fiance. Their three-way hate entanglement takes on mystery as each draws the servants and young Indian houseboys into the web.

Promising in its situation, the novel weaves and winds the story in a languid prose which forces even the climactic scenes to a total unreality.

Included are several interesting episodes of the diamond pioneers as well as brief histories of some of the most famous diamonds such as the Hope, Cullinan and Koh-I-Noor gems.

A Comic Film?

CONDITION PINK by Leland Frederick Cooley, Doubleday, 259 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Here is an attempt at the satirical novel of the Southern California stripe superpatriot which was bound to come out of the headlines of the past few years.

Cooley keeps it zany and very light as he maneuvers his Counterforce militia armed with flashlights and real-war surplus into action against "reds" who are threatening from Asia and Mexico to the very shores of "Camp Pinkerton." When Counterforce Women's Auxiliary confronts the United States Marines, there are amusing moments. But while the novel is funny in situation it never actually brings the comedy to white hot. Also, a confusion of characters lessens the book's opening promise . . . This should, however, make a comic film.

The Travel Page

THE ORANSAY, a P & O Lines ship, provides a startling contrast to its colorful companion, a sailing junk, as it steams out of Hong Kong's harbor.

For Relaxed Travel, Board A Ship

To the sophisticated traveler who is in no hurry to get anywhere, except away from the maddening throng, the perfect holiday is to travel by ship.

Despite the popular jets, there are more passengers traveling by ship today than there were in the 1920s and 30s when the cruise ship became so popular. Since getting there can be half the fun anyone wishing to travel in a luxurious, leisurely manner should investigate the many shipping lines which offer special cruises to almost everywhere.

Matson Steamship conceived the idea of developing its Pacific cruises into a wide variety of instructional events which would give its passengers either all the leisure or excitement they wished. There are instructors aboard on everything from bridge to art and photography.

HULA LESSONS for all ages and flower arranging for those who wish to become proficient in the art of ikebana are but a few of the planned programs.

Stock market reports along with instant news, fashion shows and celebrity entertainers keep one alert to what is happening in the daytime and merrily entertained in the evening.

All ships have at least one pool and several now have two large ones for adults and a smaller one for the kiddies. There are baby sitters and special rooms for the teen-agers to have their rock and roll sessions.

THERE IS, of course, the perpetual bridge and poker games that start before the ships sail and break up only long enough for a casual glance at the shoreline.

One advantage and joy of taking a cruise ship, especially in the Pacific, where the American President Lines, the States Lines as well as P. & O. and many European flag lines make several yearly cruises and every port is exciting and different, is one's stateroom becomes his hotel.

No matter how much shopping and sight-seeing indulged in all day, it is a pleasure to return to the ship and spend the night in a a familiar bed.

ALL SHIPS are air-conditioned today. Many of them are actually more comfortable than some of the "exotic" hotels tourists are frequently booked in.

And the food! Every meal is a banquet, but for the calorie counter there are also salt-free diets, slim-jim menus and especially prepared sauces without butterfat and all those other goodies one gorges on board.

The slimming foods are equally as delicious and as attractively displayed and then of course one can always get up at dawn, walk the deck 20 times (allegedly one mile on some ships), then hurry in to breakfast and forget the skimmed milk.

THERE IS A growing trend toward conventions, conferences and seminars at sea. Each year thousands of students sail away on ships with special instructors and return home more learned and while having had a delightful voyage they have also gotten a couple more credits toward their degrees.

Lines which sail the Pacific have been adapting and improving their shipboard facilities to accommodate various types of business sessions.

Many firms offer cruises as a sales incentive to their employees and their families. One strong selling point has been that companies can include large numbers of employees to travel together.

A "Girl Friday" with all the abilities of an executive secretary is provided by many shipping lines. She will keep your correspondence up to date and one ca ntelephone the office daily.

THE SHIP becomes your headquarters for 24 hours a day with meals, rooms, recreation and entertainment and in fact traveling aboard today's ships is like being aboard a floating hotel. They have been so updated many rooms now have private telephones, personally controlled air-conditioning and equipped gyms for one to take a workout or a sauna bath.

There are, of course, beauty salons, shops, barber shops and libraries.

For the traveler who has sailed the luxury liners and wishes something more casual, there are the cargo vessels. These ships usually carry only 12 passengers. One need never dress for dinner and those wishing a truly restful voyage would do well to consider these ships.

THEY HAVE large, roomy staterooms, swimming pools and most of the same facilities of the luxury liner. They frequently put into exotic out-of-the-way ports the posh cruisers do not.

A Disagreeable Job: Taking Old Finish Off Your Furniture

The most disagreeable part of refinishing furniture is the removal of the old finish, especially if several coats must be taken off and even more if the wood has been stained.

It's a chore that requires care and patience. At its best, it's messy. And it's psychologically unsatisfactory, because it involves an act of preparation, which most persons seem instinctively to dislike.

Perhaps that's why so many homeowners slap paint on the outside of their houses without first taking the necessary and vital steps of scraping, sanding, caulking and otherwise preparing the surface.

WHILE THERE are a number of ways of removing varnish or other finish from furniture — a process known professionally as stripping — the old reliable method of using a chemical remover is probably best.

Since the liquid type of varnish remover is inclined to run on vertical surfaces, the semipaste variety is usually used on furniture. Actually, the semipaste remover is more liquid than paste, but doesn't run as much because it is gooey.

Both types are applied with a clean, full-haired paint-brush, using a flowing stroke and utilizing more of the flat of the brush than the bristle tips.

THE REMOVER should not be brushed out, as with paint. It should be spread out evenly and fully, but without going back over any part of the surface to which it has already been applied.

Check the label on the container to determine how long to wait before attempting to take off the remover and, with it, the old finish. Depending on the particular brand of remover, the recommended waiting period will be 15, 20 or 30 minutes.

The most common mistake is to start taking off the remover too soon. Using a putty knife and holding it almost horizontally so as not to gouge the wood, test a portion of the surface. If the finish seems to resist your efforts, wait another 15 minutes or so. If you still don't make any immediate progress, apply a second coat of remover right over the old one. Then go to work on the old finish.

SOMETIMES you will get off most of the varnish, but not all. In that event, use a wire brush or steel wool on the residue.

Where there are carvings which cannot be effectively reached with a putty knife without danger of causing damage, try an old, clean toothbrush.

When a stain has settled deeply into the wood, traces will remain even after several applications of remover. One trick that occasionally works is to rub the stained areas with steel wool soaked in a mixture of detergent and water. The detergent and water tends to pull some of the coloring up and out of the wood.

AS A LAST resort, it may be necessary to bleach the wood with a ready-made commercial bleach. A very important step in the use of any remover or bleach is to follow carefully the directions about cleansing the surface of the wood after the job is finished.

Remember that removers and bleaches are chemicals that must be handled with caution.

BRIGHT IDEAS

Stenciling Elegance On Walls

With a simple stencil and paint, you can achieve a decorator wallpaper effect.

The stencil has to be drawn and hand-cut (by you).

Use a shirt cardboard or oiled stencil paper and cut with a single-edged blade or sharp knife. A stipple brush is fine for applying the paint, or use a spray can. But if you spray, make sure the stencil is large enough to mask the wall well.

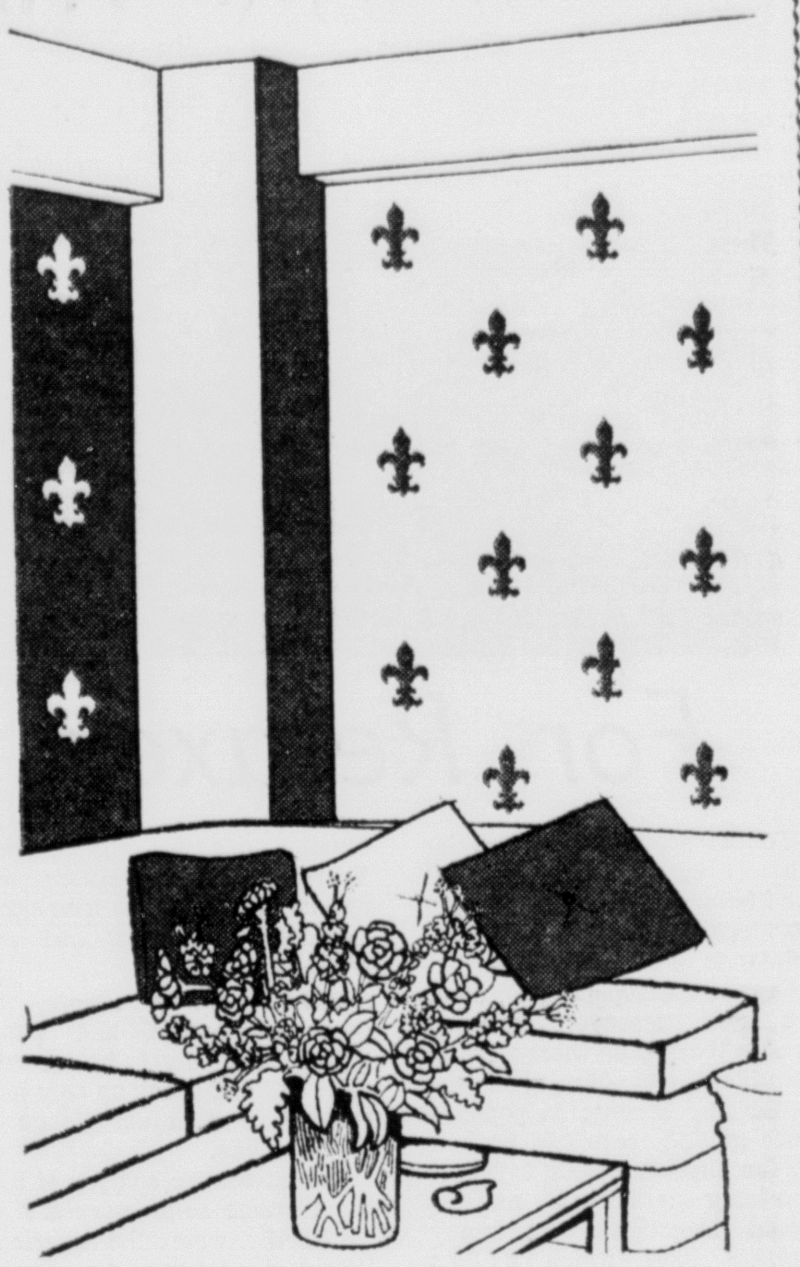
Hold the stencil firmly and flat against the wall with the left hand while you paint with your right. Or have another person hold the stencil while you do the painting.

As pre-painting planning, place lightly penciled tick-marks on the wall, using a yardstick, for positioning of your ornaments.

Use your own good taste in choosing color. Gold and silver paints lend real beauty to stark white walls. Blue fleur-de-lis on a white wall and white fleur-de-lis on an adjacent blue wall create an effect of elegance.

Stars, seashells, hearts and diamonds are only a few of the design possibilities.

Stipple brush and oiled stencil paper may be purchased at paint or art supply stores.



ONCE BARE WALLS have taken on a look of elegance, given a decorator design through the creative use of a stencil and paint.

Roller Is Versatile Tool When The Right One Is Used Properly

The role of rollers as a painting tool is rapidly broadening, as more and more homeowners turn to the "do-it-yourself" principle for both exterior and interior paint jobs.

Quick and easy to use, rollers have always appealed to the do-it-yourselfer. Now, refinements in roller design go still further to provide flexibility, speed difficult paint jobs and achieve professional-looking results.

Usually, the do-it-yourselfer will find that more than one roller is necessary if the finished job is to look really finished.

For painting broad expanses, it's "merrily we roll along" with a large roller, deep-napped for rough textured surfaces, short-napped or standard-napped for smoother surfaces.

The "nap" refers to the wicking capacity of the roller covering — how much paint it can hold, ready to roll on.

For angled edges, hard-to-paint corners, hard-to-reach areas and contoured surfaces, both specially-shaped rollers and ingenuity in using them are helpful.

A specially-shaped roller for corner painting has a ridged, angular core that fits up again both wall corners at once.

In painting house exteriors, an offset edging roller is useful. Undersides of house shakes should be "caught" with this roller, before painting the broad exposed areas of the shakes with a heavy-duty, deep nap roller.

A welcome innovation is the wrap-around roller with flexible axle. It conforms to the contoured surfaces, thus speeding painting of stair rails and newel posts.

Marin Lily Lovers, Take Notice

Garden Page

Among the greatest joys of gardening are the lilies — handsome hybrids now ready for November planting in Marin gardens.

These will glorify your garden next summer and for many summers to come, provided they are given certain cultural advantages at planting time.

FORERUNNERS of the modern garden lilies were the old-fashioned Tiger Lilies of a few decades back. They underwent dramatic changes during the 1940s and early 1950s when Jan deGraff developed a fabulous sequence of new hybrids in his Oregon growing grounds.

The magnificent white Olympic Hybrids and the multi-hued Mid Century Hybrids or Fiesta Hybrids led the way to wondrous new showpieces for home gardeners.

These are still popular, and new introductions have continued to liven the lily lover's life. A nurseryman can fill you in on the best varieties for our garden conditions.

AS MENTIONED above, these lilies can glorify your garden next summer only if their cultural needs are satisfied. Lilies can be a disappointment if they are not properly planted.

What are their needs?

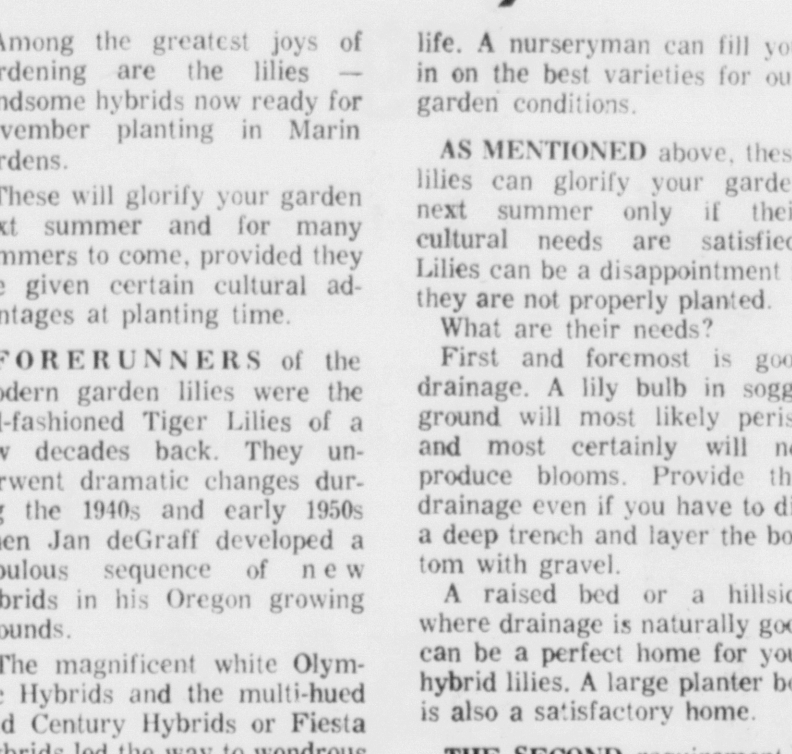
First and foremost is good drainage. A lily bulb in soggy ground will most likely perish and most certainly will not produce blooms. Provide this drainage even if you have to dig a deep trench and layer the bottom with gravel.

A raised bed or a hillside where drainage is naturally good can be a perfect home for your hybrid lilies. A large planter box is also a satisfactory home.

THE SECOND requirement is for a cool, loose soil, one that's rich in humus such as peat moss or compost. Given this, a lily won't mind having its top in full sun. And at planting time, encase the bulb in sand.

A third precaution to observe is planting the bulb as soon as possible after buying it.

The lily's dormant period is short and leaving it out of the ground for any length of time can only diminish its vigor.



NOVEMBER IS the month for bulb-planting. A whole wide range of tubers, from the lily to the daffodil, planted now, will reward you with a harvest of color in the spring.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Roses will continue to bloom if you water them well and keep the faded blooms pruned off.
- Poorly performing roses should be uprooted so you can prepare new soil before planting new varieties when they arrive at your nursery in December.
- Re-seed bare patches in the lawn after first roughing the area well with a rake. If the bare spots are compacted, use a coring tool or turn the soil to break through.
- Remove fallen leaves and other debris from the garden. The serve as breeding places for garden pests and disease.
- Calla Lilies may be planted this month, as can all spring-flowering bulbs.
- Maintain a regular watering schedule and do not depend entirely upon fall rains to do that work for you.

TV Commercials—Where The Money Is

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A Kansas farmer, in financial trouble after a crop failure, recently was picked to star, anonymously, in a cigarette company's series of commercials.

The unexpected thousands of dollars saved him from disaster.

A WELL-KNOWN comedian who makes occasional guest-star appearances recently was offered $75,000 to make a series of commercials — and turned it down. His previous lucrative experience in commercials, he found, interfered with professional bookings.

Two unknown young dancers were cast in a series of automobile commercials and found their original pay plus residuals brought each of them $60,000.

For the performers there is gold in the 250-million-dollar a year subdivision of television concerned with turning out 100,000 or so sales messages annually.

THERE ARE established stars in this special world of commercials, including professional actors like Herschel Bernardi, Mason Adams and Mel Blanc who specialize in providing the persuasive voices that do the selling. Although their faces are rarely if ever seen, their annual incomes often run into six figures — compared to a production cost ranging from $1,000, for a quickie for local use, to $80,000.

Most commercials, however, are "cast" like entertainment shows.

Performers are members of either the Screen Actors Guild or the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, for taped commercials. Usually they are interviewed and tested on camera. About one-third of the SAG membership's total income comes from commercials — around 30 million dollars a year.

UNDER THE SAG scale, "principals" in a commercial — anyone who is in any way identifiable with the selling of the product — receive a minimum of an eight-hour day $120 for working on camera. If only the voice is used, the price is $90.

That, however, is just the beginning, since there is an incredibly complicated schedule of residual payments based on the number of times a commercial is used, the number of markets in which it is used and the size of the marketing area and audience.

A performer in a Class A commercial used in a network series could easily pick up an additional $700 if it were used 13 times over a 13-week period.

BECAUSE MOST commercials require an atmosphere of reality — housewives who seemed genuinely enchanted by their detergents, husbands who suffer terrible tension headaches — a number of training schools for the specialty have been started.

Maxine Anderson, whose specialty is casting commercials in Hollywood for a number of big advertising agencies, conducts six-week courses — price: $100 — designed mainly to teach actors not to act or sound like actors.

She instructs them to act like an advertising executive's idea of the average harried housewife or husband, how to work with cue cards and prompters and even how to dress and act at an audition.

"I DON'T THINK, though, that making commercials is enough for a career," Miss Anderson said frankly. "Too many things can happen — including the competition for jobs — for that. And if you are in demand, there are always problems of conflicts in products — you obviously can't appear in commercials of two competing cigarette, soap or automobile sponsors — and they are among the heaviest advertisers."

"My most successful performers are people who have other jobs, real estate or insurance, or are married and have children," said Miss Anderson. "Most of them started in show business, got away from it but still like it."

Those Exotic TV Locations Spell Trouble

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The reward from the growing trend of filming in remote places is exotic, often breathtaking scenery. But the headaches can be annoying, sometimes monumental.

Television's "Tarzan" series was shot for six months in the jungles of Brazil. "Then it rained and rained and rained," an aide recalls. "Equipment bogged down on jungle trails." The company moved to the more convenient jungles of Mexico.

"I SPY," on location in Greece, ran into a coup that temporarily canceled filming permits and sent overhead soaring. The troupe is presently in remote hills of Mexico, where an advance man listed at the top of needed supplies: "insect repellant, mosquito netting, fly spray."

Just back from opposite sides of the earth the other day were Jay North, co-star of TV's "Maya," filmed in India, and Peter Glenville, producer-director of the current Richard Burton-Elizabeth Taylor movie, "The Comedians." About 40 per cent of it was made in Dahomey, on the west coast of Africa.

North was TV's "Dennis the Menace" when he was 7 to 11 years old. Now a lanky 16, he reports that he and his Indian co-star, Sajid Khan, 15, were menaced for real by a rock barrage from angry natives of Kashmir, which wants its independence from India.

IN A RAVINE, with 1,000 or more watching the filming from above, boulders suddenly started flying down.

"This was Moslem territory and we had a Hindu crew from Bombay," Dennis recalled. "One of the agitators came up to me and said, 'Throw a rock at the crew.' Instead, I crawled under a camera pad and Sajid hid under an umbrella."

Neither was hurt. After police routed the crowd, Dennis helped salve and bind up wounds of the several injured.

ASIDE FROM the one outburst of violence, there was a monotonous diet of "mutton, chicken and goose, goose, chicken and mutton. And string beans I can't look at." On home leave, his passion was Mexican food.

Despite the rigors, Dennis flies back to India soon for eight more "Maya" segments.

Glenville, 54, a lean, deep-voiced Briton, had a creator's view of distant filming: "If you choose well, the advantages are enormous."

"THE COMEDIANS," a grim tale of oppression under the Duvalier regime in Haiti, obviously couldn't be filmed there. Glenville used Dahomey's harbor city of Cotonou and two nearby towns as doubles for Port au Prince.

"The only real hardship was the weather, which reached 130 degrees. Food is flown every day from Paris for the hotels," Glenville said.

He hired 2,000 extras at $4 a day, "which buys a lot in Dahomey." This irked their usual employers, who pay 75 cents a day and feared the larger sum would give them big ideas. Extras in Hollywood get $20 a day.

THE CREW stayed in two air-conditioned hotels, the cast in five villas lent by Dahomey's president. And how did Liz and Dick spend their spare time?

"Going for walks, making love and arguing," said Glenville. Arguing? "Yes, about nothing, as people in love do. Like whether roses grow better in January or February."

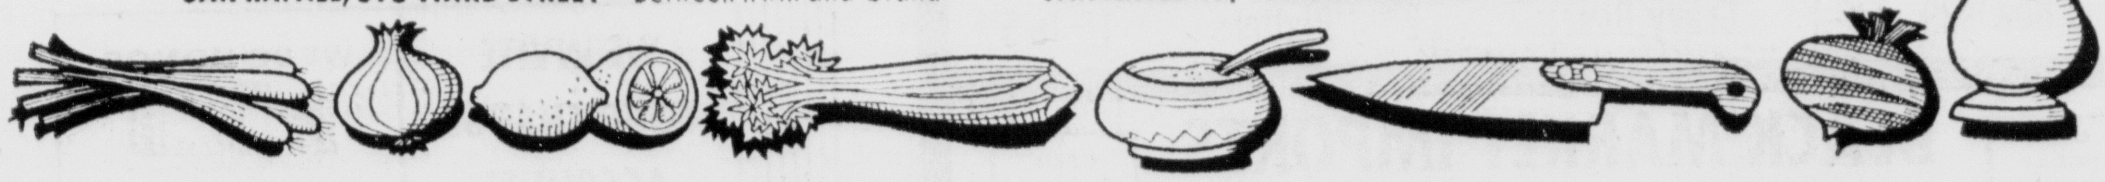
SAN RAFAEL, 515 THIRD STREET — Between Irwin and Grand

SAN ANSELMO, 100 REDHILL AVE. — On the Miracle Mile



Tyrolean Chicken Features Spaetzle

From Mrs. Th. Dieterle, 79 Woodland Road, Fairfax.

CHICKEN PAPRIKA

1 frying chicken, cut into 6 parts (legs, wings, back and breast)
salt for rubbing
1 stick butter
1 cup chopped onion
1-2 tsp. paprika
1 cup sour cream

Rub chicken pieces with salt, then fry slowly in butter in large pan. (After browning, cover pan partially.) After about 45-50 minutes remove chicken to center of heat-proof platter, keep warm in 250° oven. Add paprika and onion to butter in which chicken has been cooked, stir well, cook over low heat until done. When ready for serving, add sour cream to onions, heat, mask chicken pieces with onion sauce, arrange Spaetzle in circle around it.

SPAETZLE

These are drop noodles; easy to do. Begin making while chicken is frying. Bring to boil about 3 quarts water with 1 teaspoon salt. Mix together in bowl 2 eggs and 1 cup water. Gradually add to this about 3 and ⅔ cups flour sifted with 1 tsp. salt, stirring, then beating until smooth. Batter should break from spoon. Use teaspoon to drop noodles into boiling water, filling spoon about ⅓ and dipping it into water each time. Cook only one layer at a time (they rise, then continue cooking for about 4-5 minutes). Remove with slotted spoon, draining over the pot. Have another pan, containing ¼ cup butter, over very low heat, add noodles to this, tossing very gently. When all noodles have been cooked this way, arrange around chicken, garnish with parsley. Serve with simple tossed salad.

Serves 4-5 persons.

12 anise seeds
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ cup dry red wine
⅛ teas. garlic powder
⅛ teas. ground ginger
2 teas. beef stock base
2 teas. powdered mushrooms
1 cup hot water
¼ teas. bouquet garni for beef

Place short ribs in deep bowl. Crush anise seeds and combine with soy sauce, wine, garlic powder and ginger. Pour this over the short ribs. Marinate for several hours at room temperature, or overnight in the refrigerator. Stir occasionally.

Drain short ribs and brown in heavy frying pan. Pour off excess fat. Add beef stock base and powdered mushrooms to hot water and combine with marinade. Pour this over browned ribs.

Crush bouquet garni and sprinkle over meat. Cover tightly and simmer slowly for 2 to 2½ hours or until ribs are very tender.

Thicken sauce, if desired with 2 tablespoons flour mixed with small amount of cold water, adding a little at a time to sauce until gravy is desired consistency.

Note: This can be prepared the day before, cooking until almost done so that it can stand in the refrigerator until fat hardens on top and can be scooped off easily. Otherwise it is apt to be too greasy. Or . . . it can be made with English-cut short ribs, which are much leaner. In Hollywood they are called kosher-style.

Serve with mashed potatoes as the gravy is so delicious or steamed rice or boiled noodles.

Rabadanadas Star At Brazilian Table

Though Brazil doesn't have a white Christmas, it does have a merry one — despite the fact that it's celebrated during the summmer season. The children take part in the ancient custom of building the creche, and after midnight mass the family sits down to a gala Christmas dinner.

The familiar holiday stuffed turkey is often the main dish, but it is followed by a typical South American demitasse and dessert. A Christmas dessert found in Brazilian homes, both rich and poor, is Rabanadas. Puffy, cinnamon-sugar Rabanadas are the Latin version of French toast, enlivened with a touch of wine. Though simple to make, you'll find that they are delicious for a quick coffee break or breakast party when you'd like a new holiday treat.

Coffee in the Brazilian style is rich, flavorful demitasse. You may prepare demitasse by brewing one coffee measure (equal to two level measuring tablespoons) of coffee to each four ounces of water per serving.

CHRISTMAS RABANADAS

2 cups milk
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablepoons port wine
3 eggs, separated
8 slices white bread cut ¾-inch thick
1 cup vegetable oil
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt

Combine milk, 2 tablespoons sugar and wine. Beat egg whites stiff; add egg yolks one at a time while continuing to beat. Soak bread slices in milk mixture for a few minutes. Heat oil in large skillet over moderate heat. Dip each soaked bread slice in egg mixture. Brown on both sides in hot oil. Drain on absorbent paper. Combine 1 cup sugar, cinnamon and salt. Cover bottom of oven-proof tray with half this mixture. Place slices on top; cover with remaining sugar-cinnamon mixture. Keep warm in slow oven until ready to serve. Makes 8 Servings.

OUR LATIN AMERICAN neighbors complete their Christmas Eve dinner with sweet and simple Rabanadas and dainty cups of flavorful coffee. It's an egg-dipped cinnamon toast.

Vermicelli Salad Is Unusual

From Mrs. Ronald Alberts, 1418 Hill Street, Novato.

VERMICELLI SALAD

1 lb. vermicelli, broken into small pieces
1 can tiny shrimp
1 can crabmeat
1 cup diced celery
2 T. minced onion mayonnaise
salt
pepper
lettuce leaves for garnish

Cook vermicelli as directed on package. Drain. Rinse with cold water. Add drained shrimp, crab, celery and onion. Add mayonnaise to moisten. Salt and pepper to taste. Serve in a bowl in which lettuce leaves have been arranged around sides.

"This salad was served several years ago at a party we attended. We serve it quite often when entertaining and it is always a great success. It is so well liked because of its unusual flavor," says Mrs. Alberts.

Dinner Is Small But Festive

Having Thanksgiving dinner away from the family hearth this year? Or are only two or three left at home? Want to impress a bachelor and, perhaps, another couple?

If your answer to any of these questions is "Yes," this menu if for you. It's easy to prepare—and festive as all get out!

THANKSGIVING DINNER
(for Two to Four)
Rafts of Fancy Fruits
Roast Duckling
Whipped Potatoes
Sherried Green Beans
Parmesan Sticks
Pumpkin Pie with Ginger Cream, Almondine
Preferred Beverages

A day or two ahead, buy the duckling and check your recipe files for a simple (most of them are) roast duckling recipe. Shop for the fresh produce, canned, dairy and packaged items and either bake or buy a good pumpkin pie (plan to use either powered or candied ginger, finely cut, for the pie cream). Check your beverage supplies and you'll be all set.

ON THE GREAT DAY you can do several things well ahead that we usually think of as "last minute" chores. For the salads, cut 1-inch thick slices (1 per person) from strongly or just fairly firm heads of western iceberg lettuce and sprinkle them with orange juice. On the rafts, arrange orange juice-dipped slices of red-skinned apples and avocado crescents with fresh orange slices or segments and strips or rings of green pepper and onion. Cove tightly with plastic wrap, refirgerate until serving time; then present with a light dousing of an oil and vinegar dressing subtly seasoned with dry mustard, salt and a little white pepper.

Serve this main course in separate dishes or all on one platter as shown in the photo. (A single, big-platter presentation can be very dramatic.) Use packaged potatoes if you wish, but make them look very fancy by putting them through a pastry tube and by garnishing them with Tokay grapes. Tuck parsley between the duck's legs and decorate the neck area with a twist of orange. Arrange the Blue Lake beans in fan-like fashion as shown.

THE DUCK IS RICH and you're having buttery potatoes and a big dessert, so Parmesan Sticks take care of the bread question nicely. Buy long and skinny or regular breadsticks; brush lightly with olive oil or Italian salad dressing and heat thoroughly; sprinkle with grated Parmesan and put back into the oven for a minute or two; then let them cool before serving so they'll be crisp.

For the elegant dessert, fold finely cut candied ginger into stiffly whipped cream; dollop the flavored cream onto each serving and garnish with toasted slivered almonds. Assuming you have taken care of the beverage preferences by this time, that's it

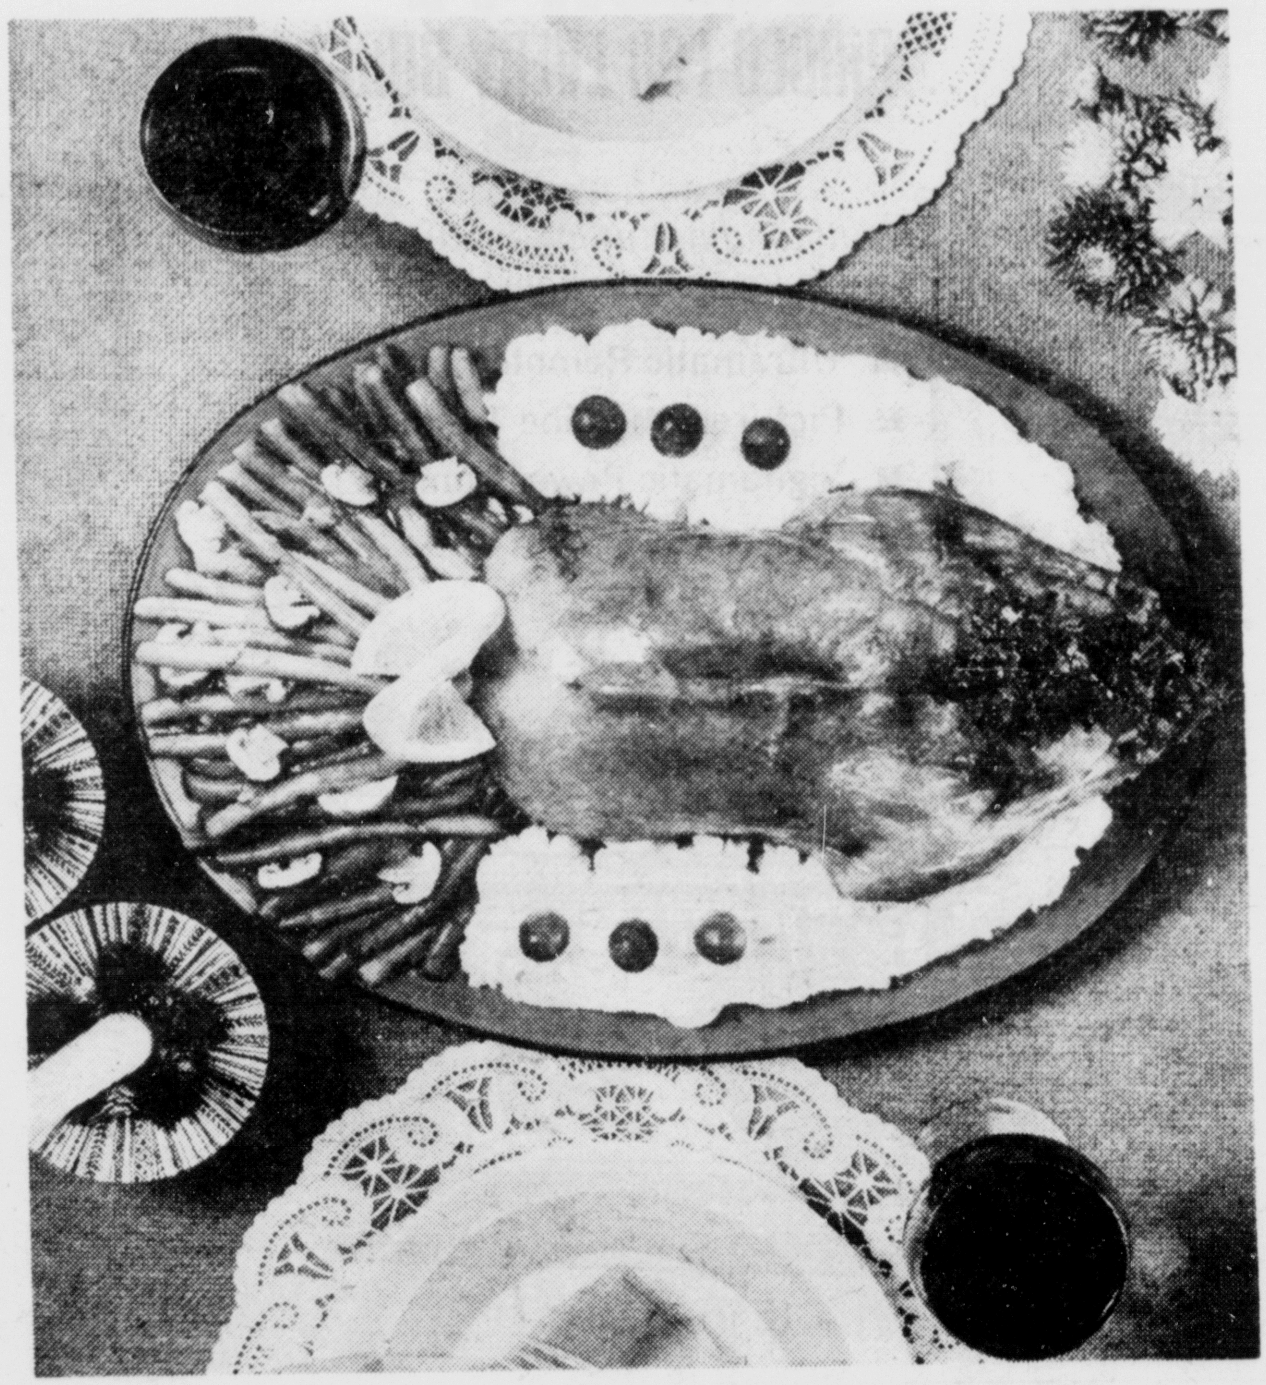
1 can (1 lb.) whole vertical pack Blue Lake green beans
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons Sherry wine
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups fresh mushrooms, sliced

Drain beans, saving ¾ cup liquid. Blend cornstarch with a little liquid in saucepan, stir in remaining liquid, butter, Sherry, soy sauce, horseradish and salt. Cook, stirring, a few minutes until thickened and clear. Add beans and mushrooms, heat through. Makes 2 to 4 servings.



BRONZE ROASTED DUCKLING is the brilliant star of this festive menu for two to four, with green beans and mushrooms seasoned with sherry and soy as the perfect answer to the vegetable question.

Plum Pudding With A Sauce Traditional

From Mrs. Durand Hart, 375 Sausalito Street, Corte Madera.

MARIN PLUM PUDDING
2 cups seeded raisins, cut
1 cup currants
⅔ cup mixed candied peel
2 teaspoons mixed ground spices
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
grated rind of 2 lemons
1½ cups bread crumbs
1 cup sifted flour
2 cups beef suet, finely chopped
1 cup grape juice
6 eggs

Combine fruits, peel, spices, sugar, salt and lemon rind. Blend separately crumbs, flour and suet. Add to fruits and moisten with grape juice and well beaten eggs. Turn into two well greased bowls or molds filling not more than ⅔ full. Place in deep well on rack over 2 cups water. Bring to steam on high and turn to low to steam for six hours.

If puddings are to be kept for any length of time, remove greased paper and replace with fresh paper before storing away. At the time of serving, steam one hour and serve with hard sauce or a clear dessert sauce.

FOAMY SAUCE
2 eggs separated
1 cup powdered sugar
3 tablespoons wine

Beat yolks very lightly. Add sugar and heat again. Add stiffly beaten egg whites and wine. Pour over plum pudding.

Mrs. Hart explains, "This festive recipe has been in my family every since our English nanny brought it from Liverpool many years ago. Although it is English we call it Marin Plum Pudding."

Grapefruit With Mint

From Mrs. Roger Erickson, 96 Park Drive, San Anselmo.

MINT SLUSH
(Serves 10)
3 cups water
2 cups sugar
20 oz. grapefruit juice
16 drops mint flavoring
½ -¾ teasp. green coloring

Freeze, then thaw to mush and serve with maraschino cherry in each serving.

"Received this recipe from an old family friend years ago. As you can imagine, the colors are perfect for Christmas time," Chris Erickson remarks.

½ cup brown sugar
½ cup shortening
½ teaspoon salt

Blend ingredients and pack in bottom of lightly greased cookie pan 8x8 inches.

II.

Beat two eggs, then add
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup white sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup walnuts, chopped
¼ cup maraschino cherries, chopped

Mix ingredients well and spread over the above mixture. Bake 20 to 30 minutes at 350°. Cut into squares or bars. No frosting necessary.

"We especially like the cookie because it is chewy and brownie like and the red maraschino cherries give it that festive holiday look. It is my husband's favorite," Mrs. Behrens adds.

AN ELEGANT MEAL

These Cornish Game Hens Take An Orangey Flavor

From Mrs. Donna Tessandori, 64 Scenic Avenue, San Rafael.

GAME HENS L'ORANGE

4 Cornish game hens
2 cans frozen orange juice un-diluted
½ lb. butter or margarine garlic salt

Stuffing:

8 slices day old bread in small chunks
1 small onion — chopped
½ green pepper — chopped
giblets
1 stalk celery — chopped grated rind from one orange salt, pepper

Take game hens, rinse inside and dry thoroughly. Leave at room temperature while preparing stuffing. Preheat oven to 425°. Boil giblets in salted water till done. Melt 2 tbs. butter in frypan and saute celery, onion, green pepper until soft. Mix with bread, orange rind, giblets and spices. Stuff hens and secure openings. Place hens and butter in baking dish and sprinkle lightly with garlic salt. Pour juice over hens and bake at 425° for 15 minutes. Baste, reduce heat to 325° and bake another 45 minutes, basting every 15 minutes. One vegetable and a crisp green salad will be sufficient to accompany this hearty and elegant meal.

"This recipe was adapted from a recipe my husband had used for years. When we married, I changed things a little.

From Chantilly Cook Comes Boulangerie

POMMES DE TERRE BOULANGERIE

6 medium baking potatoes
4 medium onions
Gruyere cheese
1½ cups chicken stock (bouillon cubes will do)
Butter
Bread crumbs
Grated parmesan cheese
Salt
Pepper
Carraway seeds

Peel potatoes and slice thinly as for scalloping. Make thin onion rings. Thinly slice the gruyere cheese.

In a well greased 3 quart casserole (preferably earthenware) place a layer of potatoes, a layer of onions and a layer of the sliced gruyere. Lightly salt and pepper and sprinkle with small amount of carraway.

Continue layering process until container is full. Pour 1½ cups stock over mixture. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and parmesan cheese and dot heavily with butter.

Cover top with wax paper and bake at 350° for 1½ hours. Remove waxpaper during last ½ hour to permit browning.

As a variation, you may add layers of thinly sliced tomato rings, with each cheese layer on top of the tomatoes. You would substitute sweet basil for the carraway in this case and use 1½ cups to tomato soup rather than chicken stock.

Here Is How You Can Create Glamorous Frosted Petits Fours

MINCE MEAT PETITS FOURS
(Makes abour 6 dozen 1-inch square cakes)

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup sugar
½ cup (¼ lb.) margarine, melted
1 28-oz. jar ready-to-use mince meat
1 cup chopped pecans

Sift together flour and baking powder. In a large-size mixing bowl, with a rotary beater, beat eggs and sugar until foamy. Add melted margarine, mince meat and pecans; mix well. Fold in dry ingredients. Grease two 8-inch square pans. Line with waxed paper; grease again. Divide batter evenly into prepared pans. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven about 40 minutes or until cakes test done. Cool cakes in pans about 10 minutes; turn out onto cooling racks and remove waxed paper. When cakes are cool, wrap in aluminum foil. Chill in refrigerator about 3 hours or overnight. Remove from refrigerator. Carefully cut away crusty edges. Using a ruler, cut cakes into 1-inch squares. Return cut cake to refrigerator while preparing Petits Fours Frosting.

To substitute condensed mince meat: In a medium-size saucepan, break two 9-oz. packages mince meat into small pieces. Add 1½ cups water. Bring to a boil over medium heat; stir to break lumps. Boil briskly for 1 minute. Cool.

PETITS FOURS FROSTING
(Makes enough frosting for about 12 Petits Fours)

¾ cup (one-half 15-oz. can) sweetened condensed milk
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
2¼ cups confectioners' sugar

Few drops red, green and yellow food coloring

In a medium-size mixing bowl blend together sweetened condensed milk and extracts. Gradually stir in 2 cups of the sugar; stir until smooth and well blended. Stir in a few drops red food coloring. Add remaining ¼ cup sugar; blend until smooth and of pouring consistency. Place 12 of the 1-inch cake squares on a cooling rack on a sheet of waxed paper. Keep remaining cakes refrigerated. With a large spoon, carefully pour frosting over cake squares to cover entire surface of cakes. (Return frosting from waxed paper to bowl.) Let Petits Fours dry on rack about 2 hours or until smooth to touch. Prepare Petits Fours Frosting 5 additional times, tinting one recipe with red food coloring, two recipes with green food coloring and the remaining two recipes with yellow food coloring. Frost remaining cake squares in five groups of 12 each. Dry Petits Fours should be stored in refrigerator until served. If desired, decorate Petits Fours with fancy novelties.

NOTE: Unfrosted cakes may be wrapped in aluminum foil and frozen until needed. Frosted Petits Fours may be kept in the refrigerator (or) 1 week.

Mince Meat Shows Off Versatile Cook

Versatility, hallmark of good cookie making, is so easy to achieve. Start with a treasured mainstay — what better than mince meat? —then dream of all its possibilities. Envision sugar-coated snowballs and appliques iced with color, or cutouts of stars, bells, and little men. Think of plain rounds in fancy dress — a jaunty red cherry or nestled with nuts, and tempting blends of coconut or peanut butter.

SPICY SNOW BALLS

(Makes 3 dozen one-inch diameter cookies)

- 2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup (2 sticks) margarine, softened
- ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar.
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- ¾ cup finely chopped pecans
- 1 (9-oz.) package condensed mince meat
- ½ cup confectioners' sugar

Sift together flour and salt. In a large-size bowl, blend margarine, sugar and vanilla together thoroughly. Stir in sifted dry ingredients; then pecans. Break mince meat into very small pieces with a fork. Add to creamed mixture; blend well. Chill dough in refrigerator about 30 minutes. Shape dough into 1-inch diameter balls. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in a hot (400 degree F.) oven, 10 to 12 minutes or until firm. While still warm, roll in confectioners' sugar. Cool; roll again in sugar.

REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

(Makes 7½ dozen two-inch diameter cookies)

- 1 (9-oz.) package condensed mince meat
- 2 eggs
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup (2 sticks) margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup finely chopped walnuts meats
- Colored sugar sprinkles

Break mince meat into small pieces into blender container. Add eggs, vinegar, and vanilla. Blend well. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. In a large-size bowl, cream margarine, brown sugar, and white sugar together until light. Add mince meat and flour mixtures; mix well. Stir in nuts. Divide dough into thirds; place each third on a separate sheet of waxed paper. Shape each into a 1-inch diameter roll; wrap in waxed paper. Chill dough in refrigerator 4 hours. Thoroughly coat rolls with sprinkles. Cut into ⅛-¼ inch slices. Bake on well-greased baking sheet in a hot (400 degree F.) oven 12 minutes. Cool slightly; remove from baking sheet.

MINCED CHERRY DROPS

(Makes 8 dozen two-inch diameter cookies)

- 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup (2 sticks) margarine
- 1½ cups firmly packed light brown sugar
- 3 eggs
- ¼ cup homogenized milk
- 2 (9-oz.) packages condensed mince meat
- 2 cups whole pecan halves
- 2 cups (two 8-oz. jars) whole red glace cherries
- 3 (1 pound) bottles red maraschino cherries with stems, drained

Sift together flour and salt. In a large-size mixing bowl, cream margarine and sugar together until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs. Blend in sifted dry ingredients. Add milk; blend well. Break mince meat into small pieces with a fork. With a mixing spoon, stir in mince meat, pecans and cherries. Stir until the fruits and nuts are thoroughly coated with the batter. Drop by teaspoonfuls, 2-3 inches apart onto well-greased baking sheet. Place a cherry, stem upright, in center of each cookie. Bake in moderate (350 degree F.) oven, 15 minutes. Cool slightly; remove from baking sheet.

PARTY COOKIE MEN

(Makes 21-24 six-inch men)

- 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup (1 stick) margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 (9-oz.) package condensed mince meat

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In a large-size mixing bowl, cream margarine and sugar together until light. Beat in egg and vanilla. Chop mince meat into small pieces; stir into margarine mixture. Gradually blend in sifted dry ingredients. Chill dough in refrigerator about 2 hours. Divide dough into thirds. On a lightly floured board or pastry cloth, roll one-third of dough (keep remaining dough in refrigerator) to ⅛-inch thickness. Press 6-inch gingerbread man cutter into dough (if necessary, use sharp pointed knife to cut around cutter to be sure of cutting through mince meat). Carefully place men on ungreased baking sheet. Roll out and cut remaining dough, one-third at a time. (Scraps may be gathered together and rolled out once more.) Bake in a moderate (375 degree F.) oven about 8-10 minutes or until lightly browned.

Try Upside-Down Cake

"Let's meet at my house tomorrow afternoon to plan the special holiday program for the PTA (club, or Sunday school class) meeting." During the busy rush of the season it is often quite difficult and time consuming to plan activities by telephone. Getting all of the committee together to plan is certainly more efficient . . . and it's also more fun for the hostess as well as the members of the committee.

IF YOU'RE THE hostess with a what-to-serve problem, clip this recipe for Cranberry Upside-Down Cake. Not only is it handsome, but it has an outstanding deliciousness that is a surprise and a delight. Not too rich, not too sweet . . . it's a dessert especially good for afternoon or evening entertaining. With it, serve lots of hot coffee. Mints and salted nuts may be passed, if you wish.

CRANBERRY UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

1 can (1 lb.) whole cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
½ cup sugar
4 thin slices lemon
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts, or other nuts
1 pkg. spice, or yellow cake mix
Whipping cream (optional)

Combine cranberry sauce, butter, sugar and lemon slices in a 9-inch skillet. Cook over low heat until lemon is slightly tender, stirring occasionally. Add nuts; mix. Prepare cake mix batter following package directions. Carefully pour 2 cups batter over the cranberry mixture. (Bake rest of batter as cupcakes.) If skilllet handle is not heatproof, remove it. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 35 minutes, until done. Let stand on wire rack 5 minutes to cool slightly. Loosen cake around edges and turn out on serving plate. Serve topped with whipped cream, if desired.

YOU'LL WANT to have extra cans of whole and jellied cranberry sauce on hand to serve with your holiday meals. They may be served chilled, as a garnish for meat or poultry.

Other colorful canned foods to use as garnish are corn relish, pickled beets and olives.

Chafing Dish Best For Seafood Recipe

From Marie Jolly, 5 Circle Drive, San Rafael.

SEAFOOD AU GRATIN

Melt ¼ C margarine in saucepan. Add ¼ C flour, cook for a moment or two. Remove from heat and beat in ¾ C hot milk. When smooth return to heat and add ¾ C dry white wine, ½ C grated cheddar cheese (or 1 pkg. powdered cheese sauce mix), 1 tsp. dill and salt and pepper to taste. Stir until smooth.

Add to sauce 1 lb. shrimp, 1 pkg. frozen artichoke hearts cooked and ½ lb. fresh sliced mushrooms which have been gently browned in 2 T margarine with 2 T minced onion.

Any seafood or even diced chicken may be substituted for the shrimp.

This may be served from a chafing dish over fluffy rice, or it may be put in a casserole sprinkled with crumbs and dotted with butter and baked at 375° for 30 minutes.

Few Minutes Of Three Days Will Create Candied Fruit

The holiday spirit invades the kitchen when you start preparing tasty confections. Homemade fudge, fondant, fruitcakes and an assortment of cookies are especially appealing during the holiday season.

THIS YEAR start out by turning canned sliced pineapple into a luscious confection . . . Candied Pineapple. What a treat for family and friends!

The first day the pineapple is simply drained well and covered with sugar. The second day it is emptied into a skillet to boil 5 minutes, then the heat is reduced to let the pineapple simmer gently 15 minutes. Regulating the heat so that the pineapple simmers without scorching or turning brown is easy on a modern range. After cooking, the pineapple is put on a wire rack and covered heavily with confectioners sugar. Then, it is left at room temperature to dry for 24 hours. A crusty glaze will form after the pineapple stands on the wire rack overnight. Easy, isn't it?

CANDIED PINEAPPLE will add a new attractive note to your gift packages. You'll use it in candies, cookies, puddings and cakes during the holidays. Gaily decorated boxes of homemade "goodies" make a nice remembrance for friends who drop in for a visit during the holiday season.

Deck a fruitcake with the confection to serve at your Christmas or New Year's openhouse. A Wassail Bowl is a festive punch to serve. It can easily be made using canned apple juice with the appropriate spices. Serve it hot, in small cups or heatproof punch cups. Set the punch bowl on a tray decorated with greens and candy canes.

CANDIED PINEAPPLE

⅛ can (1 lb. 4 oz.) sliced pineapple
1¾ cups granulated sugar
Confectioners (powdered) sugar

Drain syrup from pineapple thoroughly. (Allow to drain in a colander several minutes.) Cover bottom and top of slices with the granulated sugar; store about 24 hours at room temperature. Empty into large skillet and boil 5 minutes; reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Turn occasionally during the cooking, taking care that it does not scorch or turn brown. Remove slices to a wire rack to dry about 24 hours. Pat sides and edges of slices heavily with sifted confectioners sugar. A crusty glaze will form after standing overnight. To retain crusty glaze, store in a loosely covered container.

FROM MEXICAN BORDER

A Dip That's Different Is This Chile Con Queso

From Mrs. Edmund R. Antonucci, 39 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield.

CHILE CON QUESO

1 can green chile peppers (roasted)
1 large onion — diced
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 pint cream
1 lb. grated cheese

Place oil in heavy skillet and cook diced onion over medium heat until soft (not brown) add chopped chile peppers and stewed tomatoes. Let this mixture simmer until nearly all liquid has gone — stirring frequently. Heat cream until it is warm (Carnation milk may be substituted) — add this to mixture — keep stirring — then add cheese. Velveeta is very good or you may use cheddar. Add salt and pepper to taste and even a touch of tabasco. However most of our friends find it just right without additional hot pepper seasoning.

This is a dip and may be served hot or cold. Delicious in a chafing dish with corn chips, potato chips, etc.

"I lived on the Mexican border for many years and learned this recipe after one of many outdoor parties. I learned to love spicy Spanish food and have not met anyone who doesn't love this cheese dip," Mrs. Antonucci comments.

Bachelor Ad Libs Successful Venture—Sweet, Sour Ragout

FON HAY CHOY (HAPPY POT)

1 tblsp. salt
pepper to taste
2 lbs. beef stew meat, cubed to 1"
¼ cup cooking oil
1 cup water
½ cup catsup
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ tsp. Mei Yen seasoning (optional)
1 large onion chopped
3 carrots, julienned
4 medium stalks celery, julienned
1 medium can bean sprouts
1 medium can slice-cut bamboo shoots

Dredge meat in seasoned flour — brown meat in large skillet in hot oil. In a casserole combine water, catsup, brown sugar, vinegar, worcestershire sauce, soy sauce and Mei Yen. Add browned meat, onion and celery. Cover and cook over low heat (45 min.) stirring several times.

Add carrots, bamboo shoots and bean sprouts. Stir in additional seasoned flour to thicken sauce — cover and cook for another 45 minutes or until meat and carrots are tender.

If you wish garnish top with toasted almond slivers and canned mandarin orange sections. Dot heavily with butter an place under broiled for 3-5 min. Serve on mounds of fluffy rice.

Mr. Boyd says his dish is basically a sweet and sour ragout (would you believe French and Chinese?) which was concocted under duress when suddenly faced with six guests.

"As a working bachelor with little kitchen time, I frequently must ad lib. This is one of my most successful adventures. The dish can be prepared in advance and cooked over low heat after guests have arrived."

Stuffed Salmon Tastes Best

From Janice Jill Wheelock, 405 Redwood Road, San Anselmo.

STUFFED SALMON ROAST

1 whole salmon (about 10 lbs. cleaned)
8 slices pumpernickel bread
1 package blanched almonds
6 stalks celery
About 1 cup sherry
Chopped parsley (⅓ cup)
M.S.G. (½ tsp.)

2 cans water chestnuts
¼ lb. butter
Garlic puree (½ tsp)
Salt (½ tsp.)
Poultry seasoning (½ tsp.)
Summer savory (1 tsp.)
Paprika (½ tsp.)
White pepper (¼-⅛ tsp.)

Cube bread and dry in a hot oven until crisp.

Remove backbone and ribs from fish using care not to cut through the skin. Melt butter and add paprika. Brush about two tablespoons of this mixture on the outside of the fish and place the fish on very heavy foil.

Add other seasonings to butter and mix well.

Add butter, sherry, almonds, and water chestnuts (sliced), sliced celery, and parsley to bread. Mix well.

Fill the fish with the stuffing and close foil firmly around the fish.

Bake at 250° for 1½ hours. Turn oven to 375° for 20 to 30 minutes. Serve hot . . . garnished with parsley and lemon slices.

"This recipe originated when I found myself with 10 people coming to dinner and a salmon that I had caught on vacation. It turned out so well I recorded the ingredients and in all modesty can say that this is the best fish dish I have ever eaten," the cook states.

Pastry
2 tablespoons butter
Packaged sliced American cheese
Pecan halves

Drain syrup from apples, add water if necessary to make ¼ cup; combine liquid, apples and the tapioca mixture. Let stand 15 minutes. Pour into an unbaked pastry-lined 8-inch pie pan. Dot with butter. Cover with top pastry, cutting slits to allow escape of steam. Sprinkle with the reserved sugar-spice mixture.

Dutch Shoes Fill With Spekulatius

Saint Nicholas is the saint of children and the ancestor of America's much-loved Santa Claus. In Holland, on the eve of Dec. 6, he fills the children's shoes with lots of tempting goodies. One old favorite is the spicy Spekulatius cookie.

SPEKULATIUS
(Speculaus)

1 cup shortening
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup dairy sour cream
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts

Cream shortening and sugar; blend in sour cream. Mix and sift dry ingredients; add slowly to creamed mixture. (Do not use electric beater because dough will be too stiff.) Stir in walnuts. Divide into 4 portions. Wrap each portion in aluminum foil. Chill several hours or overnight.

Work with one portion of dough at a time, leaving the others in refrigerator. Roll out very thin; cut in fancy shapes. Bake at 350° for 10 minutes. (Roll scraps up in a ball; refrigerate briefly before using.) Frost and decorate as desired. Makes about 6 dozen cookies.

Caviar Dip Idea Springs From The Alaska Frontier

From Mrs. Hilda Eshleman, 10 Eton Way, Mill Valley.

CAVIAR DIP

2 tablespoons finely minced onion
Juice of one lime (or a medium size lemon)

Blend above and let sit at least one half hour.

Just before serving time, blend in 1 medium jar (2 oz.) of small black caviar, reserving ½ teaspoon to mound in the center for decoration.

Serve with ordinary soda crackers, nothing fancy to detract from the flavor.

Mrs. Eshleman says that this recipe was brought from Alaska by a friend who worked among the Indians there, hopping from reservation to reservation by bush pilot's plane. Its flavor is so intriguing and so completely out of the ordinary from the usual party dip fare, her guests never fail to comment favorably.

Spicy Pumpkin Chiffon Pie Is Ideal Holiday Dessert

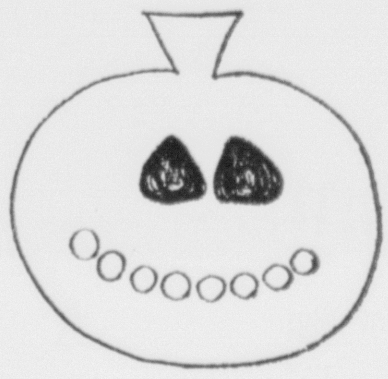
High on the popularity list of desserts is a velvety smooth pumpkin pie. And you'll be serving it often during the fall and winter months. With varied garnishes it can seem like a new pie each time you serve it.

BUT, ADD a touch of the unusual to an old favorite to make it a winner that is long remembered. Spicy Pumpkin Chiffon Pie is this type or recipe . . . and more, too. Spice flavored and airy with whipped cream the pie has an added surprise of a hint of ginger and cinnamon in the pastry shell.

Convenient canned pumpkin is used in a gelatin base . . . which also means a minimum of time spent in the kitchen. Make the pie at your leisure, and put it into the refrigerator.

Pastry cut-outs of pumpkin and leaves make an attractive garnish. Ask the children to draw the patterns for the decorations . . . they'll be proud to show "their" designs to family and friends. Of course, if there's time, they'd enjoy making the decorations, too! Another time you might ask them to make fancy garnishes from sliced cheese.

Light and airy, Spicy Pumpkin



Chiffon Pie is an ideal dessert to climax a hearty holiday dinner. You'll enjoy serving it also for the dessert and coffee refreshments.

SPICED PASTRY SHELL

Add ½ teaspoon each of cinnamon and ginger to the flour when following your favorite recipe for a 9-inch pastry shell.

SPICY PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup canned pumpkin, or squash
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
9-inch baked spiced pastry shell

Sprinkle gelatin over milk in a saucepan to soften. Cook over low heat, stirring, until gelatin is dissolved. Mix sugar, salt and spices; add to milk, mixing well. Add pumpkin; chill until partially thickened. Beat with rotary beater until fluffy. Fold in vanilla and whipped cream. Pour into spiced pastry shell; chill until firm.

RICH SPICY canned puddings are a boon to holiday meals. There are plum, date and fig. The pudding needs only to be heated and served with your favorite sauce. Some prefer hard sauce, while others choose lemon or orange sauce with a bit of the grated rind added for zip. Whipped cream sprinkled with candied fruits makes an especially festive topping.

Canned mincemeat comes ready to use for your holdiay pies. It's delicious used as a topping for ice cream. Or, fill canned pear halves with a spoonful of mincemeat and pop into the oven to heat briefly. Use as is to garnish a meat platter, or top with a custard sauce for a tasty dessert.

Veal Entree With Cheese, Spinach

VEAL WITH GRUYERE CHEESE AND SPINACH

1 egg
1 tsp. spaghetti sauce seasoning
½ tsp salt
¼ cup parmesan cheese
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup salad oil
1 pkg. (10 oz.) chopped spinach, cooked
3 ounces gruyere cheese grated

Beat egg well with spaghetti sauce seasoning and salt. Combine parmesan cheese and bread crumbs. Put veal in egg mixture, then bread crumbs. Put on plastic wrap for 30 minutes to coat well. Brown in hot skillet with oil very fast. Do not overcook meat. Place on serving dish. Combine grated gruyere with spinach. Cover veal with mixture and put in oven under broiler just until cheese melts. Do not wait until cheese browns. Serve immediately.

Good with a tossed green salad and fried tortillas or french rolls, says Mrs. Miersch, who originated the recipe.

BREAKFAST BREAD

Festive Foods —Canapes, Pumpkin Pies For Holidays

The winter holidays come but once a year, and every homemaker wants to make them memorable. In addition to providing a festive atmosphere, she wants to give her family and guests tangible proof of the good will of the season — that is, great feasting.

The skilled homemaker knows that the holidays should be special days of enjoyment, and she wants to spend as little time as possible in the kitchen when guests await. This year, plan for the holidays by preparing some holiday treats days or even weeks ahead and storing them in the freezer or freezing compartment of the refrigerator.

Holiday Nut Bread, for instance, is a splendid bread to have on hand during the festive season, to serve for breakfast on the holidays themselves or to have handy when guests drop in. The bread is moist, mellow with chopped nuts, and may be frosted and garnished with candied fruits. Make two or three loaves and keep them in the freezer.

Soft-type margarine containing liquid safflower oil is a boon for holiday baking. Thanks to its soft texture, you can combine the sugar and margarine for the nut bread right as the spread emerges from the refrigerator or even the freezer; no need to let it stand at room temperateue. Soft-type margarine comes in little plastic tubs and each tub holds one cup, so the spread is as easy to measure as it is to blend.

Canapes, too, are marvelously handy during the holidays, for a platter of beautiful canapes adds flair to eggnog or holiday punch.

HOLIDAY NUT BREAD

2¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup finely chopped nuts
½ cup soft-type margarine containing safflower oil
2 eggs
1¼ cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Measure flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and nuts into mixing bowl. Mix well. Add soft-type margarine and remaining ingredients. Mix at low speed of electric mixer until blended, about one minute, or mix by hand with a spoon. Turn into 9x5x3-inch loaf pan brushed with soft-type margarine. Bake in 350°F. oven 60 to 70 minutes, until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pan; cool. Cover top with Frosting* and garnish with candied fruit.

MAKES: 1 large loaf.

*Frosting

Blend together 2 tablespoons soft-type margarine, ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar, 2 teaspoons milk and ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

PUMPKIN PIE WITH PRALINE TOPPING

Pastry:

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
teaspoon salt
½ cup soft-type margarine containing liquid safflower oil
2 tablespoons cold water

Combine flour and salt in mixing bowl. Cut in soft-type margarine with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle water over mixture a tablespoon at a time, tossing lightly with fork until mixture begins to hold together. Press lightly into ball; roll on floured surface. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry; make high rim and flute edge. Chill while preparing filling.

Filing:

½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ cup soft-type margarine containing liquid safflower oil
1½ cups canned pumpkin
½ cup unsulphured molasses
3 eggs
1 cup evaporated milk

Mix sugar, flour, salt and spices. Add soft-type margarine and blend well. Blen in pumpkin and molasses. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in evaporated milk. Pour into chilled pastry shell. (To avoid splashing filling, pour in remaining filing.) Bake in 350°F. oven 1 hour or until tip of knife inserted in center of filling comes out clean. Cool
